RAILROADS GET NEAR A BILLION FOR THEIR UPKEEP

BUDGETS WERE PARED DOWN

Nearly $350,000,000 Eliminated, but with Hint That Increases May Be Made Later.

CENTRAL GETS THE MOST

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The railroads under Government operation this year will spend nearly a billion dollars for additions, betterments and equipment, or approximately three times as much as in any one of the last three years.

The total capital expenditures approved by the Railroad Administration as announced today are $937,961,318. Of this sum, $440,071,000 will be spent for additions and betterments, such as stations and other property improvements; $479,686,531 for equipment—cars and locomotives already ordered through the Railroad Administration, and $18,203,774 for track extensions.

The figures disclose Director General McAdoo's determination to let the railroads make many improvements which they had neglected in the last three years through permitting tracks to deteriorate and postponing all possible projects requiring large expenditures of capital. It also is shown that the Railroad Administration is not encouraging many extensions of lines during the war emergency, as practically all sums approved for extensions are to continue those already under construction, and in some cases projects already under way have been disapproved and work discontinued.

Budgets Were Pared Down.

The railroads in submitting budgets of proposed capital expenditures this year asked much more than was actually approved, and the Railroad Administration eliminated $349,247,000, or nearly one-fourth of the proposals. In paring down the budgets to this extent, the administration made it plain that most of its decisions were tentative, and might be reconsidered later in the light of any growing necessity or lack of need of betterments.

In general, the Eastern trunk lines receive generous sums for improvements and equipment, to enable them better to handle the great flood of traffic to the Atlantic seaboard for movement to Europe. In many cases, however, the budgets of Eastern roads were cut sharply.

Not only does the Railroad Administration exercise a restraining power over railroads' expansion of capital projects, but it also has authority to compel roads to make certain extensions which appear necessary.

A table made public today, and published in full elsewhere in this issue, shows that the New York Central receives $70,000,000, the largest allowance, and practically all the road asked. The Pennsylvania Lines East received $64,000,000, and the Pennsylvania Lines West $48,000,000. The Baltimore & Ohio got $43,000,000, the Erie $24,000,000, and the New Haven $24,000,000. Other large allowances included: Santa Fé, $41,000,000, the Union Pacific System $30,000,000, Southern Pacific $29,000,000, Southern Railway $29,000,000, Illinois Central $26,000,000, Philadelphia & Reading $24,000,000, St. Paul $23,000,000, Norfolk & Western $23,000,000, C., C., C. & St. L. $22,000,000, Boston & Maine $22,000,000, and Michigan Central $20,000,000.

Government May Buy Securities.

Part of the capital necessary will be supplied by the Government, from the $500,000,000 revolving fund of the Railroad Administration, although advances will be repaid eventually by the individual railroads. Wherever possible, railroads will finance their own enterprises, without Government aid, but the Railroad Administration may buy the bonds or other securities issued by the railroad to finance the capital propositions.

An examination of the budgets of the railroads has been directed by Robert S. Lovett, Chief of the Railroad Administration's Division of Capital Expenditures, and John Skelton Williams, Director of Finance and Purchases. The railroads were asked two months ago to submit estimates of proposed capital expenditures this year, making their estimates adequate to cover really necessary projects. They were told, however, to bear in mind that many betterments and extensions which might appear necessary under private management could be dispensed with under common control and pooling of facilities. In disapproving certain items, the Railroad Administration explained that they could be postponed until after the war. In this way Director General McAdoo adopts the same policy for railroads which, as Secretary of the Treasury, he asks other business interests to adopt as a war measure.

Allows Leeway for Increases.

King George and General Foch Send Godspeed to the Red Cross

LONDON, May 19.—King George, in a telegram to President Wilson on the eve of the second Red Cross appeal, says:

"I thank you in the name of my people for the assistance already afforded the sick and wounded in the allied countries. * * * The unexampled munificence of America's first response provided a noble record in charitable effort, and I feel sure that her generous-hearted people will again respond to an extent that the resources of your great country alone can command."

WASHINGTON, May 19.—General Foch, in a cable to the Red Cross headquarters today, says:

"America has come into the war with the Allies. She has generously brought the aid of her army, of her resources, of all her industrial and commercial power. These are sure pledges of victory.

"But she had already done still more by her beneficence. The American Red Cross has from the beginning of the war rendered great service to our country, whose people and whose prosperity have suffered so much. Her active and fruitful work has dressed many wounds. Her discreet activity has been felt in the two great spheres of suffering.

"France will keep the never-to-be-forgotten memory of the impulse which has brought Americans to the bedside of her wounded."

50 SHIPS IN JUNE, COLBY PROMISES

And More, of Major Size, Will Be Put in Service in July and August.

SUBMARINE BEING MASTERED

Delaware Shipyard Will Turn Out More Tonnage Than Britain Put Out Before War.

Bainbridge Colby, United States Shipping Commissioner, speaking last night at the joint memorial services of the Hebrew Union Veteran Association and the Hebrew Veterans of the Spanish War held at Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, declared that fifty ships of major size would be put into the service next month. He added that a larger number would be commissioned in July, and that the August output of the yards would be even greater.

"The submarine is at last on the point of being mastered," said Mr. Colby, "and we shall choke the seven seas with American shipping. I am revealing no secrets when I give the output for June, July, and August, and when I say that we now have a shipyard on the Delaware which will turn out tonnage greater than Great Britain's total output before the war."

Mr. Colby began by saying he felt the only sounds from the Emergency Fleet Corporation just now should be of ships sliding down the ways. He added that the rule of the shipbuilders should be "caulking not talking." Then turning to the war he continued:

"This is essentially America's war, and there can be no peace until brutal and cynical Germany is smashed to the ground. I say that this is America's war because there is no room in the world for the Germany of the Hohenzollerns and the America of Wilson."

Mr. Colby told of his recent trip along the western front, and urged his auditors not to "waste mushy tears on the soldiers over there." He said that the soldiers didn't need sympathy and were in wonderful trim, and that their confidence was an inspiration, for "they have met the enemy and they know that they are his superior in every respect."

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of Temple Beth-El, said that to his mind the flag today was the symbol of a humanitarian democracy. He said that he expected the war to be of great benefit to the country for "the Revolution gave us liberty; the civil war proved that the States were not in a loose partnership, but an unbreakable union, and this war will forever banish the hyphen and make us all 100 per cent. Americans." Defending his co-religionists against the false assertion that the Jews lacked courage and sought only peace, Dr. Schulman said:

"No Jew was ever taught the pernicious doctrine of peace at any price. Such a peace is based on the desire to save one's skin, and such a peace cannot come to the world. Peace, the goal of a righteous humanity, will only come to the world when humanity will submit to be governed by right instead of might. In the meantime there is going to be much and very hard fighting before that goal is reached. We must prove to Germany that efficiency can go hand in hand with democracy, and organization with individual liberty."

Dr. Schulman alluded to the fact that his son is serving as a Lieutenant with the Royal Flying Corps of the British army and that the son of Samuel J. Goldsmith, President of the Congregation Beth-El, is in France with the American forces. After Dr. Schulman had concluded Mr. Goldsmith read a letter which he received Saturday from his son, a very hopeful letter, but one in which the junior Goldsmith stressed the necessity of rigid support over here.

Hurley Tells of Shipping Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 19.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, in discussing the shipping situation today said:

"The magnitude of the work undertaken by the Government is evidenced by the fact that manufacturing work more than three times greater than that of the United States Steel Corporation is contemplated and that operating work more than twice that now done by the Pennsylvania Railroad is projected. There are now 182 shipyards in operation, and when the entire building program is under way more than 500,000 men will be employed.

"When the United States entered the war there were only 50,000 men skilled in the construction of ships in the entire country, so that it is a herculean task to assemble workmen formerly employed in other trades and teach them the technique of ship construction in its various complexities."

WASHINGTON SEES CHANCE TO BRING RUSSIA BACK IN WAR

But View Is Taken That It Must Be Seized Without Loss of Time.

DELAY TO FOE'S ADVANTAGE

COMBINED ACTION URGED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19. — With increasing forcefulness the belief is taking ground in quarters best qualified to judge that the Russian situation presents opportunity for action that will bring Russia back as a potent factor on the side of the Allies. It is realized in these quarters, however, that if anything is to be done to aid Russia, and incidentally the allied cause, it must be done soon. Delay, it is contended, will be all to the advantage of Germany.

The growing desire that an effort be made to put Russia on her feet as a national entity has no connection with the treaty entered into between Japan and China to combat German aggression in the Far East and Bolshevist aggression under German guidance. A Paris press dispatch saying that Japan and China had been informed by the allied Governments that they have arranged for Entente military co-operation to meet the dangers threatening the peace of the Far East is not credited here. It does not accord with any of the intimate information that has reached Washington. At the same time it is conceded that the report probably has a basis in the knowledge that France, like Great Britain and Japan, is keen for assisting Russia in a military way to withstand German aggression and through this means give aid to the cause of the Allies generally.

A strong feeling exists among some of the men who have studied the Russian situation that nothing is to be gained now by furnishing military assistance to the seeming de facto authority in the former dominions of the Czar. There is little if any dissent among most observers from the view that the Bolsheviki are not capable of handling the situation in a way to assure ultimate success of a program having for its object the rehabilitation of Russia as a nation, and its probable reparticipation in the war. Besides, it is argued, an allied military expedition centring around Bolshevist authority would be nothing more than an adventure destined to failure.

Would Play Germany's Game.

Opinion is strong that an effort of this character would be exactly what Germany would wish. An immediate Bolshevist military movement with allied support would soon be crushed, it is claimed, and this would tend to discredit the Allies in the eyes of the great mass of the best people of Russia, who would be likely to condemn the allied Governments for shortsightedness and lack of statesmanship. These elements would naturally turn to Germany for aid in rehabilitating the country, and the opportunity of the Entente Governments, Japan and the United States would be lost, perhaps for all time.

In these circumstances consideration is directed to the necessity of adopting a plan of allied co-operation that will bring results favorable to Russian national aspirations and coincidentally to the success of the governments arrayed against the Central Powers. There is insistence that whatever action is contemplated should be planned at once and a beginning made to carry the plan into effect. Various elements must be handled carefully, but the diplomatic situation is not as delicate as might be supposed. In certain circles the feeling exists that all the various nations concerned must be satisfied before anything is done, and this will require exchanges between all the great Powers allied against Germany.

Great Britain and France are still strong in their belief that something should be done in a military way to check Germany's advance into Russian territory through armies in the west and south and through propagandist methods in the east. These two nations backed Japan in her suggestion that a Japanese force should be sent into Eastern Siberia to protect the nationals of the allied nations, prevent the immense quantities of military stores at Vladivostok, most of them paid for with allied money, from falling into German hands, and generally safeguarding the interests of the Allies in Far Eastern Russian territory. To this proposal the United States Government would not agree, partly on the ground that it might cause the Russians to lose confidence in allied assurances of unselfish purposes toward Russia and perhaps drive the Russians to take up arms against the Allies.

The Japanese Government, apparently actuated by a regard for the American position, did not carry out its desire, and since then the Germans have had

Four Enemy Airplanes Downed in Raiding Southeast England

LONDON, Monday, May 20.—Four German airplanes were brought down during a raid made by an enemy squadron of considerable size on Southeastern England late last night and this morning. The raiders crossed into Essex and Kent about 11 o'clock, moving toward London.

An official bulletin, issued at 3 o'clock this morning, says:

Reports show that four of the enemy airplanes which raided London and the southeast last night have been brought down.

The raid appears to have been on a large scale. A considerable number of bombs were dropped.

No details of casualties or damage are yet available.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 19.—In front of the American sector in Lorraine the Germans have for a considerable distance ceased to hold the first line trenches in force, but keep their men for the most part in the second and third line trenches.

The first lines are held for observation purposes and very lightly. This explains why in several recent raids the Americans have penetrated the Germans' first lines only to find none of the foe about.

This step is believed to have been taken by the Germans to insure better protection against our fire. The withdrawal of many men from the first line trenches also decreases the danger from our snipers. In many cases the real German first lines are several kilometers from our first lines.

The German infantry and artillery have been exceptionally quiet opposite our sectors for the past two weeks. However, the good weather has brought about extra aerial activity on both sides. The German flyers are staying back of the lines generally, as is shown by the fact that most of the fights in which the Americans engage are behind the German front.

Since the Seicheprey affair the Germans seem to be content to let well enough alone along our sectors.

The artillery fire has been almost negligible on the Toul front for several days. On two days in succession the Germans sent over fewer than a hundred shells.

2 MONTHS' SHORTAGE CONFRONTS GERMANS

Failure of Ukraine and Rumania Help Is Now Known, and Complaints Are Rising.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

AMSTERDAM, May 19.—The reduction of the bread ration in Germany calls forth a great deal of comment in the press. It is pointed out that the expectations with regard to supplies from Ukraine and Rumania are far from fulfilled. The quantity of cereals from Rumania appears to be a couple of hundred thousand tons short, while the Berliner Tageblatt says that no more than 1,852 tons have been received to date from Ukraine.

Two months lie between Germany and the new harvest, so that there are eight lean weeks ahead. General complaint is made that the reductions are not accompanied by an increase of the meat ration, as was done last year, and that the substitutes promised do not give full compensation.

The Berlin Vorwärts asserts that the potato and bread rations are in such small quantities that the reduction becomes a great danger, all the more serious because the physical and moral strength of the people for enduring hardships has declined and they are less able to bear a reduction than was the case last year or the year before.

Though some papers find relief in the fact that the potato ration is not to be reduced, the Vorwärts thinks it "disgraceful that the people of the great cities should go every Sunday to beg potatoes in the country and then smuggle them to their homes." Several papers assert that the profiteering has a good deal to do with the shortages.

A heated debate took place in the Berlin City Council on Friday regarding the coal scarcity. One speaker said that the people had been shamefully deceived by promises, that the state of affairs was scandalous, that people waited in lines all night and then got nothing, and that many coal merchants had had no coal for a month past.

COUNT PLUNKETT ARRESTED

Seized Leaders Are Taken to England—More Prisoners Reaching Dublin.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

DUBLIN, May 19.—Edward Shortt, the new Chief Secretary for Ireland, the first act of whose régime is the bagging of the Sinn Fein leaders, granted me a private interview in Dublin Castle this evening. After explaining the general situation and his own attitude, he dictated the following, which I read over to him afterward to be sure that no mistake had been made:

"You may quote me as stating without reservation that the arrests of the Sinn Fein leaders have no connection whatever with domestic policies in Ireland, and no connection with the question of conscription or any other local question, and are in no way aimed at the anti-conscription movement in Ireland.

"We know that the Germans are looking upon Ireland as a good field to which to divert the military efforts of Great Britain from the western front and are seeking that, not only by stirring up domestic strife as they are doing, but by preparing to land a force to assist in the rebellion they hope to incite.

"We are quite satisfied that the number of Irish traitors is very small, and it is against them and against them alone that the strong measures of the Government have been taken."

Shortt is a Liberal member of Parliament from an English division and voted against conscription for Ireland. He is now in the trying position of solving the Irish muddle and at the same time putting in operation some form of recruiting. The general opinion of inside circles here is that Shortt has a sympathetic attitude toward Ireland, and desires to abate the bitter enmities existing between two peoples, but is determined at all hazards to stamp out whatever German influences there are in Ireland first. This is given as the explanation of the vigorous rounding up of Sinn Fein leaders.

People, when the first news of the arrests were gleaned early in the morning, were much depressed, and construed the move as the first step in an iron rule of suppression for Ireland under the new régime. They are now urged, however, to suspend judgment pending the publication of further details.

I understand that much of the alleged evidence in support of the German plot was gathered in the United States and will be released in Washington at once.

I am told officially that practically all the important arrests have been made in all sections of Ireland and that subsequent arrests will be only few.

DUBLIN, May 19.—Between twenty-five and thirty leaders from various parts of Ireland have been put on board an Admiralty vessel at Kingstown to be taken to England. Large batches of prisoners are arriving from the country. Dublin is quiet.

LONDON, May 19.—A vessel carrying seventy-three Sinn Fein prisoners left Kingstown last evening, says a Dublin dispatch to the Central News Agency. It is understood that the ship is proceeding to Holyhead, Wales. A large crowd cheered as the ship departed, but the demonstrators were dispersed quietly.

Another Dublin dispatch states that Count Plunkett, member of Parliament for Roscommon, was arrested there last night.

HEADQUARTERS OF AMERICAN TROOPS WITH BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, May 17, (Associated Press.)—The American troops are putting finishing touches to their preparations for active fighting, behind the British line in a beautiful rolling country which resembles Western New York in full bloom. The Americans started this morning on manoeuvres, in which they took their first long hike in heavy marching order under a broiling sun.

After six hours the troops were still full of go when the correspondent encountered a long line of infantry resting in the shade of a hedge. Some were footsore, but the operations were going on to the satisfaction of the officers.

"They have covered a good deal of ground before, but it was cool," said the Colonel in command. "This is their first trial under heat, and they are standing it well."

The men are pictures of health and appear to be trained to the hour for hard fighting. All were in good humor, even those with blistered feet.

"Hail! Hail! The Gang's All Here!" called one who, outdistanced by his company, came limping alone down the dusty road under a heavy pack.

Besides manoeuvres and regular exercises the Americans are being coached to the last minute in British schools in all the tactics of modern warfare. The commandant of one of these schools told The Associated Press that they were keen and quick to learn.

All over the region where Americans are billeted along with the British there are evidences of how well the troops of the two allies are getting on together. This feeling is displayed everywhere they meet, and it will aid in the success of the amalgamation of the forces.

AMERICANS CHECK 3 GERMAN ATTACKS

Pershing Reports Picardy and Lorraine Raids Repulsed, with Loss to Enemy.

THREE AIRPLANES DOWNED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19. — General Pershing cabled tonight to the War Department the statement that American forces had repulsed three German raids on the Picardy and Lorraine fronts, and that three more enemy airplanes had been disposed of by the group of American aviators who distinguished themselves last week.

The General's statement gave details of Lieutenant Eddie Rickenbacker's bringing down of an airplane last night after narrowly escaping an accident himself. Rickenbacker was flying at the high altitude of 5,000 meters when he was pursued by a German machine of the Albatross type. A second hostile machine came between them. Rickenbacker's airplane struck the tail of the second machine, taking it off and forcing the enemy down out of control.

Captain Peterson, who was credited with having brought down two German machines on May 15, attacked and brought down a German two-seater yesterday, and Lieutenant Chambers engaged two hostile machines, one of which fell.

The report was made public by the War Department tonight as follows:

Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces,
May 19, 1918.

Section A—In Picardy and in Lorraine hostile raids were repulsed with loss to the enemy in killed and wounded. In the Woevre there was continued aerial activity, our planes engaging successfully in several encounters.

Section B—Early this morning in the Lorraine sector a strong enemy patrol of twenty to twenty-five men attempted a raid on one of our advanced positions. The raid was a complete failure, and the enemy in retreating left one of their number dead in our trench.

Last evening north of Toul Lieutenant Rickenbacker, flying at 5,000 meters, was pursuing an Albatross type plane when a second machine came between them. Lieutenant Rickenbacker struck the tail of the second machine, taking it off, and apparently forcing the hostile plane down out of control. Although his own machine was badly damaged he succeeded in returning safely to his own lines.

At about the same time Captain Peterson attacked a two-seated machine signaled to him in the vicinity of St. Mihiel. The enemy machine descended, apparently falling in a nose dive.

Lieutenant Chambers at about the same time engaged two hostile machines, of which one was seen to fall. The other was pursued without result.

RATIONS FRANCE TO FEED OUR MEN

SAYS AMERICA MUST HURRY

PARIS, May 18.—Victor Boret, the French Food Minister, was asked by The Associated Press today what effect the first three meatless days, terminating yesterday, had upon the situation in France. He replied:

"It means that our and your brave boys at the front will henceforth receive all the meat necessary to strengthen them for the arduous task of beating the Germans. It is an expression of French gratitude to America for the restrictions imposed on the American people and the desire to show that French civilians are willing and eager to make similar sacrifices.

"Complete returns," the Minister continued, "have not yet been received; but, judging from the figures sent in from the Paris, Seine, and outlying districts, I can say that the threatening crisis has been safely passed. The savings in meat in the last three days will enable me to breathe more easily and to feel sure that the fighting men at the front will want for nothing."

M. Boret explained that France had been under a handicap owing to the lack of refrigerating warehouses and cars, and said:

"It is more a difficulty of transportation than a lack of meat itself which caused the meatless day measures to be taken."

When informed that a report was being spread in some quarters that the meatless days were made necessary because of the purchase of French cattle for consumption by American soldiers, the Minister exclaimed: "That is an absolute falsehood!"

M. Boret paid a high tribute to the American officers and men, saying:

"They are men of wonderful physique, bright intellectually, and accustomed to substantial food. They spend an immense amount of energy, and they require the best foods. They are sober, and their digestive organs have not been impaired by the use of alcohol. Therefore, especially at the ports of entry, French cattle were purchased for the American Army, but that has nothing whatever to do with the present measures, which should have been taken long ago."

The Minister pointed out that before the war France had produced 90 per cent. of the wheat necessary for French requirements, and that last year the production reached only 30 per cent.

"The 60 per cent. had to be made up by importations, intensification of production and restrictions. That was when the bread card was instituted with good results. But tell them in America that I must have men for the coming harvest.

"America must hurry and send men to relieve our old classes in the trenches, so that they may be brought back to the farms to reap the harvest; for what use is it to intensify and increase the sowing if hands are lacking to harvest it, and the crops are left rotting in the field? What France needs is farm help for July and August.

"The Allies should be grateful to two men after victory has been obtained," M. Boret went on. "First, to the general who leads the soldiers to win the decisive battle, and second, to Herbert Hoover, who rendered it possible for the soldiers to eat so that they might fight.

"I am trying to aid Hoover in his task in America. I am unwilling that Americans should restrict themselves in the use of foodstuffs so as to export them

VICTORS' LOSSES LIGHT

ENEMY FAILS AT BETHUNE

Repulsed Before Reaching the British Lines—Artillery Active in Various Sectors.

LONDON, May 19.—The village of Ville-sur-Ancre, north of Morlancourt, [on the front northeast of Amiens,] has been retaken by the British as the result of an attack carried out last night by Australian troops, who captured 360 Germans and 20 machine guns at slight cost to themselves.

Field Marshal Haig reports a successful raid today on a German post southwest of Meteren and raids netting a few prisoners and four machine guns yesterday in the neighborhood of Albert and Hamel.

For the rest, today's operations were confined to reciprocal artillery actions in the different sectors.

The night bulletin says:

A local operation during the night at Ville-sur-Ancre [Ville-sous-Corbie] was completely successful. Australian troops carried the German positions in and around the village, which is now in our possession, and captured 360 prisoners and 20 machine guns. Our casualties were light.

We carried out successfully a raid today on a hostile post southwest of Meteren and inflicted casualties on the garrison.

On the remainder of the front there was only artillery activity on both sides in the different sectors.

Following is the text of the afternoon report:

A minor enterprise was successfully undertaken by us last night in the neighborhood of Ville-sur-Ancre, northwest of Morlancourt. Our positions in this locality have been improved, and a number of prisoners and machine guns have been captured by our troops.

Successful raids in which we captured a few prisoners and four machine guns were carried out by us also northwest of Albert and in the neighborhood of Hamel.

In aerial fighting yesterday twenty-one German airplanes were destroyed and two disabled by British aviators. The statement on aerial operations issued tonight reads:

Saturday was another fine day and enabled us to carry out bombing, reconnoitring, photography, and fighting. The improved visibility facilitated more work in conjunction with the artillery than has been possible recently. The railway stations at Courtrai, Valenciennes, Roulers, and Chaulnes were bombed heavily and several enemy airdromes, ammunition dumps, and billets also were attacked. Over nineteen tons of bombs were dropped on these targets.

The greater part of the fighting occurred well east of the enemy lines. Twenty-one hostile machines were brought down and two others were disabled. Eight of ours are missing.

Although our bombing machines were only to work half the night, owing to a thick mist which blew in from the sea, they dropped ten tons of bombs on the Marcoing, Haubourdin, Douai, and Chaulnes railway stations, on billets in the neighborhood of Bapaume and Bray, and on the Solway Works and lock gates at Zeebrugge. One of our machines failed to return.

GERMAN BATTERIES SHELLED.

Berlin Reports Heavy British Gunfire Between Arras and Albert.

BERLIN, May 19, (via London.)—The official communication from General Headquarters says:

West of Hulluch the British attacked with several companies, but were repulsed with heavy losses.

Between Arras and Albert the enemy was especially active, and our batteries here were many times subjected to a violent fire.

Elsewhere the infantry activity was limited to reconnoissances.

There was lively firing activity on the battlefront, which continued until early morning, diminished later, and only revived toward evening.

The evening official report from General Headquarters says:

On the southern bank of the Ancre British local attacks sanguinarily collapsed.

40 WARSHIPS TORPEDOED

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The world knows the story of Britain's fleets—the simple tale of the gaunt gray fighting hulks that swing ceaselessly in circles from the arctic down to Ostend, barring effectively the egress from German ports of naval merchant shipping. Only the U-boats and an occasional raider have been successful in slipping through the steel cordon.

Although much has been told about the high seas fleets, but little has been written—and less officially disclosed—about England's efficient submarine navy. However, there has been received by the Committee on Public Information an official British statement, made public with the approbation of the Admiralty, telling in detailed form of the exploits of Britons in combating Germany with her favorite weapon.

Leaving the home harbors on England's east coast, or perhaps dropping down some Scottish firth, the submarines slip into the gray waters of the North Sea and pick their way through German mine fields so that they may battle with the enemy even within the confines of his own harbors.

One of the most popular tales of the exploits of British submarines, which, however, is not contained in the prepared statement, deals with a young commander who audaciously crept through mine-infested waters into the very harbor of Heligoland, the German Gibraltar. As he allowed his periscope to show above the surface for an instant he caught a glimpse of an enemy U-boat riding awash while the crew, lined up on deck, smiled a greeting to the crowds on shore and aboard harbor shipping who were noisily welcoming the "heroes" returning from a raid on the Atlantic. A torpedo from the British craft summarily cut short the celebration and eliminated the U-boat as a future menace to allied vessels. The brilliant phase of the achievement is the fact that the English vessel succeeded in escaping and returning to port unharmed.

Besides detailing various engagements in which British submarines have accounted for one or more enemy war vessels—it is stated that more than forty German warships have been attacked successfully—the review tells of the hardships incident to patrols in bad weather.

In Winter a cold, clammy chill pervades the submarine, and at times the thermometer drops so low that the crew find it difficult to sleep. Spray freezes several inches thick on the wireless antennae, rendering radio communication impossible, while the periscope becomes useless at times because of a frosty mantle.

The submarine rides very heavily in a seaway, and an even keel is difficult to maintain even many fathoms below the surface. When running on top for the purpose of replenishing the supply of electric motive power, the ventilators must be kept open, with the result that water is shipped in heavy quantities.

How much respect for the British underseas navy is entertained in Germany is told best in the official narrative, which runs as follows:

Some Typical Attacks.

"Venturesome as the enemy is with his U-boats, he rarely allows his abovewater craft beyond the confines of his harbors. He well knows that our submarines are ever on the prowl for him, and how vigilant and thorough is the watch kept may be gathered from the fact that though so few opportunities are afforded them our submarines have successfully attacked no less than forty enemy warships.

"Night and day the search is continued, according as circumstances may dictate. The watch is ketp on the surface, or submerged save for the periscope, or maybe the vessels are on the dictate. The watch is kept on the surface every now and again to scan the horizon for any hostile craft which may come within reach.

"A ship being sighted, the submarine dives to the attack. As the ship is probably steaming fast on a zig-zag course, a long time may elapse before the submarine is in a favorable position to fire her torpedoes. While this is going on she must ascertain whether the ship is friend or foe, and at all costs she must avoid being seen. If the periscope is sighted the hostile ship will make off with all speed, and the odds are that she will get away. An irregular course and great speed make her a difficult target, and if the sea is smooth she may see the track of the torpedo fired at her and steer to avoid it. But, in spite of all the difficulties, the submarines manage to drive home their attacks and a few of the successes may be here recorded.

"While patrolling between the Eastern Ems and the Weser River a submarine sighted two lots of destroyer smoke to the southeastward. Two anxious hours were spent manoeuvring for position to attack, and then, at a range of 500 yards two torpedoes were fired one at the bow and one at the stern, of one of the destroyers. Having fired the torpedoes the submarine dived to avoid being detected, but a loud explosion told without doubt that one of the torpedoes had reached its mark. Eight minutes later the destroyer was seen sinking by the stern, fifteen feet of her bows still standing vertically out of the water.

"The other destroyer was seen steaming at varying speeds and distances around the wreck. Elated at the success, the submarine thirsted to put her down, too, but as two more destroyers had arrived on the scene and were systematically searching, it was not considered feasible to continue the attack.

"On another occasion two armed auxiliaries were sighted in the Heligoland Bight, and the leader, the larger of the two, was attacked and torpedoed, and was seen to be sinking by the stern.

"It frequently happens that a submarine does not actually see her victim struck, but she invariably has the satisfaction of hearing the explosion if the torpedo gets home. This was the experience of a submarine which, patrolling one morning off the Ems, sighted an enemy destroyer, and fired both tubes at a range of 850 yards. As the submarine dived on firing the result was not seen, but after the lapse of a few seconds there was an exceedingly loud explosion, which was distinctly heard twenty-five miles away.

"A quick sweep around with the periscope two or three minutes later revealed no sign of the destroyer which had been fired at, but 400 yards astern was another vessel of the same kind. As the destroyer was not actually seen to be hit, at first it appeared likely that in reality there was only one enemy vessel, but after the bearings and distances had been carefully worked out this did not seem to have been possible. In view of the violence of the explosion, it is probable that the magazine blew up, and that would account for the rapid disappearance of the ship.

"Yet another instance of the total disappearance of the ship may be cited. One of our submarines located an enemy submarine ahead of her, and, giving chase, reduced the range to 400 yards. Two torpedoes were fired, and one was seen to hit. When the smoke cleared away there was not a vestige of the hostile vessel to be seen.

"These are but a few of the many instances which could be quoted showing the silent and stealthy work of the submarine.

Operations in Heligoland Bight.

"For submarine operations to succeed it is necessary to take the enemy by surprise, and for that reason their work is a hidden mystery and their movements wrapped in obscurity. The following extracts from an official report of operations in the Heligoland Bight lift for a moment the veil of secrecy and afford a glimpse into the life of one of these craft:

"'When a submarine is submerged, her Captain alone is able to see what is taking place. The success of the enterprise, and the safety of the vessel depend on his skill and nerve and the prompt, precise execution of his orders by the officers and men under his command.

"'Our submarines' have been pioneers in waters which have been mined. They have been subjected to skilful and well thought out anti-submarine tactics by a highly trained and determined enemy, attacked by gunfire and torpedo, driven to lie at a great depth to preserve battery power, hunted for hours at a time by the hostile torpedo craft, and at times forced to dive under our own warships to avoid interfering with their movements.

"'Sudden alterations of course and depth, the swish of propellers overhead, and the concussion of bursting shells give an indication to the crew of the risks to which they are being exposed, and it speaks well for the morale of these young officers and men, and their gallant faith in their Captains that they have invariably carried out their duties quietly, keenly, and confidently under conditions that might well have tried the most hardened veteran.

"'The hardships undergone during stormy weather are terrible. During the Winter months westerly gales were frequently experienced in the Bight, and these gales were invariably accompanied by high, steep seas, which made it impossible to open the conning tower hatch. Vision was limited to that through the periscope, and was only a cable or two between the seas, which continually broke over them.

"'There was no rest at the bottom, even at 22 fathoms, as the vessels rolled and bumped dangerously. They were consequently compelled to keep under way at a depth clear of the keels of possible ships. When battery power became low the submarine had perforce to come to the surface to recharge. While on the surface it was essential to run the engines in order to keep head to sea, and through the ventilator, which, with the engines running, must necessarily be kept open, much water was shipped.

"'The seamen got very little sleep owing to cold. With these words the Captain of the submarine concludes his report on a cruise in the North Sea. It is characteristic of the service that he should make no reference to the fact that, while the crew had got very little sleep, he had got infinitely less himself.

"'The weather had not been good, and throughout the six days the cold had been intense, arctic in fact. At times ice formed on the periscope very quickly and obscured vision so that it had to be dipped every five minutes. On the surface the thermometer gave no reading, though it had a minimum of 18 degrees of frost. To receive messages by wireless was impossible, for the spray froze on the aerial, forming a coating of ice two inches thick.

"'From time to time it was necessary to dive to remove the icicles, which, over a foot long, depended from portions of the superstructure. The bridge screen froze like a board, and only with difficulty could it be folded, and the ice on the coats of the officers and crew did not thaw until some hours after the garments had been hung up below.'

"Four battleships of the Kaiser class were sighted by a submarine which was patrolling off the Danish coast. Probably there were other vessels in company, but owing to low visibility they were not seen. After getting into position to attack the submarine broke surface owing to the heavy swell, and it was necessary to go full speed to get her under again.

"Just before the periscope dipped sights were got on to the third ship in the line, and four torpedoes were fired. The range was estimated at 4,000 yards. Two loud explosions were heard, and the commanding officer of the submarine was of the opinion that the third and fourth ships in the line were each hit by a torpedo.

"As the submarine was about to rise to observe the results of the shots a destroyer was heard to pass very close overhead, and after that she was continually harassed by destroyers. Two depth charges exploded in close proximity to her, and a sweep was distinctly heard to drag over her hull. For two hours the destroyers searched diligently for her, but without success.

Attempt to Reach the Baltic.

"Some failures may be described as more glorious than victories, and the attempt of a submarine to pass through the Sound into the Baltic is surely one of these, replete as it is with pluck and persistence.

"It was known that the German fleet was exercising in the Baltic, and three submarines, X, Y, and Z, were detailed to make the passage of the Sound and attack. It was essential that the three vessels should pass through the Sound the same night, but unfortunately X developed certain defects and was unable to keep up with the other two. The result was that she reached the entrance to the Sound the night after Y and Z had successfully made the passage. Their presence was discovered in the Baltic and the enemy took all possible steps to prevent either their getting out of the Baltic or others getting in.

"What X found was four merchant ships in line abreast proceeding through the narrow entrance to the sound, and from the accurate station they kept it was evident they were sweeping. Beyond them were destroyers. These ships were all showing navigation lights, and, accordingly, X. thought it would be best to do so, too, hoping to pass without attracting attention.

"She had not proceeded far before she was detected by a destroyer, which tried to ram her. Her only course was to dive, and as she sank in the water she heard the threshing of the enemy's propellers above her.

"To make the passage with lights burning was clearly out of the question, and, nothing daunted, she returned, silently and stealthily creeping on the surface, until she got into the wake of a vessel proceeding through the sound, trusting to be able to follow her unobserved.

"For awhile it seemed as if the plan would succeed, but suddenly the vessel she was following stopped. As luck would have it she was a destroyer, which at once endeavored to ram her. Again she dived.

"A third and a fourth attempt brought no greater success. The enemy, thoroughly alarmed, were ever on the alert to ram her. Another effort would not only have been hopeless, but would have unjustifiably risked the boat and the lives of the crew, so she returned to her base, as her gallant commander expressed it in his report, 'prior to making a further attempt.'

"The enemy, however, is up to many tricks, and his innocent looking decoy ships have been known to give a submarine a sharp surprise. On one occasion the submarine sighted what appeared to be a merchantman and gave chase, showing the signal, 'Stop engines' and 'Send a boat.'

"When the submarine had closed to about a mile, the steamer hoisted the German naval ensign and opened fire with six-inch guns, at the same time increasing speed and altering course so as to ram the submarine. At the time the submarine gun was manned, the signals were still flying, and there were altogether twelve men on the deck, but she just managed to dive in time. Two or three minutes later two loud explosions were heard overhead. Beyond shaking the boat violently, they did no damage.

"From time to time instances occur of encounters between our submarines and those of the enemy, which prove inconclusive. After many hours of dead-reckoning a submarine cannot be very sure of her position, and in one such encounter a British submarine thought for some time that her adversary, which was approximately end on, was her consort out of station.

"Realising her mistake, she dived at once, but before she could pick up the German in her periscope the latter dived. Under the circumstances 'stalemate' was practically inevitable, and after an hour and a half, during which they simultaneously rose and simultaneously dived again, each manoeuvring for a favorable position for attack, the German retired out of the area."

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

While the situation in the West remains at a standstill, Germany is far from idle in Russia. Having put her political fences on the Austrian border in good condition, as indicated by the conference between the two Emperors, Germany is pressing matters in the Ukraine and in Lithuania almost to their elastic limit. There is a vein of sardonic humor in the situation with Lithuania. In response to the Bolshevist distrine of no annexations and no indemnities, the Lithuanians made peace, acting as an independent state. The whole theory was peace at any price, and the Russian provinces, some of which have since become States in name at least, declared for peace on this basis. But this was not quite what Germany wanted. She, therefore, twisted this independence of the new States and their new peace to mean an alliance with the Central Powers, so that they might remove from German shoulders some of the burden of carrying on the war.

In so far as the question of finance is concerned, this is of more importance after the war than at present. But there are other questions of immediate interest, since they bear directly on the war itself. One of these, of course, is the question of food. There does not appear to be any prospect that the food situation of the Central Powers will be immediately ameliorated as a result of the collapse of the Russian States. There is abundant evidence that both Germany and Austria are bitterly disappointed at the small amount of food which was found available. There was good reason to expect much more. Russia has to a large extent been cut off from the outside world for many months, and in the ordinary course of events there should have been great reservoirs of food stored up because of inability to ship it out of the country. But evidently agriculture had been completely neglected, so that the amount acquired was relatively insignificant. Germany, alarmed at the prospect of the effect of previous promises to the civilian population, has therefore pressed the situation in the Ukraine so as to force the resumption of agriculture, so that her armies may be properly fed. This may prove a boomerang later on; at the same time, viewed from the standpoint of the present, it creates a most unsatisfactory condition for the Allies.

Another point to consider is that of man-power. It is extremely doubtful whether Germany can get any of the Russians to fight in her army without the application of the iron hand. At the same time, the majority of the Russians are not Bolsheviki. They are more or less conservative, and are willing to back any power which will give them stability of Government. If Germany can restore order, this element, although it has no liking for Germany, and would be glad of the opportunity to turn to someone else, will find that there is no one else who can stabilize the situation. Germany's methods of action are, of course, peculiar to herself. Although at peace she wages war when it suits her convenience. Although she has made a treaty and signed it with due ceremony, if there is anything which she desires to insert afterward she does so without going through the formality of consulting the wishes of the other party. If there is anything she wants she takes it, regardless of any existing prior rights. But the result is the same, a military Government supported by the might of German arms exerted against a demobilized and powerless State. If, therefore, Germany wishes men, not to fight perhaps, although this may come later, but for agriculture or for work in manufacturing, they are here to take.

Economically Germany is obtaining a grip on Russia that it will be most difficult to break, even in the case of complete victory of the Allies on the battlefield. Russian industries, now idle and unproductive, are being sold at bargain prices to German interests, so that whichever way the war goes German money will have paid the price and will hold the property. Gradually there is being constructed in Russia a new German State which it will be difficult, if not impossible, to divorce from the Russian State when peace is declared. As a war measure it means the gradual mobilization of Russia in German interests, giving Germany a wealth of materials to draw from which in every way will rival that of the Allies, including America. This, of course, cannot be accomplished overnight. It is a matter of time, backed up continually with a show of military force. Germany has neither the time nor the men to bring this about by a process of peaceful penetration. It must be done quickly or not at all. Therefore she is compelled to keep in Russia many divisions of troops in order that there may be a proper show of force present whenever it is needed. This need is practically continuous as things stand now. There has been bitter resentment in many quarters at the way Germany has handled the situation. German rule as at present manifested is acquiesced in only as a matter of necessity. Once this necessity is removed the resentment will take tangible form. For this reason military forces must be retained in the conquered provinces. With this situation before them the Allies must make some countermove. Perhaps in the newly made Japanese-Chinese alliance we have seen the first step.

JOFFRE URGED MOVE TO SAVE RUSSIA

DANGERS HAVE GROWN SINCE

What Returning Americans Tell of Military and Political Tendencies in Other War Countries.

In the opinion of some of the best known Allied military and Government officials, according to information which has reached here through returning Americans, the situation on the western front may yet reach a deadlock which will cost the Entente millions of men and billions of dollars to break unless immediate action is taken to stop the German progress in Russia.

Nine months ago Marshal Joffre, who planned, three weeks in advance, the battle of the Marne that saved France, urged the Allies to send into Russia an expedition led by the Japanese with a mandate to all loyal men in that country to join in organizing a stable Government and driving the Germans out. He pointed out that while the Japanese were political realists rather than idealists, the Japanese Government scrupulously and honorably kept its treaties in spirit and in letter and if Japan bound herself in advance to retire from Russia after the Germans had been expelled she could be trusted to keep her word. If on the other hand Germany was permitted to have her own way unmolested, she would quickly succeed in getting full control of the country because the people of the better class had grown weary of continual anarchy and bloodshed, and would be glad to welcome any power, even Germany, which would restore order.

Germany's Growing Power.

Germany, the Marshal is said to have pointed out, would extend her sway into Siberia and gain possession of the vast coal, oil and mineral lands of that region until she reached Harbin. Then, she could easily afford to offer Japan the territory along the Pacific and a free hand in China, in which case Japanese commercial interests might succeed in forcing the making of a treaty with Germany because it would clearly be to their interest to do so. The western front would remain in a state of deadlock and Germany would practically have won the war. Many French and military experts who are not pessimists believe that it may be the Spring of 1920 before the Allies are ready for an offensive strong enough to drive the Germans back to the lines they occupied before March 21 this year, and if the enemy should by any chance succeed in breaking through to Calais or Boulogne, then at least five more years of war may be expected.

The opponents of Marshal Joffre's first suggestion to send Japanese into Siberia contended that this would be dangerous because the Russians would not trust Japan. President Wilson's opposition put an end to this plan. Now, however, it is being contended both in England and France that some action must be taken without delay, and the objections first raised could be met by sending into Russia a joint expedition composed of American, French, British, and Japanese troops with a guarantee from all the Allies to the Russian people that their rights would be respected. Germany, according to the belief now prevalent abroad, is likely to restore the Russian monarchy at any time by placing one of the Grand Dukes, probably Paulovitch Dimetrieff, on the throne.

Daring German Spies.

A returning American, who has recently been behind the battlefront, told a TIMES reporter that the German system of communicating with their spies inside the British lines during the first days of the Picardy offensive was remarkably effective. A Belgian cook in one camp warned some of the noncommissioned officers that they had better get out before midnight because he knew the Germans would be there by that time. The prediction proved to be correct, but the cook did not live to boast about it because he was shot at dawn as a spy.

On March 22 four German spies disguised as British staff officers by some means procured a British military car and drove through Bray, Corbie, and other towns on the road to Amiens, warning the French inhabitants to get out with their effects because the German troops were advancing rapidly. Their object was to get the people stirred up so that they would leave their homes and block the roads, thus hampering British and French movements of troops and artillery. For two days these four spies operated successfully, even deceiving soldiers on sentry duty at the bridges. Then they were caught and dealt with.

Spies are shot at dawn by the Allies. In order to prevent collusion or sympathy among the soldiers in the firing party the rifles are all loaded by a Sergeant and given to them at the last moment. Some have blank cartridges and others are loaded with ball, so that when the order to fire is given the soldiers are unable to tell who fired the fatal shots. There is no secrecy about the executions, time not permitting the firing party to search for a secluded nook, and human life is so cheap that the troops in the vicinity pay little attention to what is going on.

In the first rush of the German offensive, according to this American, the British were overwhelmed by the superiority of numbers. The Germans came on in such hordes that it was impossible to stem the rush. At one point the enemy advanced in twelve distinct waves. They were mowed down by machine gun and rifle fire at twenty yards range as if by a reaper. The dead and wounded fell in heaps outside a barbed wire fence six feet high until the survivors were able to walk across the bodies and continue the attack. So swift was the advance that surgeons were operating at the casualty clearing stations while the Germans were shelling the hospital and there was great difficulty in moving the wounded.

When Maricourt was abandoned there was no means of communicating with headquarters, and a number of wounded sent there afterward were bayoneted on their stretchers by the Huns in the presence of some slightly wounded officers and men belonging to a Highland regiment who managed to get away. One of the soldiers saw his own brother thus killed. The main roads were shelled every ten yards by the German artillery, and the refugees from Maricourt, Bray, and Corbie had to escape through by roads and narrow lanes which were so jammed that progress was almost impossible. French farmers driving country carts loaded with household goods and the children on top were coming from all directions, the women walking behind driving cows and geese before them. The engineers left the last bridge until the refugees had passed, and then blew it up to block the German advance.

Canadian officers thought it not improbable that the British might retire from Ypres, as they did from Passchendaele, to avoid useless sacrifice of life and straighten the line. Even then the Germans, they said, would still be in difficulties, as they were hemmed in by the marshy land on the salient bordered by the Oise, Ancre, and the Somme, are exposed to constant aerial attacks by the Allies, and have great difficulty in maintaining their supply lines. If they are held in check until September, it was predicted the German Government will again offer peace terms expressing willingness to give way on most points in dispute in return for a free hand in Russia.

ITALIANS FIGHTING ALONG WHOLE FRONT

ROME, May 19.—The War Office communication issued today says:

There has been considerable local fighting along the whole of the front. On the southwest slopes of Monte Mantello, north of Corno Tresegneri, we completely stopped an attempted enemy attack. In the Adamello district strong hostile detachments attacked our outposts south of Mount Stablet. Our troops resisted bravely and, successfully supported by artillery, repulsed the enemy, who was compelled to retire, leaving hundreds of dead and wounded.

In the Val Giudicaria we attacked and dispersed the garrison of a hostile outpost on the southeastern slope of Mount Nozzolo, capturing prisoners and material.

North of Monte Grappa our assault troops stormed the Casatasson Ridge, inflicting casualties and taking a few prisoners.

In the Val Arsa and on the Asiago Plateau there has been increased artillery activity by both sides.

The aircraft activity has been considerable along the whole of the front. A kite balloon and four enemy machines were downed by two British aviators.

CHANCE TO BRING RUSSIA INTO WAR

ample opportunity to make headway in influencing sentiment for Germany in Siberia. The recent order of the Central Bolshevist authority that the stores at Vladivostok should be sent to Russia was attributed to German suggestion or coercion.

The attitude of the United States has produced a deadlock in the proposal that the Allies should take some action to bring Russia back as a nation and as a factor in the war. Since then things have gone from bad to worse in Russia. People are starving, even in Petrograd, and the situation is such that many are likely to turn to the authority that gives them relief from their distress.

National Spirit Reviving.

But the Russian national spirit has shown signs of coming back, and has been emphasized by the high-handed manner in which the Germans have violated their treaty obligations with both the Bolsheviki and the Ukrainians, as witness the arrest of the Ukrainian Ministers and members of the Central Rada. Under these conditions it is felt that the certain failure of any ill-considered military effort of the Allies in support of the Bolshevist Government would mean that Russians generally would turn to Germany to give relief, while careful handling of the situation would afford a basis for the re-establishment of Russian nationality and ultimate Russian assistance in the defeat of the Central Powers.

In his speech at the Metropolitan Opera House last night the President said:

Whether this means that the President contemplates action that will help restore Russian nationality is not known, and it is doubtful that there will be any immediate enlightenment for the public, as there is no one authorized to interpret what the President says. It is likely, however, that the President's remark will be used as a means of reviving interest in the Russian situation, and may afford the basis for consideration by the United States, Japan, and the Entente of a plan that will help Russia and her former associates in the war against Germany.

Even among those most anxious that something be done to take advantage of the opportunity the feeling is strong that there must be thorough accord between all the allied nations before any step is made. This would mean that Great Britain, France, and Japan, in their desire to use military means at once to combat German influence in Russian territory, would show consideration for the doubts of the United States as expressed in its communication in regard to the Japanese suggestion that troops be sent into Siberia. A way to overcome the difficulty may be found in the suggestion that any military expedition should be an allied expedition, in which all the allied Governments would be represented, but with the only purpose of the expedition to help the Russian people establish order and authority as a preliminary to the formation of a national government.

Joint Expedition Suggestion.

It is generally recognized here that to re-establish themselves nationally the Russians must have some rallying point. They have not found it in the Bolshevist Government, which is backed by a comparatively small percentage of the people. They might look with suspicion on a purely military allied movement unless its purpose were clearly understood to be unselfish, and it is in this connection that the suggestion is likely to be considered that an allied civil commission should be sent to Russia by way of Siberia, with armed forces of Great Britain, France, Japan, the United States and perhaps Italy, merely incidental for its protection and the support of the Russian authority that it would seek to place in power. All the allied Governments would be represented in the commission, which would be headed by some man of international prominence known to many of the Russian people as a friend of democracy.

The present interest of Great Britain and France in the Russian situation appears to centre around bringing Russia back as a military factor through the encouragement that would be given by sending allied armed forces into Russian territory to assist in resisting German aggression. The interest of the United States is mainly in establishing democracy in Russia. If these two purposes could be amalgamated so as to prove to the United States that an allied military expedition could be so conducted as to bring the approval of the Russian people themselves, a step forward in the rehabilitation of Russia and the assistance of the new nation in helping the Allies in the war might be brought about according to opinion in some well informed quarters.

CHURCHES TO AID RUSSIA.

All Denominations to Join in Work of Rehabilitation.

President Wilson's announcement that the United States Government will stand by Russia is a part of a world program which the churches of the Entente share, and concerning which the President is said to have been consulted. A call was issued yesterday for a Protestant conference to be held in Chicago at the end of June to consider what steps are to be taken by American churches to stand by and help Russia to rebuild its religious and social affairs after the war. Baptists meeting at Atlantic City this week will lead in the movement, and Presbyterians in session at Columbus this week will also act.

The Catholic Church of the West has already announced, thrugh Vatican advices, that it is ready to do all it can to rebuild Russia and work with President Wilson. The Church of England and the Episcopal Church in this country, together with the Lutherans of Sweden and Finland, which have Bishops and claim Catholic orders, have also announced their purpose to help Russia.

ACTION BY THE ALLIES URGED.

New World War Predicted Unless the Present One Frees Russia.

LONDON, May 19.—Concluding a long review of the present political situation in the East, The Sunday Observer says:

"If the Central Powers could secure peace on their present basis their subsequent position would be by no means an easy one. Nevertheless, that position would mean sooner or later a new world war. It is life and death for all the allies to secure in this war the reconstruction of a free Russian federation as powerful as was the Czardom.

"Several things are necessary. First, a fuller organization of India, which now is going on.

"Second, a firm touch with those strong elements in Russia which are anti-German to death, however socialistic and revolutionary.

"Third, President Wilson's attention to the burning appeals of men like Savinkoff, Bourtseff, and Kerensky, if he is indeed at hand.

"Fourth, some action by Japan. If the Allies could not secure a move by this latter great power as a mandatary acting under a proclamation of disinterestedness their collective diplomacy would seem to be a feeble agency."

PRUSSIAN SOLDIERS INSIST ON SUFFRAGE

AMSTERDAM, May 19.—Letters from the front recently appearing in small German provincial papers promise exciting times should suffrage reform be definitely defeated. Count von Spee, who recently in the Prussian House of Deputies, when advocating the shelving of the bill, represented himself to be speaking in the name of those at the front, gets a severe dressing down.

One letter says: "It is arrant impertinence to say that the men in the trenches do not bother abot the suffrage."

Others write: "Wait until we get home. We will see that we get our rights," or in similar terms.

The letters indicate that the determination is pretty general to make sure, first, that the destinies of the home lands shall not be placed in the hands of war profiteers and slackers, and, second, that if they are spared they want to come home to an adequately filled cupboard, reasonable prospects of employment, and no public charity, or they will know the reason why.

HITCH IN CHINESE DEAL WITH JAPAN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, May 19.—The negotiations between China and Japan have not been submitted to the Cabinet for approval. It is understood that a hitch has occurred owing to Chinese insistence on a limitation period for the military convention. The Japanese loan of $20,000,000 has so far not been paid.

After the fall of Chang-to, in Western Hunan, the rebels threatened Chang-sha, but the remnants of the Government forces, together with reinforcements, assembled and defeated them. Therefore Chang-sha is again safe.

The Secretary of the Cabinet informed me today that there was no danger of Lung Chi-kwang, the leader of the Government forces in Kwangtung, being expelled from that province. He has 20,000 troops. The rebel activities from Se Chuan are not taken seriously.

The Government wishes to deal liberally with the southern parliamentarians, but is forced to fight the rebels until they acknowledge the authority of Peking.

RUSSIAN CITIES STARVING.

Bread Ration in Petrograd Said to be Totally Exhausted.

MOSCOW, May 11, (Associated Press.)—The food situation in Petrograd and other large cities of Russia instead of improving with the advent of Spring and river navigation is constantly growing worse.

The bread ration in Petrograd, which had been one-eighth of a pound weekly, now is totally exhausted. Other products are scarce.

In Moscow the food situation is somewhat better. The bread ration is a quarter of a pound and other food is obtainable at high prices. Sugar is scarce.

Conditions in the country generally do not promise an improvement in the food situation in the near future.

BAKU IN FLAMES AS BATTLE RAGES

2,000 Killed and 3,000 Wounded in Struggle Between Russians and Mussulmans.

MOSCOW, May 19, (Associated Press.)—Mussulmans and Bolshevist forces are engaged in a deadly conflict at Baku, on the Caspian Sea.

According to dispatches to the Moscow newspapers 2,000 persons have been killed and 3,000 wounded.

TAKES STEP TO RAISE ARMY.

Moscow Government to Hold Council Presidents Responsible.

LONDON, May 19.—The Russian Government, according to a wireless statement from Petrograd, has sent to all the provincial councils a notice complaining of their failure to take the necessary steps ordered for the creation of a Red Army to defend the councils of the republic against internal and external enemies.

Accompanying the notice was a new decree ordering that measures be taken within a week, in accordance with the decree of April 8. Responsibility for strict compliance with this order will fall upon the Presidents of the respective councils.

SECRET EXPLANATION TO GERMAN PRESS

MOSCOW, May 12, (Associated Press.)—The Smolny Press Bureau publishes a secret circular addressed by the German Government to the German newspapers explaining that the idea of peace with Ukraine being a question of bread is quite erroneous, and that, on the contrary, the German Commissioners have convinced themselves of a dearth of cereals in Ukraine owing to insufficient sowings and the fact that the small property owners have buried their grain. The circular adds:

"The peasants, who are nearly all armed, are hostile to Germany, and commercial relations therefore are nonexistent. It is possible, however, that in the course of our present and subsequent advance greater supplies may be discovered, and that by armed forces better results may be obtained. In any case the hoped-for improvement of our food supplies is exceedingly problematical."

The German Wireless Press of May 17 announces that in view of uncertainty concerning supplies from Ukraine the bread ration will be reduced from 200 to 160 grams, from June 16.

MENACE BRITISH ON TIGRIS.

Turkish Forces in Persia Advancing on Enzeli, Occupy Two Towns.

MOSCOW, May 11, (Associated Press.)—Turkish regulars and Kurds, advancing in Persia, have occupied Soujbulak and Ushnu, south of Lake Urmia, according to newspaper dispatches from Tiflis.

A dispatch from Tabriz says that the Turkish objective is Enzeli, which will become the central base from which the British will be menaced in Mesopotamia.

IRISH HERE CALL FOR AMERICAN HELP

CONVENTION IN AN UPROAR

Threats to Carry Issue Into Politics in This Country and Seek Aid "Anywhere."

The Sinn Fein organizations in this country are going to bombard Washington with petitions in an effort to induce the United States Government to intervene in the Irish situation. This was made known at the second and closing session of the convention of the Friends of Irish Freedom in the Central Opera House, on Sixty-seventh Street, near Third Avenue, yesterday afternoon.

About 1,000 men and women were present and cheered to the echo every denunciation of England. Unlike the session of Saturday, which was to an extent dignified and conservative, yesterday's was noisy and was also openly against Great Britain and all other nations not in sympathy with the Sinn Fein.

The charge was made by several of the speakers that Great Britain had deliberately engineered a plot against the Irish people, which called for the massacre of men, women, and children in Ireland. Two of them intimated in terms which could not be misinterpreted, that unless the United States took a hand in the Anglo-Irish controversy the Administration at Washington would be an accomplice in the plotted assassination of the Irish people.

The speakers included four British subjects, two of them now under indictment in the criminal branch of the Federal District Court of New York; Diarmid Lynch, who was recently deported from Ireland because of his Sinn Fein activities; Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, John Devoy, editor of the Gaelic American, a number of issues of which have recently been excluded from the mails by the Government, and Peter Golden, the last named bringing the crowd shouting to its feet, when he declared that if England "massacres the Irish" in Ireland, "the Government under which we live will have to massacre us."

Threats to Seek Help "Anywhere."

The four British subjects who spoke were Liam Mellows, who is sometimes referred to in Sinn Fein circles as "the general"; Dr. P. H. McCarton, a recently elected member of Parliament; Mrs. H. Sheehy-Skeffington, and Miss Hughes of Canada.

Mellows said that the Irish in America who did not back the Sinn Fein now were a "lot of curs" and that unless the United States intervened on the side of the Sinn Fein "Ireland will be driven to seek help anywhere she can get it." He did not say that he had Germany in mind, but that was what many present interpreted him as trying to convey. Mellows and McCarton are under indictment in the Federal Court charged with attempting to obtain American passports by fraudulent means.

Justice Cohalan made the one conservative speech of the meeting. He urged those present not to lose their heads and went so far as to say that England had just as much right to try to make friends in America as Ireland had. It must be kept in mind, he said, that there were many good Americans who honestly believed that the attitude of the revolutionary element in Ireland was wrong at this time. He said that the proper attitude of the Irish should be one that was neither pro-German nor anti-British, but entirely pro-Irish.

Justice Cohalan's speech was but an incident in a long drawn out session in which not one kind word was uttered in behalf of the allied cause. Statements that the British were committing atrocities in Ireland, that the American newspapers were British controlled, that England was seeking to have American marines landed in Ireland, that every member of Congress who refused to bow to the Sinn Fein propaganda should be defeated next November, and that American troops were to be rushed into the first lines in France in order to release British soldiers to "massacre" in Ireland were cheered long and loudly.

Several times the name of President Wilson was mentioned, but it evoked no demonstration such as that which greeted the heated and excited utterances of most of the speakers.

It was announced in the course of the meeting that some day this week a committee, the Chairman of which is Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, would go to Washington to seek an audience with President Wilson and submit to him a petition requesting the Government to intervene in the Irish situation. Another committee, which will be composed of women, will go to Washington to file a long petition with the members of the Senate and House of Representatives. The Goff committee will present in addition to the petition approved at Saturday's session of the convention, a set of resolutions adopted yesterday afternoon in which among other things it is stated that "a campaign of calumny and falsehood" is being carried on "by English agents in a portion of the press."

Mellows Creates a Storm.

The convention was called to order at 1 o'clock by the Rev. Thomas J. Hurton of Philadelphia. The session began with the reading of several telegrams, one of them from Victor Herbert, the retiring President of the organization, who telegraphed his regret at being unable to be present. He urged a continuance of the organization's work.

The meeting was just getting under way when a sallow-faced, blond-haired man appeared in the gallery. He was "Gen." Liam Mellows. Immediately the whole house was in an uproar. For fully ten minutes the din lasted. Father Hurton was powerless to restore order. The crowd wanted the "General," and so he descended from the gallery into the pit and on to the stage.

His appearance on the stage was a signal for a renewal of the demonstration, and the noise lasted five minutes more. Finally he started to speak. The impression he created was of a man quite angry.

"We meet," he began, "under the shadow of a terrible and impending disaster in Ireland, and I feel that like Nero we are fiddling while Rome is burning."

"That sure is the truth," a man in the audience said, and the crowd cheered its approval.

"We are talking about our past history in America," the "General" added, "while our people in Ireland are about to be massacred by the British Government. The papers say that 500 Irishmen have been arrested because of the discovery of a German plot in Ireland. That is a lie as false as hell. I say that this thing was plotted two or three months ago, and we are only just at the beginning of it now. We see French sent to Ireland to slaughter defenseless Irish people, so that he can redeem the reputation he lost in France.

"I ask you, are we here in America going to sit down and keep our months shut while all this is going on?"

From all over the house came shouts of "No, no."

"The German plot story," continued Mellows, when the uproar had ceased, "was concocted for the purpose of alienating American sympathy, and under the cloak of that prejudice which she hopes to create England expects to do as she pleases in Ireland while the world looks on and laughs.

"The American Government has declared that it entered this war, not for selfish reasons, but for the purpose of freeing the oppressed people of the world, and so far this has been true, but with geographical reservations. If the United States is honest in its declaration, then India, Egypt, Africa, and Ireland should all be included.

Says America Shares Blame.

"This wrong that is going to be done in Ireland is a terrible thing. The forcing of conscription on Ireland is a crime against the whole civilized world, and I say that America by its silence has been, and is still, acquiescing in England's continued domination."

Another noisy demonstration of approval followed this utterance.

"If there is bloodshed in Ireland," Mellows fairly shouted, "and if our men, women, and children are shot down—if there be bloodshed, I say, the blame will rest not alone on the British Government, but also on America, unless America speaks now in behalf of Ireland. By its silence on conscription, and I think the Administration knows the truth, the Administration is condoning the shedding of blood that is to take place in Ireland.

"They say that the Irish are pro-German. I say the Irish people have but one enemy on this earth and that is England, and the Irish are looking outside of England for help, and if the United States refuses help Ireland will be driven to seek help wherever she can get it."

The noisest outburst of the afternoon followed these remarks.

"You people in America," the "General" continued, "are acting like a lot of ours, if you don't speak out now. You can't lie down idly while your people are being slaughtered at home. In Ireland we are not going to sit down.

"Those who say it is treason to speak the truth are not Americans. They are pro-British. Let your Government act for Ireland or stop talking about oppressed peoples. The time to do it is now, or else forces over which we have no control may do so. Even the hand of God may be in it that England may be swept out of Ireland. Thanks to God, the thieving English are going down now."

Tells Irish to Shift Votes.

Mrs. H. Sheehy-Skeffington was the second of the four British subjects to speak. She began by saying that Mellows had left very little for her to say and she indorsed all he had said.

"I was wondering," she said, "if the time will come when American boys will be drafted to massacre in Ireland. You want to take speedy action to see that this does not happen. It is for you to size up the situation and is time for you to act. The time has gone by, I think, for merely respectful petitions, and so on.

"In New York yesterday President Wilson said he was standing by France and Russia, and we are glad to see Russia being helped, for Russia is the only republic that has openly spoken a good word for Ireland. I would venture to point out that Russia has made peace with Germany, yet we have not been informed that the President is pro-German."

Continuing, Mrs. Skeffington said that it was for the Irish in America to influence the Government in Washington, and she suggested as one way of doing it a transfer of the Irish vote from the Democratic to the Republican column. All the Irish resolutions offered in Congress, she said, had been offered by Republicans.

"You are to blame," she said, "if you don't send men to Congress to represent you properly."

When Mrs. Skeffington mentioned the name of Congressman Joseph McLaughlin of Pennsylvania a storm of hisses and "boos" followed from all over the house. Mr. McLaughlin is the President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and is said to disapprove the Sinn Fein policy in Ireland.

"McLaughlin," said Mrs. Skeffington when the hisses had ceased, "has been elected a Representative at Large from Pennsylvania and he has also been elected President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. I suggest that people who elect men of this type are responsible afterward for what these men do. You have got to blacklist these men. Election time is coming and you must watch your Congressman's every move.

"I understand the Irish vote is largely Democratic. Could you not change that next November? Ask the candidates how they stand on Ireland and vote accordingly. I might suggest a delegation to see the President and compel a definite pronouncement on this question for or against Ireland. Silence now is criminal. It is time for the relatives of Irish soldiers and sailors to go to Washington and ask President Wilson what he is going to do about Ireland. If America does not act, then America will be the accomplice in this matter, and will be extending her hand to deal with the assassin of the Irish people."

Mrs. Agnes Newman, sister of the late Sir Roger Casement, who was put to death after he had been landed on Irish soil by the Germans, spoke next. She said she had been shadowed lately by British secret service agents and that a manuscript by Sir Roger had been stolen from her trunk.

Resolutions Ask Government's Help.

John A. Murphy was called upon to read the resolutions which are to be submitted to the President, Congress, Governors of States, and Mayors of the larger cities. The resolutions were adopted. They appeal for "sympathy and support in our efforts to secure action by the President and Congress in favor of the application to Ireland of the President's declarations, which were clearly intended to include all peoples held against their consent under foreign rule."

John Devoy, who seconded the resolutions, spoke at length, and after him came Dr. McCarton, the recently elected Member of Parliament. He said that American soldiers would replace the British in France, while the British shot down the people in Ireland.

"You have been told," he said, "that there is danger of American forces being used in Ireland. The United States Navy is in Irish waters, and England will do all she can to get American marines landed.

"The British may slaughter the Irish people. We are prepared for that. But Ireland will continue to menace the British Empire as long as there is a British Empire, but that won't be long."

Justice Cohalan talked next. When somebody shouted "Our next President," the whole audience shouted its approval of the suggestion.

Miss Hughes, Charles Dolan, Diarmid Hughes, Peter Golden, and John Jerome Rooney were the last speakers. Each spoke about five minutes, and when Mr. Rooney had concluded the convention adjourned.

PRAGUE PUTS BAN ON ALL MEETINGS

Celebration with Treasonable Incidents Causes the Authorities to Take Action.

AMSTERDAM, May 19.—A three days' celebration at the Bohemian National Theatre at Prague, according to advices from that city, led to incidents of a treasonable character. The civil authorities and police announced that severe countermeasures would be taken, including the prohibition of meetings and processions.

The wearing of emblems or badges of enemy colors will be severely punished. The closure of the Bohemian National Theatre is threatened in the event of further incidents of the kind.

ITALIANS COMBAT PROPAGANDA HERE

MAINTAIN ITALIAN MORALE

Plans Complete for Italy-America Day Celebration—High Prices for Boxes at Concert.

Dr. Antonio Stella of 214 East Sixteenth Street, President of the Roman Legion of America, which is the first organization to start a national movement to bring about patriotic unity and support of the war by Americans of Italian descent, and which has opened national headquarters at 165 Metropolitan Tower, issued a statement yesterday, in which he announced:

"The purpose of the organization is to combat German propaganda among Italians, propaganda aiming to estrange Italy and America, which has been re- tions for next Friday's celebration. vealed in connection with the prepara- Through this organization every American citizen of Italian extraction, and every Italian resident in the country of whatever station in life, is invited to take part on May 24, the third anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, in a concerted effort to thwart the Hun's attempt to put Italy out of the war, and thus give the Teuton hordes free access to the Mediterranean and the open ocean."

In reply to a message from Dr. Stella Secretary Tumulty sent this telegram from the White House:

"The President very deeply appreciates the fine sentiments voiced in your telegram in the name of the Roman Legion of America, and he asks me to convey to you and to all those concerned an expression of his cordial thanks. Your generous assurances are most heartening."

To Issue Weekly Bulletins.

The legion proposes to issue weekly bulletins for distribution by mail in connection with a special campaign to be carried on through the aid of the clergy of the country, by which it is expected to reach the Italian laboring people. Branch organizations and societies are expected to cover all sections of the country.

The Italy-America Celebration Committee, of which Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney is chairman, completed arrangements yesterday for the Italy-America Day celebration in the Metropolitan Opera House on Friday night, at which Secretary of War Baker will speak. Mrs. Whitney also made public the list of prominent patrons and patronesses and box holders, some of whom paid upward of $1,000 for reservations. The list includes Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, $500; Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., $600; Mrs. Harmanus B. Duryea, $1,000; Mrs. John Magee, $1,000; Mrs. Goadby Loew, $600; Mrs. William Payne Thompson, $1,025; Mrs. Ambrose Monnell, $1,000; Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, $1,000; Mrs. Henry Clay Frick, $500; Mrs. August Heckscher, $800; Mrs. Mortimer L. Schiff, $500; Mrs. Edward N. Breitung, $1,000, (donated box, to be resold;) Mrs. Peter McDonnell, $550; Mrs. Emanuel Gerli, $550; Mrs. William Lancashire, $1,000; Mme. S. C. Cerebelli, $1,000; Mrs. D. A. Truda, $550; Mrs. Edward Dudley Kenna, $750.

The program, announced at the headquarters of the committee at the Vanderbilt, will include the anthems of all the Allies. Caruso and Scotti will sing one selection, being the duet from Verdi's "Farza del Destine," and Mme. Frances Alda will sing the aria from "Manon Lescaut," and two other selections. Every number on the program is the work of an Italian composer.

It was said that addresses would be made by Henry P. Davison, head of the American Red Cross, who has just returned from the Italian front and knows thoroughly the Red Cross conditions there; Charles E. Hughes, President of the Italy-America Society; Count V. Macchi di Cellere, Italian Ambassador, and Secretary of War Baker.

CAILLAUX PROTESTS DELAY.

Refers to the "Imbecility" of Bolo Pacha's Revelations.

PARIS, May 19.—Ex-Premier Caillaux, who is now in prison awaiting trial by court-martial on a charge of treason, has sent an open letter to his attorney protesting against the delay in bringing his case to trial. He argues that the prosecution has had more than sufficient time to conclude its investigations, and he demands that he be brought before the court-martial at once or be released. The ex-Premier says:

"The imbecility of the so-called revelations of a man while under death sentence has been established. I have been a prisoner four months. I don't complain. I merely state the facts."

This is the first time the official publication of Bolo Pacha's eleventh hour revelation has been referred to in any way by M. Caillaux. The Government has refrained from mentioning the names of persons whom Bolo Pacha attempted to incriminate before he was executed.

to France when they can be obtained here. I am trying to save tonnage so that American soldiers may be brought here with greater rapidity.

"I have lived through days of anguish," M. Boret concluded, "but the horizon is clearing. The time has passed when I am worried as to what the soldiers might have to eat three or four days hence. But I am tired; I am going away tonight to spend the week-end somewhere in France, and when I return on Monday I shall prepare measures which I shall present to the Council of Ministers on Tuesday, fixing the maximum prices for fish and other commodities to replace meat."

Just then the telephone bell rang. Answering the call M. Boret said:

"Put 800 grammes of bread in my grip with two bread tickets, a pound of cheese, ten lumps of sugar and a package of chocolate." These instructions he was giving to his servant.

"One must not trangress one's regulations," the Minister explained to the correspondent as he escorted him to the door.

CITES SOUTH AFRICA AS EXAMPLE TO IRISH

exception, and it was the aim of the British Empire to solve the Irish problem as it had solved the problem in South Africa. Ireland did not need any peace conference to have her wrongs righted, General Smuts added. He advised her to go to the highest Court of Appeal in the empire—the Imperial Conference.

General Smuts said that the British policy of freedom and liberty had resulted wondrously for South Africa, where a new nation was being built up. The armies of his native country, consisting of Briton and Boer, had captured in the war more German territory than all the other armies of all the Allies together.

"They have swept the German flag from the whole of the African continent," the speaker continued, "and on the battlefields of France, they have distinguished themselves in a way which has appealed to the whole British Empire and the world."

General Smuts said that he was sure it was the mission of the Empire which had solved the case of South Africa to solve the dreary case of Ireland.

SAYS IRISH PLOTTING MENACES AMERICA

Endangers Our Transports, London Paper Asserts—Predicts Federal Home Rule.

LONDON, May 19.—The Observer, commenting on the Irish situation, says:

"A brave step has been taken in Ireland for grave reasons. Friday morning Professor Valera, President of the Sinn Fein Party, and many other extremists of the same organization were arrested.

"The reason is that these avowed separatists and pro-Germans have once more been in treasonable touch with the enemy despite the leniency with which they were treated after the last Dublin outbreak, revolt and sabotage. The reality and seriousness of this pro-German plot has been known for some time. In view of Admiral von Capelle's assertion that Germany is assured for years to come of a steady supply of U-boats which never cease their efforts to get in touch with the Sinn Feiners and separatists, this repeated treason must be put down with an unflinching hand and prevented from recurring.

"Americans, with their inborn abhorrence of disloyal anarchism, have hitherto dealt more harshly with pro-German conspirators than we have dealt with them on this side of the Atlantic. Nevertheless, an organized Nationalist attempt is being made to mislead and prejudice American opinion with regard to the whole Irish situation. This attempt will undoubtedly be continued unless it is met with stern and cool discrimination across the Atlantic. It can only help to serve Germany's game in the nick of Germany's time.

Attacks Dillon Manifesto.

"John Dillon, the Irish Nationalist leader, and his friends have made themselves responsible for a malevolent manifesto. It asserts that the British Government is not sincere in its intentions with regard to the Home Rule bill, and that British policy is failing in its promise to Ireland.

"These assertions are without truth. They are either devoid of knowledge or scruple, or spring from that almost irradicable habit of passionate misrepresentation which in every crisis plays its perverse, bitter part in defeating the efforts of the best friends of Ireland to do her good. The Nationalists could have made Ireland one, happy and self-governed, long ago had they the nerve, courage, and sense enough to embrace their full duty on the side of the Allies and repudiate the Sinn Fein.

"We hope that President Wilson and the people of the United States will not be misled by John Dillon's manifesto. We hope they will set themselves fully to understand what the British policy in Ireland really is. It is a plain thing and an honest thing and is the only thing compatible, on the one side, with the war interests of the Allies, while, on the other side, tending steadily to reconcile two breeds and creeds. Without that, Ireland, in wasting and barren agitation, will plunge from one unsettlement to another and there will be no health in her.

"The policy of the Lloyd George government is threefold. It is, first to restore the normal order of the civilized society; second, to apply gradually equal military service, as in England, Scotland, and Wales; third, to bring in the Home Rule bill.

Fighting "Advocates of Chaos."

"For these purposes, Lord French, a famous soldier, proud of his Irish blood, and Edward Shortt, a Liberal, and both home rule advocates, have gone to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant and Chief Secretary. Their primary purpose is to govern. It is to grapple with the separatists, the enemies of all efforts at an Irish settlement and those who are advocates of chaos.

"That is an awkward crux for John Dillon. He knows it, and to cover himself on that issuo he does something else. He actually tries in advance to wreck the Home Rule bill before it can be introduced. He tries to weaken its chances in advance to prejudice the whole political atmosphere against it.

"He suggests that there is no sincere effort to bring it forward. That is not true. He suggests that there is no honest intention to frame it for the best interests of an Irish settlement. That is not true. He suggests that the delay in bringing it forward is malicious because it is avoidable. That is not true.

"What is John Dillon's own position and what is behind his manifesto to America? He is, of course, nominally for the war, but he will not lift an effective finger to help it. He and his fellows unconditionally resist the principle of conscription, though that is a matter of Federal policy as unquestionably within the sole competence of the Imperial Parliament on this side of the Atlantic as in that of Congress on the other side. Can the President and the people of the United States imagine any situation in which any body of Americans in a crisis like this would refuse equal service and defy Congress?

"On these matters of fact, which are absolutely within our knowledge, we have here made three assertions. We beg all America to note it. We urge them to discourage sophisticated partisan rhetoric contrary to fact and deeply disadvantageous to every purpose of constructive good-will on which Ireland's happier future depends. And we say that the true danger is that the Nationalists of Ireland are proving Ireland's worst enemies, partly through obsolete passions lingering from a bygone age and partly through tactical politics, ambiguity, and weakness.

Appeals to President Wilson.

"When Mr. Wilson receives the Nationalists' representatives, will he ask them what they are doing to help? Will he ask them why, if they repudiate the Sinn Fein and disclaim the devil, they hold so many candles to the devil? Will he ask them what they are doing to conciliate Protestantism in the North of Ireland, whence President Wilson derives his origin, and to draw breeds and creeds together to make a nation, which without that must be forever unmade?

"John Dillon and his friends are only adding so far to every single difficulty of the situation.

"While the Lloyd George Government, on the one hand, has to face stubborn opposition from the Irish Unionists to any form of Home Rule, because they believe it would be bad for their country and are strengthened in that belief by all the recent lawlessness and disloyalty, on the other hand, the Cabinet gets no constructive assistance whatever from the Nationalist advocates of self-government. Not in the impracticable temper which the Nationalists are now showing—a temper equally impracticable both on conscription and Home Rule—could the American Constitution have ever been framed or a settlement reached in South Africa.

Old Home Rule Plan Discarded.

"The preparation of the Home Rule bill is in active progress. Time is required that it may be framed with wise and liberal statesmanship. That is the sole reason for the delay which John Dillon seeks to misrepresent.

"The former bill, by admission now universal, was not merely bad, but it was unworkable. Its provisions must be entirely recast in the new measure. Again, it is certain that a Federal system of Home Rule will have to be applied to the whole United Kingdom. Otherwise, the whole legislative machine will break down utterly, and the enormous tasks of reconstruction after the war can never be efficiently carried on.

"That reconstruction must involve every single interest of social, economic, and political concern. The Imperial Parliament cannot do it all, if it is to attend well after the war to wider affairs of the British Commonwealth, and to its proper part in the immense, interknitted transactions that must involve the whole world after the war.

"The British Ministry must have a certain time in which to restore political security in Ireland, to frame its Home Rule bill, to create a cooler atmosphere, and to advance steadily toward equal service.

"The Nationalists will be confronted with the responsibility of modifying their attitude or proving that they are incredible wreckers of the whole comprehensive policy which alone can make Ireland one. Fair play for Great Britain and her government is necessary.

Troop Transports Endangered.

"This matter is as much to America's own interests as ours. The pro-German conspiracy in Ireland endangers in obvious ways the safety of American transports. We are confident that the Government will have the support of the American people in putting an end, as far as Sinn Fein plotting is concerned, to a state of things which President Wilson would not tolerate for a day.

"We are equally confident that the millions of American sympathizers with Ireland will credit the English policy toward that country with those qualities which, (even by admission by the Radical press,) Austen Chamberlain's speech showed the other day—the large-minded outlook, the spirit of high-minded justice, and the unswerving good faith on Home Rule. It is lamentable that John Dillon's manifesto contains not one hint of constructive temper and sagacity."

ITALY'S AGREEMENT WITH JUGOSLAVS

LARGE CONCESSION BY ROME

The new treaty which, according to a statement published yesterday by The Manchester Guardian, has been concluded between Italy and her allies to replace the agreement of April, 1915, under which Italy went into the war, is believed in Jugoslav circles here, to embody in definite form the results of the recent agreement between Italy and the Jugoslavs inhabiting the Adriatic provinces of Austria-Hungary.

The exact terms of the agreement, which was confirmed at the Conference of Oppressed Austrian Nationalities held in Rome early in April, have not been worked out yet in entire detail, the spirit of both sides being strongly against endangering the newly won harmony by possibilities of conflict over details. Much of the matter in dispute may not be finally settled till after the peace treaty.

But according to Professor Pietro Silva, who recently discussed the agreement in The New Europe, the basic considerations were alliance of the two nations against Austria; recognition by Italy of the right of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes to a united and independent national State, to be united with Serbia and Montenegro at the pleasure of its people; recognition by the Jugoslavs of Italy's right to the districts where the Italians are in a majority, this comprising Gorizia, Trieste, and the western half of the Istrian peninsula, together with certain islands off the Dalmatian coast; the constitution of the ports of Fiume and Zara as free cities, and the recognition by each nation of the rights of freedom of culture and judicial equality of Italian minorities in Slav territory and Slav minorities in Italian territory. All disputed questions are to be settled by arbitration.

The treaty of April, 1915, was dictated by the necisity of getting Italy into the war on the side of the Entente; and in Italy by the necessity of bringing the extreme imperialists to the side of the liberals and irredentists who formed the centre of the war party, as well as by fear of foreign consequences. Premier Crlando has lately defended this treaty under the circumstances of those days; for Russia was still imperial, America was not in the war, and even the free nations had to consider strategic guarantees of security.

At that time the agitation in the Jugoslav provinces had not attained its present form of practically unanimous demand for complete separation from Austria and unity with Serbia, and there was a party in Italian public opinion which doubted if the whole movement were not supported by the Hapsburgs to counteract Italian ambitions. At the same time there was fear that if Italy did not obtain the eastern shore of the Adriatic after defeat of the Central Powers Russian influence, through Serbia or otherwise, would dominate there and would give Italy another militaristic and imperialistic neighbor. So the treaty, the substance of which was known at the time, but which was not published in full until Trotsky gave it to the world from the Russian archives last January, gave Italy very wide liberty of annexation in the Jugoslav provinces, including nearly all of Dalmatia.

A natural reaction of this was to make the Jugoslav troops in the Austrian Army fight hard against the Italians, although they usually surrendered in battalions when opposed to the Russians or the Serbs. In the last year, however, Italian public opinion has undergone a distinct change of heart, and in her new treaty, it is understood, has receded from extreme demands.

SOP TO CROATS A RUSE.

Austria Seeks to Set Backfire Against Southern Slav Movement.

Recent cable dispatches telling of the proposal to unite with Croatia-Slavonia, which now enjoys a very limited measure of autonomy under the Magyar crown, Dalmatia, at present a province of Austria but inhabited by Serbo-Croats, are elucidated by extracts from Southern Slav papers sent to this country by the Serbian Press Bureau of Geneva.

The object was apparently to set a backfire against the Southern Slav movement for the unification of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes with Serbia and Montenegro by trying to make concessions to the Croats alone. There was a tendency to promise some sort of reconstitution of the old kingdom of Croatia, united personally with the Magyar crown, the rights of which have been overriden in more recent times by the Magyars, the object being apparently to isolate the Slovenes further up the Adriatic, work up antagonism between the Catholic Croats and the orthodox Serbs, and thus break up the Jugoslav movement.

The leaders of the national movement in Croatia are anxious lest the populace, provoked by the Government's machinations and by the general starvations, should rise at a time when any revolt would easily be put down and would only result in useless slaughter. The local authorities have been doing their best to maintain a sort of working relation with the national Government to ameliorate conditions so far as possible, in order to prevent popular dissatisfaction from rising to the flash point.

Newport Man Wins War Cross.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 19.—Word came today from France that Lieutenant J. Stacy Brown, Jr., U. S. A., of Newport, has won the French War Cross for courage and gallant conduct in action and repelling a raiding party. Lieutenant Brown was a member of the Harvard tennis team several years ago.

Q. What is an Administrator?

A. When no Will is left, the estate of the deceased must be divided in accordance with the law. The surrogate appoints an individual—chosen from the next of kin—to settle the estate. The appointee is called an Administrator. The Administrator may or may not be a person whom the deceased would have chosen. That contingency can be avoided by making a will and naming the Columbia Trust Company or an individual to carry out its provisions. The one so named is called an Executor.

RIDING TO THE FRONT WITH OUR GUNNERS

HOW ONE MAN GOT THERE

By FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

Copyright, 1918, by the Chicago Tribune Company.

WTH THE AMERICAN ARMIES UNDER GENERAL FOCH, May 19.—I rode out from the old positions with the guns and boarded a troop train which brought our battery by devious routes to changes of scenery gratifying both to the vision and the spirit. In our cars we lived on tinned meat and hard bread washed down with swallows of vin ordinaire, hurriedly purchased at the station buvettes. The horses rode as well.

Officers and men, none of us cared for the train schedule, for the simple reason that none of us knew where we were going, and there was little time wasted in conjecture. Soldierly curiosity was satisfied with the knowledge that we were on our way, and with this satisfaction the hours passed easily. In fact, the blackjack game in the officers' compartment had reached a point where the battery commander had garnered almost all of the French paper money in sight when our train passed slowly through the environs of Paris.

Other American troop trains had preceded us, because where the railroad embankment ran close and parallel to the street of some namleess faubourg our appearance was met with cheers and cries from a welcoming regiment of Paris street gamins who trotted beside the slow-moving troop train and shouted and threw their hats and wooden shoes in the air. Sous, 50-centime pieces, franc-pieces showered from the side doors of the horse cars as the American soldiers, with a typical disregard for the value of money, pitched coin after coin to the scrambling mob of children. At least 100 francs must have been cast upon those happy, romping waves of childish faces and upstretched dirty hands.

"A soldier would give his shirt away," said a platoon commander, leaning from the window and watching the spectacle and surreptitiously pitching a few coins himself.

"Hope we get out of this place before the men pitch a gun or a horse to that bunch. Happy little devils, aren't they? It's great to think we're on our way to meet their daddies."

Unnumbered hours more passed merrily in the troop train before we were shunted onto the siding of a little town. The work of unloading was started and completed within an hour. Guns and wagons were unloaded on ways, while the animals were removed from the cars on movable runways or ramps. As each gun or wagon reached the ground its drivers hitched in the horses and moved it away. Five minutes later we rode out of the yards and down the main street of the town.

Women Beg for Buttons.

The broad tires on the carriages of the "heavies" bumped and rumbled over the clean cobbles, and horses pranced spryly to get the kinks out of their legs, long fatigued from the vibrations of the train. Women, old and young, lined the curbs, smiling, throwing kisses, waving handkerchiefs, aprons, begging for souvenirs. If every request for a button had been compiled with our battery would have reached the front with a shocking shortage of safety pins.

Darkness came on, with a fine rain, as we cleared the town and halted on a level plain between soft fields of tender new wheat which the horses sensed and snorted to get at. In twenty minutes Mess Sergeant Kelley from his high altar on a rolling kitchen, announced that the last of the hot coffee had been dispensed. Somewhere up ahead in the darkness bugle notes conveyed orders to prepare to mount and move. With a rattle of equipment and the application of endearing epithets, which the horses unfortunately didn't understand, we moved off at the sound of "Forward."

The Story of an Exchange.

"It seems like a far cry from Honolulu, with the moon playing through the palm trees on the beach," he said quizzically, "to this place and these scenes and events tonight; but a little thing like the flip of a coin decided it for me, and I'm blessing that coin tonight.

"A year ago in January, before we came into the war, I was stationed at San Antonio. Another officer friend of mine was stationed there, and one day he received orders to report for duty in Honolulu. He had a girl in San Antonio and didn't want to leave her, and he knew I didn't have a girl and didn't give a damn when or where I was sent so long as it was with the army. He put the proposition of a mutual exchange, which is permitted under regulations.

"He wanted to take my place in San Antonio and give me his assignment in Honolulu, which I must say looktd mighty good in those days to anybody who was tired of Texas. I didn't think then we'd ever come into the war, and, besides, it didn't make much difference to me one way or the other where I went. But instead of accepting the proposition right off the reel I told Jim we'd flip a coin to decide. If it came tails he would go to Honolulu. If it came heads, I would go. We flipped. Tails won. I'm in France, and poor Jim is out there in Honolulu tending the ukulele crop with prospects of having to stay there some time. Poor devil! I got a letter from him last week.

"Do you know a man knows no keener joy in the world than that which I have tonight. Here I am in France at the head of 250 men and horses and guns, and we're rolling up front to kick a dent in history. The poor unfortunate that ain't in this fight has almost got a license to shoot himself. Life knows no keener joy than this."

It was a long speech for our Captain, but his words expressed the feeling of not only our battery, but our whole regiment from the humblest wagon driver up to the Colonel himself—who, by the way, has just made himself most popular with the regiment by being promoted to Brigadier General. The Colonel is passing upward to a higher command, and the regiment is "sore" on losing him. One of his humblest critics has characterized the event as the first rough trick the "old man" ever pulled.

MONTCLAIR FLIER HONORED.

S. T. Jacob and Comrade Win Cross for Aerial Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 19.—Word has been received here that Sereno T. Jacob of 49 Park Street, with a companion aviator named Connelly, has won the French War Cross and Palm for exceptional bravery. They shot down in flames a German observation balloon.

Following this exploit, they were attacked by five German planes. The American aviators succeeded in sending two of the German planes to earth and drove off the three others.

PLANE NAMED 'OLD JIMMY.'

Comrades Pay Tribute to Captain Hall, Missing American.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 17, (Associated Press.)—The airplane driven by Captain James Norman Hall, which fell when he was flying within the German lines a few days ago, bore the number "17." Now a new "No. 17" has appeared on the American front northwest of Toul.

Immediately under the pilot's seat, on each side, has been placed the inscription, "Old Jimmy." It is a silent tribute from Captain Hall's flying comrades.

Some of the American flyers have adopted for a mascot a tiny mouse-colored jackass, which comes naturally by the traditional army habit of kicking hard about things he doesn't like. The mascot has a special aversion to airplanes. They frighten him, and he and his heels are kept at a respectful distance from the hangars for the protection of the latter. Some airplanes, incidentally, are now appearing with a crude likeness of the kicking jackass painted on their sides.

14 NEW DESTROYERS NAMED FOR HEROES

"Bill" Anthony, the Famous Marine of the Old Maine, Honored in One of Them.

OTHERS DIED IN OLD WARS

Eleven Were Officers Who Served in the Conflict of 1812, Notably on Lake Erie.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Secretary Daniels to-day announced the names for fourteen more of the new destroyers completed for the use of the American Navy in the campaign against the German U-boat. One of them will be named the Anthony, after "Bill" Anthony, of Spanish War fame, a non-commissioned officer of the Marine Corps, who won a promotion for his conduct in connection with the sinking of the old battleship Maine at Havana, when he reported to Captain Sigsbee, "Sir, I have to report that the ship has blown up and is sinking." The others will be named the McDermot, Laub, McLanahan, Edwards, Ballard, Babbitt, Claxton, Hamilton, Bush, Hopewell, Brooks and Delphy.

The soldierly conduct of Sergeant Major William Anthony, on the occasion of the sinking of the Maine, caused its commanding officer, then Captain Charles D. Sigsbee, later Rear Admiral, to recommend that the Secretary of the Navy make Anthony a sergeant. Commenting on Anthony's conduct, Captain Sigsbee wrote:

"At the time of the explosion, I was in the Captain's cabin of the Maine, which was filled with smoke and an intense darkness. On leaving the cabin I was met near the forward door by Private Anthony, who was coming into the cabin to fulfill, on that dangerous occasion, the precise duties of his position by notifying me of the explosion. He ran against me in the darkness and apologized hastily, then reported to me that the ship had been blown up and was sinking. The splendid feature in the case of this service performed by Private Anthony is that, on an occasion when a man's instinct would lead him to seek safety outside the ship, he started into the superstructure and toward my cabin, irrespective of the danger."

Sergeant Major Anthony was born in Albany; enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1875, and with short intervals between re-enlistments served almost continuously until Jan. 25, 1899.

The McDermot is named after Lieut. Commander David A. McDermot, a native of New York, who was in command of the Cayuga from Dec. 2, 1862, until killed in the Sabine Pass on April 18, 1863.

The Laub is named in memory of Midshipman Henry Laub, at whose death in action Congress expressed deep regret, commended his gallantry, and ordered that a sword be presented to his nearest male relative. Midshipman Laub was born in York, Penn, and served under Commodore Perry. He was wounded in the battle of Lake Erie, Sept. 10, 1813, and carried below, where he was killed instantly by a shot which crashed through the cockpit.

The McLanahan is named for Passed Midshipman Tenant McLanahan, who served on the sloop of war Preble in the Mediterranean Squadron, and on various ships in the Brazil, African, and East Indian Squadrons, from 1840 to 1845. While serving on the Cyane he was one of the party besieged with Lieutenant Heywood. He was killed by a rifle shot in the neck. Captain DuPont, in his report, mentioned McLanahan as "gallant, unflinching, and devoted."

The Edwards is named for Midshipman W. F. Edwards, a native of Virginia, who in 1813, while attached to the Argus, was killed in action with the Pelican.

The Ballard is named for Midshipman Edward J. Ballard, who was wounded in the battle of Lake Erie and was killed in action on June 1, 1813, aboard the Chesapeake while in action with the British ship Shannon.

The Babbitt is named for Lieutenant Fitz-Henry Babbitt, who was killed in action between the British ships of war Endymion and Pomona and the U. S. S. Adams, on Jan. 15, 1815.

The Claxton is named for Midshipman Thomas Claxton, to whose nearest male relative Congress awarded a sword and commended his name "to the recollection and affection of a grateful country and his conduct as an example to future generations." Midshipman Claxton died of wounds on board the Lawrence early in the battle of Lake Erie, in which he displayed great gallantry.

The Hamilton is named for Lieutenant Archibald Hamilton, who was attached to the ship United States, Oct. 25, 1812, and served gallantly in the engagement and capture of the H. B. M. S. Macedonian. He was chosen to bear the flags of capture on that occasion to the Navy Department. He was killed Jan. 15, 1815, on board the President in the action between that vessel and the British ships of war Endymion and Pomona.

The Bush is named for First Lieutenant William S. Bush, of the Marine Corps, who served during the War of 1812 and lost his life Aug. 19, 1812, while aboard the Constitution during its engagement with the British frigate Guerriere.

The Hopewell is named for Midshipman Pollard Hopewell, who served on the Chesapeake and was killed in action June 1, 1813, when that vessel engaged the British frigate Shannon.

The Hatfield is named for Midshipman John Hatfield, who volunteered for duty at Lake Ontario, under Commodore Isaac Chauncey, and was killed in the attack on York, Canada, in the War of 1812.

The Brooks is named for Lieutenant John Brooks, Jr., of the Marine Corps, who was killed in the engagement between the American and British fleets on Lake Erie, Sept. 10, 1813.

The Delphy is named for Midshipman Richard Delphy, who was killed in the fight between the United States ship Argus and the British ship Pelican in August, 1813.

RIDGEWOOD MAN WOUNDED.

Dog Mourned Joseph Linhardt at Time He Was Hurt Abroad.

The War Department yesterday notified Michael Linhardt of 580 Fairview Avenue, Ridgewood, Queens, that his son, Joseph Linhardt, had been seriously wounded in action on April 29. Linhardt, who is 26 years old, was drafted in October, and after a brief period of training at Yaphank went abroad.

According to the elder Linhardt, a pet dog, which the soldier left behind him, began to grow disconsolate at about the time his master was wounded. He refused to eat, and moaned almost incessantly. Finally the Linhardt family was compelled to get rid of the animal.

Linhardt, before became a soldier, was employed as a clerk by the F. W. Wesel Manufacturing Company of Brooklyn.

Relatives of Charles Berger Johnson, 30 years old, of 79 Loraine Street, Brooklyn, learned yesterday that he had been wounded. Johnson was a member of the 18th Infantry. When the summons came from his draft board for him to report to Camp Upton, Johnson, who was a sailor, was in Valparaiso, Chile. Two months later, in Wilmington, N. C., he learned he had been drafted, and he went immediately to Brooklyn by rail.

Johnson was sent to France in January. His father, John Johnson, heard from him last in March. He has two brothers in the service, Edwin Johnson, 23, and Lief Johnson, 21. Both are in the Naval Reserve.

CABRERA SEEKING SHIPS.

Reported Attempt to Buy German Tonnage in Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES, May 19. — Luis Cabrera, Mexican Minister of Finance, who has been in South America since early in the year, has been devoting all his time for the last several weeks to problems of navigation. He has paid visits to several Argentine ports, where he has endeavored to buy or charter steamers.

It is persistently rumored that Señor Cabrera has been trying to purchase German steamers interned in the republic.

A dispatch from Buenos Aires Feb. 23 said that the Argentine Government had canceled arrangements made for chartering a steamer to carry cereals to Mexico, explaining that the tonnage was needed to transport fuel oil from the Argentine fields. The dispatch added that Luis Cabrera hoped to substitute two or three small vessels for the one the charter for which to convey wheat and flour to Mexico was canceled.

The Noise That Annoyed A Boiler-Maker

THE foreman of a boiler-making shop had a report to write. He was given a desk in the office. In ten minutes he was tearing his hair. "I can't stand the noise of that clackety-clack typewriter" he declared. "It keeps me from thinking."

The nerves of this man, accustomed to the resounding noises of the shop, could not stand the penetrating clatter of the ordinary typewriting machine. Its rapid fire "tat-tat" at the rate of 400 and more per minute spelt confusion to both nerve and brain.

Perhaps your ears are dulled to typewriter noise and your brain is not conscious of annoyance. But your nerves feel it. Each slender, sensitive nerve takes up sound waves like the antennae of the wireless—receives every click of the typewriter like a blow. And the endless shock-after-shock must tell in time.

For the sake of your own health and your employes', put in the Noiseless Typewriter. More and better work will result. Things will run more smoothly.

And your letters will look better. Aside from its blessed freedom from noise, the Noiseless does beautiful work. It does not rack itself to pieces. It is durable. It is practical. It is speedy. Its type cannot get dirty or out of alignment. It is a real typewriter.

We'll gladly put the Noiseless in your office for your own stenographer to try. No obligation is involved. Telephone or write.

Broken Feet and Broken Promises

The Chinese, who, the world over, are noted for their truthfulness, kept their promised word and broke their women's feet. Two simple applications of their beliefs.

We do not go quite as far as this pagan practice of breaking children's feet to make them beautiful, though we pay tribute to vanity in less honest forms.

There was no deception in the Chinese practice. A short foot was a beautiful foot, but it passed beyond the limits of usefulness, when broken. We still cling to the idea that we may pinch our toes and remain foot free.

Don't Let Your Children's Feet Shame You

"Right Shape" shoes are not fads or the development of any peculiar idea in orthopaedic science. Just years of honest interest in children's welfare, put into a strong, sensible last, which permits the development of the little foot on the lines nature intended.

W. S. S. War Saving Stamps

Of course, we have all asked ourselves how it could be possible for the Government to make anything toward war expenses from stamps sold through stamp machines, it must pay such a lot for the machines.

It unquestionably does. And unless the returns are counted in the millions and hundred millions, these machines will not pay. But they have a peculiar silent appeal which seems to pluck at the passing elbow, and must have presented themselves in this guise to the authorities. Any scheme depends on the man in the street, for its success. Let's help.

HAVE YOU A SWEETHEART,

Soldiers use Foot-Ease

Son or Brother in training camps in the American Army or Navy? If so, mail him a package of ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath. The American, British and French troops use Allen's Foot-Ease, because it takes the Friction from the Shoe and freshens the feet. It is the greatest comforter for tired, aching, tender, swollen feet, and gives relief to corns and bunions.

The Plattsburg Camp Manual advises men in training to shake Foot-Ease in their shoes each morning. Ask your dealer to-day for a 25c. box of Allen's Foot-Ease, and for a 2c. stamp he will mail it for you. What remembrance could be so acceptable?

1,000,000 BELGIANS STRIKE AGAINST FOE

Refuse to Work for the Germans Even When Threatened by Starvation.

KEEPS BACK FIGHTERS

Soldiers Forced to Do Work Behind the Lines Ordinarily Falling to Laboring Men.

BOSTON, May 19.—One of the greatest strikes in the history of the world is now being fought out in Belgium, where 1,000,000 members of labor unions refuse to work for the Germans, even when threatened by starvation, according to Lieutenant Henri de Man of the Belgian Army, a member of the Executive Board of the Belgian Federated Trades, who addressed the Boston Central Labor Union tonight.

"This unyielding refusal to bow to the will of the invaders, even in the face of bribes of wages three and four times those prevailing before the war, has resulted," Lieutenant de Man told the delegates, "in forcing the Germans to keep whole army corps out of the fighting lines to attend to the various tasks behind the lines that ordinarily would fall to the lot of the working classes.

"The people of Belgium have refused to do any of the work or maintain any of the industries since the war started, despite the fact that all kinds of wages are offered. They would rather starve than work for the Germans, and they would starve were it not for the relief that has been sent from here and other places. The food rations that are served are the minimum amount that can be given and keep a person alive."

In one city of 60,000 persons, food was kept out for a week, but when the authorities in charge saw the manner in which the people were slowly dying of starvation without complaint, this order was revoked, as the Germans did not dare allow any more crimes to be piled on them than those of which they were already guilty.

PLAN FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Council of Churches Sends a Message to 60,000 Clergymen.

A Memorial Day message to 60,000 clergymen has been sent by the Federal Council of Churches in America and the General Wartime Commission of the Churches in regard to the observance of Memorial Day and the Sunday preceding. The message follows:

> Upon this occasion we shall honor not only the heroes of the past but also those who at this hour are fighting even greater battles in our behalf—battles in which, with God's blessing, we shall win for men and nations the world around the unchallenged exercise of those rights of justice and liberty which our fathers won for us.

With the message go recommendations looking toward a celebration of Memorial Day by each congregation that will bring home to every man, woman and child in it the true meaning of the war. It is recommended that on Memorial Day special arrangements be made for opening the churches for prayer and that, at an hour fixed to insure the attendance of as many of the community as possible, special services be held. To obtain the participation of the entire community in this observance of the day full co-operation is urged by all the churches in the community with other community forces. In conclusion the communication to the churches says:

"It is also suggested that in all churches there should be read the names on the honor rolls of the church and the President's proclamation concerning Memorial Day, and that prayer should be offered for all those in any branch of the country's service, whether military, naval, medical, religious or industrial; for the allied nations, for the peoples against whom we contend, that they may come to seek the true greatness of nations in righteousness and good-will, and for the swift victory of justice and the establishment of righteousness and peace among all the peoples of the earth."

Resort Has Its Real Opening, with No Disorder.

Coney Island had its real "opening" yesterday, when more than 100,000 persons journeyed to the shore. The transit facilities were taxed to handle the crowds. Thirty extra policemen were on duty, but they had little to do, as there was no disorder.

There were reports about Coney Island that the extra policemen had been sent to watch enemy aliens and see that they did not pass the "dead line," which has been designated as Surf Avenue. The police, however, made no attempt to single out possible enemy aliens.

OPPOSES RIVETING RECORDS

Bethlehem Manager Says They Cause Waste of Workers' Time.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 19.—S. Anderson, General Manager of the Bethlehem Steel Company's Shipbuilding Yards, Marine Department, at Sparrow's Point, is opposed to further efforts on the part of his men to break the existing rivet-driving record now held by Charles Knight, a negro. He says that many hours and the labor of hundreds of men are lost by attempts to break records.

"Knight could break his own record tomorrow if I'd let him," said Mr. Anderson, "but I'm not going to let him. The other men leave their jobs by the scores watch the performance and there's no way to stop them. By breaking records we lose time at building ships."

The manager suggests that a prize be offered to the man driving the most rivets in six months. This would tend to speed the work.

ENTERTAIN GEN. BELL.

Stage Folk Give Performance in Honor of Camp Upton Commander.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., May 19.—The largest audience the Liberty Theatre ever held attended the entertainment given tonight by Private Irving Berlin in honor of General Bell. More than seventy actors came from New York in a special train and were given a reception at the officers' club and dined at the barracks of the cantonment headquarters detachment.

On the bill were the Lee children, of moving picture fame; Harry Fox, Carl Randall, Adele Rowland, who sang a song especially written by Mr. Berlin; the Dooley brothers, Al Jolson, Ann Pennington, Lillian Lorraine and a chorus of girls from the Midnight Frolic; "Frisco" of the Follies, Eddie Cantor, Dorothy Jardon, who sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise"; the Six Brown Brothers, Fred Stone, Fay Bainter and a chorus of girls, and Will Rogers.

Mr. Berlin, accompanied by the orchestra, six pianos, and a double quartet of soldiers, sang two songs about General Bell. After the last number the entertainers gathered on the stage to hear an address of thanks by the General. He said his men were like the stage folk because both did a great deal of walking and because they never knew where they were going "from here."

The party was accompanied from the city by Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Harris, Sam Forrest, and Mike Selwyn.

BASEBALL AS WAR TRAINING.

It Makes Our Men Proficient at Bomb Throwing, Pershing Says.

OMAHA, May 19.—Baseball and football have made Americans apt at the war game, General Pershing says in a letter just received by Captain C. E. Adams, former State Commander of the G. A. R. Captain Adams and General Pershing are old friends.

"The avidity with which American soldiers are entering into the activities of the war on the battle line is astonishing to European armies," the letter said. "In the matter of grenade and bomb throwing the Americans become proficient in but a few days' drill. I attribute this in part to the American games, football and baseball."

STIRRED BY SOLDIERS' DEEDS

Mrs. Belmont Tells of Fortitude of Our Men in France.

A description of the work of the Red Cross in France and of the life of the American soldiers in the trenches and the billets was given in the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall yesterday by Mrs. August Belmont. She related many of the experiences she had in her five months' visit to France last Winter, and she said that after seeing wounded American soldiers come back from the trenches, she had decided that those described as "slackers," because they fail to do their part to aid in carrying on the war, ought to be classed as "murderers," because their efforts are causing the loss of lives by lengthening the war.

Mrs. Belmont said that there were three supreme thrills for the visitor to France, thrills that awakened in every visitor an admiration for the spirit of the American armies. One was the sight of American soldiers marching to the trenches singing and unafraid; one was the courage and silence of the American soldiers who were brought back wounded; and the other was the sight of maimed American soldiers in the hospitals, singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and struggling to stand at attention whenever a band in the courtyard played the national anthem.

GET SLACKERS IN RAID.

250 Found on East Side Must Answer as Delinquents.

Assistant District Attorney James A. Smith raided a dozen places on the east side yesterday, including a hotel and two Turkish baths, in a quest for draft delinquents. About 800 men were found, and of these 250 were served with subpoenas to appear at the office of the District Attorney this morning for examination. Twenty-five other persons, including one woman, were held in $500 bail each as material witnesses.

Mr. Smith was accompanied on the raids by Inspector Robinson, acting Captain Donovan, twenty-five detectives from the First Inspection District, and several members of the Vice Squad. Most of the places raided were Chinese restaurants in Second and Third Avenues, Delancey, East Thirteenth, and East Fourteenth Streets. Ninety-four men in one of the bath houses were unable to produce registration cards.

CALL FOR RADIO STUDENTS.

Major Sanctuary Wants Recruits for Signal Corps School.

Major E. N. Sanctuary has telegraphed the Central Recruiting Bureau of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense that he would like to meet by appointment several hundred young men who are willing to enter the Signal Corps Radio Schools at once. Men of draft age not in the current quota are eligible. The minimum education is a high school, or equivalent. College men are particularly desirable.

Major Sanctuary will be at the Recruiting Bureau, Room 615, Hall of Records Building tomorrow at 10 A. M. Men desiring to take advantage of this call would do well to fill out the blanks today which may be had by applying to the Mayor's Committee.

Argentina Burns Corn; Can't Ship It

BUENOS AIRES, May 19.—The highest quality of maize grown in Argentina for many years is being burned today as fuel in the industries of the country. The scarcity of shipping prevents the sale of the maize at profitable prices. The crop this year was a bumper one owing to the Government's exhortations to the people to till their land. Maize is now selling at $15.30 gold per ton for use as fuel.

MAY CLEAR UP GEM THEFTS.

Young Negress Suspected of Robbing Riverside Drive Homes.

Lillian Lee, 17 years old, a negro woman of 42 West 136th Street, was locked up yesterday morning at the West 133d Street Station, charged with grand larceny. The police say that the arrest may clear up a number of robberies in Riverside Drive and the upper west side. The Lee girl, the police charge, answered a number of newspaper advertisements calling for servants. After staying a short time she would disappear with valuables. The thefts became so numerous that Acting Captain Richard McKenna decided to insert a number of "servant girl" advertisements and posted men at the houses named.

Yesterday morning detectives were watching at an apartment at 42 West Seventy-seventh Street, where the Lee girl came in response to an advertisement. The girl was arrested, and later identified at the Fourth Branch Bureau, according to the police, by Mrs. F. Ballenberg of 548 Riverside Drive as the servant who disappeared from her apartments with $800 worth of jewelry and other articles. Mrs. Ballenberg made the specific charge of grand larceny against the negress. Other homes robbed in a similar manner were those of City Judge James A. Allen, 312 West Eighty-third Street, where a $1,000 diamond ring was stolen, and Mrs. Angus Hopkins of 133 Riverside Drive, where $220 in currency and $600 worth of jewelry was taken. The police recovered the diamond ring, which they say the Lee girl gave to Lester Brown, a negro, of 133 West 133d Street, who was locked up charged with receiving stolen property.

Daughters of Revolution's Service.

The annual memorial service of the Washington Heights Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held last night in the Chapel of the Intercession, Broadway and 155th Street. Rev. Marlow H. Gates, rector of the chapel, spoke on the work of women in the war. The meeting was attended by 150 members of the chapter, headed by Mrs. Samuel J. Kramer, President of the chapter.

NEGRO REGIMENT IN ACTION.

Hayward's Command Now on the Battlefront.

A dispatch from France yesterday, stating that two negro soldiers, members of an American infantry regiment, had beaten twenty-four Germans, killing half of them, was the first intimation that the 15th New York Infantry, now the 365th United States, had got into action. The 15th, a New York City regiment composed exclusively of negroes, is commanded by Colonel William D. Hayward, formerly Public Service Commissioner, and was the second unit from this city to reach France.

The regiment was organized two years ago, and for a time had hard work getting recognition by the State. It was the first of the New York National Guard regiments to reach war strength of 2,002, and later when the Government decreed 3,605 as the mimimum regimental personnel, the negro outfit was first to reach those figures.

What Our Red Cross Is

The American National Red Cross is, by Act of Congress, the official medium of communication between the people of the United States and their Army and Navy.

The President of the United States is the President of the Red Cross.

The War Department audits its accounts.

The work of the Red Cross for the war period is directed by a War Council created by President Wilson on May 10, 1917.

In a statement announcing the appointment of the War Council, the President said:

> "The best way in which to impart the greatest efficiency and energy to the relief work which this war will entail will be to concentrate it in the hands of a single experienced organization which has been recognized by law and by international convention as the public instrumentality for such purposes. Indeed, such a concentration of administrative action in this matter seems to me absolutely necessary, and I hereby earnestly call upon those who can contribute either great sums or small to the alleviation of the suffering and distress which must inevitably arise out of this fight for humanity and democracy, to contribute to the Red Cross."

The Red Cross organization is world-wide

The American Red Cross today is world-wide. It reaches into every American village, and overreaches all national boundaries. There are chapters in our insular territories and in practically every Allied and Neutral country in the world: in Hawaii, the Philippines and Porto Rico, in Cuba and Guatemala, in London and Paris, and the Eastern countries.

A year ago there were 562 chapters in the United States and 486,194 members. Today there are 3,551 chapters, 11,000 branches, 50,000 auxiliaries, 22,000,000 adult members, and a Junior Membership comprising a large proportion of the school children of the land.

Red Cross ideals

The strength of the Red Cross is in its ideals. The War Council expresses these ideals in three great aims:

1. To be ready to care for our soldiers and sailors on duty wherever and whenever that care may be needed.
2. To shorten the War—by strengthening the morale of the allied peoples and their armies, by alleviating their sufferings in the period which must elapse until the American army can become fully effective abroad.
3. To lay foundations for an enduring peace—by extending a message of practical relief and sympathy to the civilian population among our Allies, carrying to them an expression of the finest side of the American character.

The American people are translating these ideals into facts—into money and personal service. Last June the War Council asked for $100,000,000, and the people pledged $110,000,000, of which $108,000,000 has thus far been collected—collected at probably the lowest cost of collection in the history of such undertakings.

The Red Cross active workers are estimated at millions, and they are doing almost everything known to commerce and science, from bookkeeping to surgery, from knitting socks to feeding American prisoners in Germany.

The generosity of the American people keeps pace with the fast-growing scope of Red Cross activities. The growth of Red Cross has been so amazing, the multiplication of its activities so rapid, that few can be expected to know all that Red Cross means to the world in this hour of the world's need. Many who are active in one Red Cross endeavor are unfamiliar with scores of other Red Cross pursuits.

How Red Cross is organized

The great secret of Red Cross effectiveness is organization. Millions of people are working together through the medium of an organized machinery which co-ordinates the work of each with the work of all, and transmits the vast quantity of finished products to the people who need them. Thus benevolent emotion is turned into practical aid.

The organization co-relates and directs the work of the chapters, co-operates with the Army and Navy in relief measures, supports relief work abroad, recruits the personnel for overseas service and forwards to its agents in foreign lands the relief supplies produced by the chapter workers or purchased in the market.

Red Cross administration in the United States is decentralized. Red Cross is too vast to be completely administered from one spot. It would disintegrate under its own weight.

So the country is partitioned into thirteen Divisions, and there is a fourteenth Division for the territorial, insular and foreign chapters, with National Headquarters as the co-ordinating force. In each Division there is a manager and his staff, to whom the chapter officials are responsible, and the chapter workers deal directly with the Chapter Officers. The organization is military in its well ordered effort, but quite nonmilitary in its democratic equalities, for the chapter worker is quite as important as the National Headquarters official. The Red Cross is organized for efficiency, not for display of authority.

Volunteer service

All of the Division Managers, and many of those on their staffs, are volunteers. Unpaid service is the general rule in chapters, divisions, and at National Headquarters. Most of the department heads in Washington are volunteers.

Service at National Headquarters

Washington Headquarters is a type and sample of the sort of service that Red Cross commands all over the country, high talent without remuneration. The staff is drawn from all parts of the country, made up of men and women experienced in large affairs, with various talents, each fitted into the department where his or her particular talent serves best.

The treasurer of the Red Cross is the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States.

Civilian relief work is directed by one of America's ablest experts in social service work. Men of wide experience in purchasing, warehousing, and shipping conduct these several activities of Red Cross.

Noted physicians and surgeons constitute the Advisory Medical Board, and some of the most distinguished nurses of the country, the corresponding Committee on Nursing Service.

Every dollar of the war fund goes to war relief

Red Cross affairs are economically administered. Every penny has been spent under an appropriation by the War Council after careful study. Membership dues pay the entire cost of operation, with a large balance for the handling of disaster relief and other work.

The work of women

In all the volunteer service of Red Cross none is more notable for devotion, none so notable for extent as that which the loyal women of America are giving in their chapter work. It is estimated that there are two million of these women, many giving most of their time to this work, all giving unstintingly. It is they who do the handiwork of Red Cross; its surgical dressings, hospital garments, knitted garments. To meet the demand for these articles, appropriations of $11,000,000 for raw materials have been necessary so far. During the month of April, 1918, the women of the country produced approximately

25,000,000	surgical dressings,
400,000	hospital garments,
500,000	knitted garments,
400,000	pieces of clothing for refugees, and many other important and useful articles.

The chapters are performing other great tasks. They are helping dependent families of soldiers and sailors. It is estimated that 100,000 such families are receiving help from the Red Cross at the present day.

Co-operation with the Army and Navy

Officers of the Army, the Navy and the United States Public Health Service are assigned to National Headquarters of the Red Cross to ensure a thorough understanding at all times of the ways in which Red Cross service can be most helpful.

By order of the Secretary of War, a Red Cross representative and an appropriate number of assistants are accredited to each camp and cantonment, to each division of the army in the field, and to all army base hospitals. These Red Cross men, and others attached to naval training stations and hospitals and working in co-operation with the military authorities, provide emergency hospital and other supplies where needful, keep the men in the hospital in touch with their families, and in many other ways add to the comfort and morale of our men.

Red Cross commissions abroad

Red Cross Commissions operate in France, Belgium, Italy, Greece, Serbia, Russia, Roumania, Palestine and Great Britain. The Commissions and their staffs are in the theatres of war, co-operating with the Army and Navy forces and with the military and civil authorities of the Allied Countries; co-operating also with other relief agencies, avoiding duplication of effort and confusion of purpose, assisting other agencies and assisted by them.

As in Headquarters at home, so on the Commissions, are men and women of great ability, using their talents and their experience where they are most needed.

These Commissions estimate the budgets for foreign relief, and the appropriations are made by the War Council after carefully scrutinizing and sometimes amending the budgets.

What the Red Cross does

The story of Red Cross accomplishment and its plans for the future will be told in more detail in other statements. Here are some of its principal activities, which suggest the importance and scope of its work:

- Organization of base-hospitals and ambulance companies,
- recruiting and training of nursing personnel for service in the army and navy medical corps,
- production of surgical dressings, hospital garments, refugee clothing, knitted goods, emergency supply service for our Army and Navy at home and abroad, sanitary service around cantonments,
- care of dependent families of soldiers and sailors,
- study of the problem of crippled soldiers and sailors,
- canteen service for troops en route,
- feeding of American prisoners in enemy countries,
- casualty information,
- service to convalescents,
- disaster relief,
- and relief for our Allies, including canteen work, tubercular work, hospital supply service, ambulance and hospital service, dispensaries, recreation centers, reconstruction of homes and villages, maternity work, repatriation of refugees, rehabilitation of mutilated men and many other forms of service.

The Red Cross supplements the work of the Army and Navy. The Red Cross War Council is endeavoring in every way to increase the effectiveness of the whole program of relief by the utmost co-operation with the Commission on Training Camp Activities, the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Y. W. C. A., Y. M. H. A. and other great patriotic agencies.

Red Cross Chapters have statements showing in detail how the War Fund is being expended. Ask your Chapter for these statements.

BURLESON DENIES COLONEL'S CHARGE

Has Not Discriminated Between Newspapers Nor Aided Hearst Service, He Asserts.

RETORTS ON ACCUSER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Postmaster General Burleson tonight, taking up the challenge thrown down by Colonel Roosevelt last week, again entered the controversy which has been waging over the alleged discrimination by the Post Office Department against publications which uphold the war, but which have told the truth about the Administration's failure to conduct the war efficiently, to quote the allegation of Colonel Roosevelt.

The Postmaster General's statement follows:

"I have waited patiently for Mr. Roosevelt to substantiate his statement made in the morning papers of May 8, to the effect that the Postoffice Department was using the Espionage act for political purposes by 'punishing papers which uphold the war, but which told the truth about the Administration's failure to conduct the war efficiently,' and by failing to 'proceed against powerful newspapers which opposed the war or attacked our Allies, or directly or indirectly aided Germany against this country, as those papers upheld the Administration and defended inefficiency.'

"Mr. Roosevelt's reply of May 11, which he then termed 'preliminary,' in the main evades the issue presented, and is thoroughly misleading. He names The New York Tribune, Collier's and the Metropolitan Magazine in a way which has created the impression that these publications have been the objects of improper discrimination by the Postoffice Department.

"This Department has taken no action against Collier's.

"This department has taken no action against The Tribune.

"In exposing German propaganda early in the war, the department brought to public attention typical seditious matter which was being circulated throughout the country. It made available to newspaper men its files disclosing such disloyal matter. The Tribune promptly availed itself of this opportunity and gave helpful assistance, for which patriotic service I personally thanked one of its staff correspondents.

Hard's Article in The Metropolitan.

"The department has taken no action against The Metropolitan Magazine. With respect to this magazine, the incident referred to by Mr. Roosevelt occurred after the magazine had passed through the mails, and not a copy offered for mailing failed of transmission. The facts with respect to this matter were made public in a statement by the Solicitor, which appeared in the morning papers of March 10.

"Mr. Roosevelt's contention that The Metropolitan Magazine was injured from that incident is unfortunate. It cannot be said that the magazine lost sales on that account at that time. On the contrary, more copies of the March issue were sold, on account of the publicity given the matter. The injury, therefore, must have followed as a result of public disapproval of the matter contained in that issue. I have yet to learn of a patriotic reader, unless it be Mr. Roosevelt, who approved the publication in that issue of the article, 'Is America Honest?' by William Hard. This department received a large number of letters from widely separated sections of the country characterizing the publication of the Hard article as bad from every viewpoint. Some claimed it was unpatriotic, others that it violated the Espionage act, and still others that it was treasonable.

"If Mr. Roosevelt means that I should repair the injury (?) to the magazine by joining him in commending the 'Hard' article as desirable literature for forwarding the war aims of the Government, I cannot accommodate him.

"I am reliably informed that Germany highly appreciates the Hard article—so highly, in fact, that her propagandists have translated it into German, Spanish, Portuguese, and the Scandinavian languages, and are now flooding Mexico, South America, and other countries with copies of it. Mr. Roosevelt could hardly add to the injurious effects of this article should he now have it reproduced in The Congressional Record in full, with its disgusting illustrations, accompanied by his express approval, thus giving it free and unlimited distribution.

"So much for Mr. Roosevelt's first charge. Now what of his second?

Roosevelt and Hearst.

The press of every complexion should always have the widest latitude for criticism of the acts of all public officials. This principle is constantly kept in mind in the administration of the Espionage act and disposing of complaints made thereunder.

"The Postoffice Department has received possibly more complaints from the public alleging that Mr. Roosevelt's articles were in violation of the Espionage act than it has against the Hearst newspapers. No matter published by either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Hearst has come to my attention which, in my opinion, warranted action by the Postoffice department under the Espionage act against either of them.

"All but two of the articles in the Hearst papers referred to by Mr. Roosevelt were published before the passage of the Espionage act (June 15, 1917,) and some of them before our entry into the war. The Postoffice Department can hardly be expected, even by Mr. Roosevelt, to take action against a paper for the publication of matter which was printed and circulated before the passage of the law. The two articles specifically mentioned appeared in The New York American of July 27 and Nov. 22, 1917. Mr. Roosevelt is not a lawyer, and, however one may disagree with these two articles, it is confidently asserted that, if Mr. Roosevelt had advised with a lawyer of even second rate ability, he would have been told nothing could be found in these articles in violation of the Espionage act.

"Mr. Hearst, through his vast newspaper circulation and writings along lines familiar to the public, and Mr. Roosevelt, with the prestige of an ex-President of the United States, writing along entirely different but equally well-known lines, have each said things, whatever the motive, that a casual reader might believe were in conflict with the Espionage act. But those whose responsibility it is to enforce this law do not believe a case would be made to stand against either of them in the courts.

"The law must be administered as it is found. Any layman can read the facts, as stated in the opinion of the court in the department's case against Watson's paper, The Jeffersonian, (Congressional Record of Aug. 22, 1917,) and see that it was very different from Mr. Roosevelt's case against Mr. Hearst.

"If Mr. Roosevelt means to intimate that I was instrumental, directly or indirectly, in obtaining for Mr. Hearst or any company or association with which he is connected a restoration of news or cable facilities which had been withdrawn from him by the allied Governments, he is in error. I will say further I know of no one who performed such a service for him.

The Brisbane Telegram.

"As to the telegram to Arthur Brisbane—I quote from Mr. Roosevelt: 'Mr. Burleson says of Mr. Hearst's alter ego that he 'congratulates the people of Chicago because they are to have the benefit of Mr. Brisbane's able and unselfish efforts for justice and freedom and true democratic government.'"

"The telegram sent was as follows:

From press reports, I note that you are to be the editor of the new Herald and Examiner, and I congratulate the people of Chicago that they are to have the benefit of your able and unselfish efforts in furtherance of the progress of the city and the development of the new paper, and I indulge the hope that it will always stand for justice, freedom and the principles of true democratic government.

However this telegram may have been handled or whatever its effect, the purpose in sending it was far from that charged by Mr. Roosevelt.

In conclusion, to those who have the will to launch assaults against public officials who are conscientiously discharging their duty, I commend a careful reading of the eighth stanza in Tennyson's "The Grandmother."

The eighth stanza of Tennyson's "The Grandmother," to which Mr. Burleson refers, reads thus:

And the parson made it his text that week, and he said likewise,
That a lie which is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies,
That a lie which is all a lie may be met and fought with outright,
But a lie which is part a truth is a harder matter to fight.

ASSAILS HOHENZOLLERNISM

Prof. Van Tyne Says German State Recognizes No Moral Obligation.

Professor C. H. Van Tyne of the University of Michigan spoke last night in St. Andrew's M. E. Church, Seventy-sixth Street, near Columbus Avenue. Dr. Armand de Lille, who was sent to this country to tell of the work of French physicians and surgeons in connection with the French civil population, was also to speak, but was unable to be present.

Professor Van Tyne, who studied for three years in Germany, said that even the textbooks of the schools were, and are, filled with military spirit.

"Even the arithmetics," he said, "give examples in terms of soldiers and marching, and so the Germans grow up filled with the military spirit and submission to the Hohenzollerns. The much-lauded contentment of the Germans before the war, which so greatly impressed American tourists, was nothing more than depression caused by submission to the family which reigns by divine right.

"In 1900 the German Emperor said, 'Nothing must be done in this world without the intervention of Germany.' That the State has no moral obligation has been the belief and the philosophy of Germany from the time of Frederick the Great to the present time. Germany is not so much condemned because it is at war but because of the way of it. Worse than invasion is the destruction of the moral structure. Perhaps no better illustration of the difference between autocracy and democracy can be given than that when Germany wished to be pleasant to and compliment this country some years ago, she sent us a bronze statue of the Hohenzollern autocrat, Frederick the Great; but when France wished to show her strength of feeling for America, she sent us a splendid statue of Liberty."

GEN. SIBERT TRANSFERRED.

Detailed as Director of Gas Service of the Army.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Major General William L. Sibert, who commanded the first division of American troops sent to France with General Pershing, has been relieved of command of the Southeastern Department of the army, and detailed as Director of the Gas Service of the United States Army. His headquarters will be in Washington.

General Sibert is an engineer officer, and built the Gatun locks of the Panama Canal, in recognition of which service Congress promoted him to the rank of Brigadier General. While in France with General Pershing he had every opportunity to study the uses to which gases have been put by the allied armies and the Germans, and he is regarded as peculiarly fitted for the new post.

On his return from France recently General Sibert was assigned to command the Southeastern Department, where most of the training camps are situated. His successor there has not been announced.

TROOPS GOING ABROAD FAST

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt Says the Program Is Exceeded.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 19.—"The people who give the most are not we who go down in our pockets and fill the 'war chests.' It is the mothers of the men of the army and navy who are going to win the war on the soil of Europe, who are giving the greatest contribution to the war," declared Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in this city today.

Secretary Roosevelt was the speaker at a large meeting in the municipal auditorium and an overflow meeting that marked the opening of a community campaign for the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, and the Young Men's Hebrew Association war funds. He said Navy Department officials believed the navy had the U-boat situation well in hand.

"It is a mighty significant fact," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that today we are getting to the other side more men, better convoyed, than we had hoped for in the program that was laid down last Fall."

Last Service in St. Bartholomew's.

Yesterday's service was the last that will ever be held in the present St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church, at Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. Until the new church is completed the services will be held in the chapel. St. Bartholomew's Church was established in 1835 in a small building in Lafayette Place. In 1876 the congregation outgrew the church and moved into the present quarters, on which the workmen begin demolition today.

BIG PLANE TO FOLLOW RESNATI'S BODY HERE

Caproni Machine Will Bring Captain D'Annunzio and Sergeant Gino.

ESCORT OF 150 CADETS

Flowers Will Be Scattered from the Airplane Along the Way—Service in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

When the body of Captain Antonio Silvio Resnati of the Royal Italian Flying Corps, who was killed on Friday while testing a new biplane at the aviation field at Mineola, is brought from that place to New York tomorrow, it will be followed by the giant Caproni airplane in which the Captain made his record flights between Langley Field, Va., and New York. The machine will bring Captain Hugo d'Annunzio and Sergeant Pilot Gianfelice Gino. A picked escort of 150 cadets will accompany the body to this city. It will arrive at the Pennsylvania Station at 2 o'clock and will be carried to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where services will be held. The cortège will pass up Fifth Avenue, and while it is moving Captain d'Annunzio in the Caproni will fly low and scatter flowers along the way.

The American military authorities have charge of the funeral, which will be attended by a guard of honor composed of French, British, Italian, and American army officers. Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club of America; Henry Woodhouse, and August Post will represent that organization. The body of Captain Resnati will be placed in a vault in Calvary Cemetery and will rest there until the end of the war, when it will be shipped to Italy for burial in Milan, his native place.

Friends of Captain Resnati, who have been sending flowers in care of the various officers of the Italian Military Mission and the Aero Club, are asked to send their tributes to the Pennsylvania Station, where a room has been reserved.

CAR ROWDIES FINED.

Magistrate Imposes $25 Sentence on Ten Bronx Youths.

Ten young men, ranging in age from 18 to 24 years, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct in a trolley car bound from Clason Point to the Bronx terminal of the line last night, after they had terrorized the women and children aboard and used profane language. They were later found guilty by Magistrate Barlow in the Men's Night Court and fined $25 each, with the alternative of serving five days in the Workhouse.

The complainants were Detectives Blake, Carlin, and Sanders, who had been detailed by Inspector O'Connor of the Seventh Inspection District to keep an eye on defenders of this character. Each of the officers testified that when they boarded the car they found the ten rowdies attempting to seat themselves in the laps of the women passengers and threatening to assault any of the male passengers who might show an inclination to interfere. In passing sentence Magistrate Barlow said it afforded him great pleasure to impose the maximum sentence.

JOWETT QUOTES PRESIDENT

Reads in Westminster Chapel a Letter on American Altruism.

LONDON, May 19.—The Rev. Dr. J. Henry Jowett, former pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York, addressing his congregation, including Premier Lloyd George, in Westminster Chapel today, said he recently had received a letter from President Wilson. It was almost entirely private, but there was a passage regarding which he was glad of the opportunity to give publicity. President Wilson wrote:

"While deeply sorry that you are leaving America, I am glad you are taking away an intimate knowledge of our people which will enable you to interpret them on the other side of the water.

"One of the most difficult things I have attempted is to convince foreign ministers and foreign peoples that the purposes and ideals of the people of the United States are, indeed, unselfish and altruistic.

"I am sure you are as convinced of that fact as I am, and my great pleasure in expressing such purposes has been derived from the confidence that I was really speaking for my people."

CONDEMN DAVID S. JORDAN.

Cornell Class Demands Cancellation of Graduation Certificate.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 19.—Twenty-five members of the class of 1873 at Cornell University, one of the earliest classes graduated from that institution, meeting here tonight at the forty-fifth reunion, called upon the Cornell Board of Trustees to revoke the certificate of graduation granted to David Starr Jordan in 1872 and the degree of Doctor of Laws granted to him in 1886. The resolution follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the class of 1873 of Cornell University that the Board of Trustees should be and hereby is requested to rescind and revoke their action in allowing a certificate of graduation to David Starr Jordan and any degrees confered upon him."

Mr. Jordan's pacifist opinions and his attitude on the war are the basis of this action.

Ask 500 Stenographers to Help.

The Mayor's Committee of National Defense announced yesterday the immediate need of 500 women stenographers for patriotic work two hours on certain nights each week, who are to be known as the Volunteer Typist Division. Miss Ruth Eisen, assistant secretary of the divison, has enrolled seventy-five girls during the week. The services of this division have been offered to the American Red Cross in the campaign for funds which begins today. Volunteers for the stenographic division may apply to the headquarters of the committee, Hall of Records, Chambers and Centre Streets.

FOR VOTE ON PROHIBITION.

But Lewis Is Against Federal Amendment—For State Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 19.—Attorney General Merton E. Lewis, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, said tonight:

"I favor the restoration of the State convention, the delegates to which should be chosen at a direct primary in order that the party's principles and policies may find authoritative expression. The party's candidates should be bound by the party's declaration of principles.

"I favor the submission to the people of the State of an amendment to the Constitution of the State providing for prohibition. The local elections in this State in April have shown that there is a marked difference of opinion among the voters of the State upon this subject. Believing, as I do, that the Federal Constitution is an instrument of union and should not be made an agency for discord, and that its provisions should be those only which are generally acceptable, I am opposed to the ratification of the pending national amendment.

"Americans have one present and compelling duty. We must win the war. Every man in responsible public position must subordinate every ambition to this one purpose. Tyrannical power, wherever it exists, must be destroyed. This State has done much, but much remains to be done. Our enemies confront us on the fields of France and Italy, and are among us in our daily life. Their sympathizers, propagandists, and parties must be sought out and dealt with as public enemies, without hesitation, faltering, or delay. I have endeavored to do my share in the past, and shall continue to do so. We must win the war or submit to slavery."

Lieut. Dawson Saved by Wings of Airplane Striking Buildings.

FULTON, Ky., May 19.—Lieutenant Joseph Dawson of Park Field, near Memphis, Tenn., was severely injured here today when he fell 1,500 feet in an army biplane, landing on two automobiles and a wagon in the street. The fall came after Lieutenant Dawson, who was here in the interest of the Red Cross campaign, had executed two loops and was coming out of the second, his machine going into tail spin. The aviator's life was saved by the wings of the machine striking two buildings and thus breaking his fall.

NEGRO AND WIFE LYNCHED.

Georgia Mob Hangs Two More for Complicity in Murder.

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 19.—Hayes Turner, negro, and his wife, Mary Turner, accused of connection with the murder of Hampton Smith, a Brooks County farmer, and the wounding of his wife at their home near Barney last Thursday night, have been hanged by a mob. Two other negroes, Will Head and Will Thompson, were lynched Friday night.

Turner was lynched last night at Okapilco River, in Brooks County, after the mob had learned that the plot to attack the Smiths was made at his home. Mary Turner, who was said to have had Smith's watch in her possession when captured, was hanged at Folsom's Bridge on Little River today.

Citizens still are searching for Sidney Johnson, who, according to Mrs. Smith, fired the shot that killed her husband. Feeling continues high in Brooks County, and it is believed Johnson also will be lynched if captured.

Thompson and Head were caught Friday night. Head confessed his part in the crime, saying that he stole Smith's gun and gave it to Johnson. What part, if any, Thompson played in the murder, is not known here.

Turner and his wife, former tenants of the Smith farm, recently quarreled with Smith over an account, and this is believed to have led to the attack. The shot that killed Smith was fired through a window in his home. Mrs. Smith, wounded by another shot, rushed out into the yard, where she was beaten by the negroes, who fled after robbing the place. Mrs. Smith was found several hours later by neighbors.

TO DISCUSS WAR PROBLEMS.

Hylan and Whitman Among the Speakers at Mayors' Conference.

ALBANY, May 19.—All cities in the State are now confronted with so many pressing war problems that it has been decided to devote practically all of the ninth annual meeting of the New York State Conferences of Mayors and Other City Officials to consideration of these questions. The conference will be held in Newburg on June 11, 12, and 13. In a statement sent today to all the cities the Advisory Committee says: "We have had to dispense with most of the entertainment features."

The City of Newburg will entertain the municipal officials on Wednesday evening at a "Hoover Dinner." The speakers will be Mayor John F. Hylan of New York, who has been asked to discuss why the Empire State cities should have authority to own and operate public utilities, and Governor Charles S. Whitman, who will speak on "New York State in War Times."

TEN INJURED IN CAR CRASH.

Broadway Car Rams Hamburg Avenue Car at Williamsburg Bridge.

Nine passengers and a conductor were injured early yesterday morning when a Broadway car ran into a Hamburg Avenue car at the entrance to the tunnel at the Manhattan end of the Williamsburg Bridge. The trolley pole of the Hamburg Avenue car had become detached as the car was entering the tunnel, leaving the car in darkness, and the Broadway car rammed the rear of the darkened car.

Patrolman Thomas Fitzgerald of the Clinton Street Station, stationed on the bridge, was in the centre of the structure at the time the accident occurred. He hurried to the scene and commandeered a number of passing automobiles, and had the injured taken to the squad room of the Clinton Street Station, a few blocks away.

The injured, who were all attended and sent home, were:

RAILROADS GET NEAR BILLION FOR UPKEEP

> In determining what additions and betterments, including equipment, and what road extensions, should be treated as necessary, and what work already entered upon should be suspended, please be guided by the following general principles:
>
> From the financial standpoint it is highly important to avoid the necessity for raising any new capital which is not absolutely necessary for the protection and development of the required transportation facilities to meet the present and prospective needs of the country's business under war conditions. From the standpoint of the available supply of labor and material, it is likewise highly important that this supply shall not be absorbed except for the necessary purpose mentioned in the preceding sentence.
>
> Please also bear in mind that it may frequently happen that projects which might be regarded as highly meritorious and necessary when viewed from the separate standpoint of a particular company, may not be equally meritorious or necessary under existing conditions when the Government has possession and control of railroads generally and therefore when facilities heretofore subject to the exclusive control of the separate companies are now available for common use whenever such common use will promote the movement of traffic.

If these instructions were followed, the estimates should be conservative. Nevertheless they were carefully revised and further reduced, as shown by this statement.

The approval of these budgets is necessarily tentative. It was necessary to ascertain as speedily as possible what improvements were required and the probable cost and grant authority to proceed with those most urgent so that the work could be done promptly and before next Winter. The subject is still under careful study, with a view to postponing or canceling any work which can reasonably be deferred; and the financial condition of the carriers and their ability to repay the money borrowed will require curtailment in many cases. On the other hand, it is certain that there will be considerable additions from time to time to the amounts required for particular improvements which were not foreseen when the budgets were prepared. But on the whole, he figures given in the statement are as definite and accurate as it is possible for any estimates for such vast and varied work to be.

ROADS' NEEDS MET, BANKERS BELIEVE

Expenditures for Cars and Locomotives Expected to Prevent Recurrence of Congestion.

Railroad men and bankers who were largely interested in financing the carriers, before the Government assumed responsibility for railroad management, said last night that the size of the appropriation announced by Director General McAdoo appeared adequate for the immediate needs of the roads. Information supplied to them that the aggregate sum asked by the railroads had been reduced about 27 per cent. did not alter their opinion. It was said that, in forming their budgets, the managers of many railroad companies had sought more money for equipment and extensions than they had expected to get under a rigid paring down process at Washington, and for this reason the elimination of nearly $350,000,000 from an application for $1,287,000,000 was by no means unsettling.

Railroad operating men expressed as much satisfaction over the fact that the appropriation had been established definitely in dollars and cents as over the billion-dollar allotment. The management of individual lines would no longer have to speculate over the amount of money available for them, it was pointed out, and now could go ahead in carrying out plans for increasing facilities urgently needed to move traffic necessary to the conduct of the war.

The immediate use of funds, it may be said, will be for the addition of thousands of new freight and coal cars and locomotives to existing equipment, and rush work in laying new tracks and stiffening road beds to the end that there may be no repetition of last Winter's congestion on the lines to seaboard. Estimating $45,000 as the price of a locomotive of the proposed new standard type and $3,000 for a freight car, the appropriation of practically $480,000,000 for equipment will cover the 30,000 cars recently ordered and 3,000 locomotives. The Director General recently closed contracts with locomotive builders for 1,025 locomotives.

"Work on these orders is under way," said an officer of one of the leading locomotive companies last night, "and deliveries will begin before the end of July. There is no reason to doubt that the orders already placed will be completed by the early Autumn."

According to the reoprts from Washington, it was said that the sums fixed upon could be regarded as tentative and might be revised upward. This possibility the railroad men found encouraging in respect to the equipment situation, especially as the car building program as viewed by the railroad managers will need to be expanded before long. It is expected that fully 100,000 cars and locomotives up to 3,000 will be ordered before the Railroad Administration completes its plans for the adequate handling of war-brought traffic.

Steel Needed for Equipment.

The railroad men and equipment builders, in discussing the outlook, said that the allotment of funds by no means went all the way toward solving the problems which are entailed in the situation of the carriers. The manufacturing capacity for cars, locomotives, rails, &c., is available, they asserted, but the matter of steel and labor has yet to be taken into account. With the pressure on the steel mills growing daily from shipyards and munition plants at home and abroad, it still remains something of a question whether the Government will be able to spare all the material needed by the equipment companies for rush work on the new orders. The War Industries Board has taken up the problem with the steel makers, and it is understood that railroad needs played a part in the conference last Friday between the board and leading steel men in Washington.

Bankers who were reached last night were unwilling to discuss the financial aspects of the railroad budgets, pleading that they were not familiar with details of the Government's plans. The Washington interpretation of the program, as given in last night's dispatches, was that the carriers would be expected to finance themselves as far as possible through the sale of securities, which, if necessary, would be purchased by the Government.

Details of the Allotments.

A study of the Government's budget for particular railroads discloses some interesting facts. The New York Central applied for $70,712,087 for additions and new equipment and received all but $41,000 of the full amount. The Pennsylvania system, comprising both the lines east and west of Pittsburgh, sought nearly $150,000,000 and received $112,656,050, which was about 24 per cent. less than asked for. The Reading sought about $34,500,000 and received 27 per cent. less than this amount. The Baltimore & Ohio's application was cut down slightly more than 5 per cent., the Atchison's approximately 19 per cent., the New Haven's about 16 per cent.

The Great Northern, one of the great Granger lumber and mining railroads, in respect to traffic, stood out from the group of major carriers because of its modest application for $14,582,988, all of which was granted by the Railroad Administration. A survey of the statement as a whole showed that the roads of the East, where the wear and tear of export traffic during the last four years has affected roadbed and equipment, reported a relatively greater need for funds than most of the carriers of the West.

Bankers who have recently held conferences with Controller of the Currency John Skelton Williams, who is looking after the financial matters in connection with the Government's administration of the railroads, said yesterday that Mr. Williams's idea was that the railroad companies should finance themselves to the extent of their ability and that the Government should supply them with funds only in cases where accommodations could not be obtained through the regular channels.

The understanding here is that the roads will not put out long-term bond issues, but endeavor to finance themselves by short-term notes. It is the expectation and desire of Secretary McAdoo and Mr. Williams that the banks should aid the roads as much as possible as far as current needs are concerned. As an illustration of the plan of financing adopted, it will be recalled that last week the New York Central Railroad, which had to meet a maturity of one-year notes of the Michigan Central, obtained a loan of $6,000,000 at 6 per cent. from the Central Trust Company. It was also reported that recently the Pennsylvania Railroad negotiated a loan of $2,000,000 at 6 per cent. from the Guaranty Trust Company.

At the beginning of the year it was estimated that the railroad maturities of 1918 would aggregate about $250,000,000. Since the first of January there have been paid off $45,000,000 of New Haven notes, $10,000,000 of New York Central notes, and several smaller issues. It is now estimated that the maturities for the rest of the year will be from $150,000,000 to $175,000,000.

$1,100,000,000 A YEAR NEEDED, SAID J. J. HILL

In 1907 He Declared That Sum Should Be Spent Annually for Five Years.

The announcement that the Railroad Administration has approved of the expenditure of nearly $1,000,000,000 for additions, betterments, equipment and extensions of the rail carriers of the country, recalls the statement made about eleven years ago by the late James J. Hill, the nation's foremost railroad authority, that at least $1,100,000,000 should be spent annually for new construction and improvements. It was in January, 1907, that Mr. Hill, in discussing the inadequacy of new railway development to keep pace with business expansion declared that the expenditure of at least $5,500,000,000 was required for the five years from 1907 to 1912.

Statistics indicate that during the ten years from 1906 to 1916 the expenditures of the railroads for improvements aggregated $5,100,000,000, most of which was made in the earlier part of the decade. It is the opinion of railroad men today that Mr. Hill's estimate was none too large and that the rail carriers and the country at large would be much better off today if the requirements, as indicated by him, had been fulfilled.

The construction of new roads has been relatively small since the outbreak of the war. In 1914 it amounted to only 1,532 miles, and in 1915 the mileage was 933, the smallest amount built in any year since the civil war. In 1916 there was constructed 1,098 miles and in 1917 979 miles.

Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company and until recently associated with the Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, in explaining the lack of improvements in recent years, said:

"The railroads had not kept pace with the growth of the country and could not bear the added burdens of the war. Lack of credit born of Governmental regulation had wrought this finish. The decline of railroad credit following the enactment of the Hepburn act and the amendment giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to suspend rates was continued with deadly certainty. Rates moved ever downward, expenses piled ever upward, uneconomic laws and multiplied regulations consumed revenues. Banks and investors looked elsewhere, and the unremitting conflict of the public wrought its own undoing. Now the Government has stepped in to assume the burden of its own creation. What the result will be remains to be seen."

BENEFITS AT THEATRES AID WAR CHARITIES

An unusual number of special Sunday performances, most of which were given for the various war charities, took place in the theatres last night. At the Playhouse, where the weekly free vaudeville program for soldiers and sailors was given, the unannounced appearance of John McCormack as one of the entertainers aroused a crowded house to an unusual pitch of enthusiasm. Mr. McCormack, who was introduced by Grace George, sang four songs. Cabaret entertainers from Shanley's filled out most of the program.

These vaudeville performances, Miss George said, will now be suspended temporarily, and in their stead regular performances of the New York plays will be given, one a week, in the theatres in which they are playing. Three plays have already been given in the last five or six weeks, and in most cases they have proved more popular with the men than have the vaudeville shows. A performance of "A Tailor-Made Man" will be given at the Cohan & Harris Theatre next Sunday night, and "Seventeen" will be played at the Booth on the Sunday following.

The players of two of Oliver Morosco's productions, augmented by Grace La Rue and one or two other entertainers, presented a diversified program at the Morosco Theatre in aid of the Stage Women's War Relief, and were successful in raising about $3,500. The events of the evening, which were designed more for the theatrically sophisticated than for the casual playgoer, were grouped under the general title of "Gosh! We're All Friends," and included travesties and bits of vaudeville. The major portion of the entertainment was written by Mr. Morosco, who also made his first appearance as an actor in the course of the evening.

At the Hippodrome a concert was given under the auspices of the Brownsville Labor Lyceum, netting about $7,500, in addition to $800 for the Red Cross. Among those who appeared were Mischa Elman, who made his final appearance of the season; Nina Morgana, coloratura soprano, and Morgan Kingston, tenor.

The newly formed American Committee for Devastated France, the members of which are now working in France under the leadership of Miss Anne Morgan, gave their first benefit performance at the Shubert Theatre to a good-sized audience. Among those on the program were Yvette Guilbert, Percy Grainger, and Clifton Crawford. An address was made by Martin W. Littleton.

A fair-sized house attended a program given at Carnegie Hall under the auspices of the Central Executive Committee of the Russian Federation and the Russian Unity League, the proceeds going to the Russian Relief Fund. The soloists were Eva Didur, Adamo Didur, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, and Sascha Jacobsen.

GIVE PLAY FOR ANNA HELD.

In honor of Anna Held, and to enliven the tedium of her recovery from a severe illness, there was a special performance of the playlet, "A Maid of Honor," at the Hotel Savoy yesterday morning. A squad of stage hands and scenic mechanics arrived with a vanload of the needed properties and took possession of the grand ballroom, where a stage was built for the performance.

Josephine Victor enacted "Joan of Arc," supported by Clifford Brooke, Guy Sazierses, and Walter Reynolds. Anna Held was rolled to the temporary theatre from her suite in a reclining chair. Except her physician, Dr. Donald McCaskey, and two nurses, there were no other auditors. Miss Held was greatly affected by the performance and its many suggestions of her native land. After the play she sent a large bouquet of roses to Miss Victor.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Joseph Klaw, son of Marc Klaw, will make his debut in the producing field with the presentation of "Oh, What a Night!" a musical comedy written by Harry Delf, an actor now appearing in "The Rainbow Girl."

A one-act play, "The Thriller," will be offered as a curtain-raiser to Elizabeth Tyree Metcalfe's play, "Starting Something," when that piece is presented at the Vieux Colombier Wednesday night. Four performances of the two plays will be given in aid of the Red Cross.

Eva Fallon will succeed Emilie Lea this evening in "Fancy Free," which moves tonight to the Casino. The performance a week from tomorrow night will be for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Sally Cohen-Rice, who has been in retirement since the death of her husband, John R. Rice, two years ago, is about to return to vaudeville in a one-act comedy.

A professional matinee of the Pelham naval show, "Biff! Bang!" will be given at the Century on Monday, June 3. "Biff! Bang!" will begin its engagement at the Century with a matinee on Memorial Day.

GOOD PICTURES SEEN IN 'RESURRECTION'

DETAILS RECEIVE ATTENTION

There are some remarkably good pictures in the screen version of Tolstoy's "Resurrection" presented at the Strand Theatre this week, and the photoplay offers a good story. Also Pauline Frederick as Katusha acts with skill and her support cannot be complained of. The production seems to have been made with some regard for the time and place of the scenes, and commendable attention was paid to details in the staging of the action. But the play at the Strand is not Tolstoy's "Resurrection." It is simply a moving picture play in which Tolstoy's story is used. His analysis of human beings, his presentation of altering and developing character, his purposeful exposure of social and political conditions does not reach the screen.

The story of how Katusha, beginning as a simple country girl in the home of two unmarried sisters, became the dupe of Prince Nekludov, and of how, driven out by the sisters, the girl went to spiritual death and was reclaimed later through the instrumentality of the repentent Prince and Simonson, the prophet, is familiar to many. The various episodes in Katusha's life are dramatically set forth, and the scenes of the girl before the court, in prison, and on the way to Siberia are well done, but one unfamiliar with Tolstoy's work would probably wonder at the sudden transformation in Katusha's character without the operation of sufficient discernible influence.

The fourth installment of the Outing-Chester pictures is on the Strand program this week and, for many, it will prove one of the most interesting of the offerings. It is entitled "A Coorial on the Orinoco," and it may be said that a coorial is a boat. Native Venezuelan life and scenery make good photographic subjects.

Those for whom facial fluidity are elements of comedy will enjoy Smiling Billy Parsons in "Matching Billy."

David Graham Phillips's "Old Wives for New" furnished Cecil B. DeMille material for the photoplay at the Rivoli this week, and, apparently, Mr. De Mille made the most of his material. As a work of careful and realistic staging, "Old Wives for New" is an accomplishment, and many will enjoy it because of this, but the question is, was the material worth all of the effort put upon it by director and actors? The story is about a man who had preserved his youth and taste for refinement while his wife had permitted herself to become a frowzy old frump whom even the best of husbands could not love and admire. The husband meets a charming young woman and wants to separate from his wife by amicable divorce so that he can marry the other woman. But the wife maintains her rights and the other woman insists on a divorce, so the problem cannot be solved nicely and develops all sorts of complications and difficulties before the man is finally free to marry the woman of his second choice. There is undoubtedly material for a real study of life in "Old Wives for New," but, because of Mr. Phillips or Jeanie Macpherson, who wrote the scenario, the picture play as presented is not much more than a rather highly colored melodrama.

Corrine White and Eunice Henschell, two of the pupils of the Luigi Albertieri Ballet School, dance Paderewski's "Minuet a L'Antique" very prettily at the Rivoli in another of John Wenger's pleasing settings.

The feature at the Rialto this week is Edward Clark's play, "De Luxe Annie," made into a movie with some switching of the sequence of the original story and the omission of the rather unconvincing prologue and epilogue presented on the stage. "De Luxe Annie," as many must know, is about a girl who, suffering from amnesia, becomes an accomplished crook and is brought to recognize her husband, home and friends only after an operation on her head. The piece is faithful to the principles of melodrama rather than to medical science and will no doubt be enjoyed by those who don't care about such things as possibility and coherence in plot. Norma Talmadge, as the heroine, plays her part well and, in general, the acting is good.

"Up in the Air," in which the Katzenjammer Kids and their well-known comic supplement associates appear in animated drawings, is about as stupid and devoid of art in idea and execution as most of the other Katzenjammer products.

The topical reviews at the several moving picture houses this week are interesting. They show the incidents of the inauguration of the Air Mail Service between New York and Washington, pictures of the ships—the Vindictive and the Iris—and some of the men who participated in the Zeebrugge raid, and activity connected with the recent fighting in Picardy.

The Committee on Public Information, whose first feature film, "Pershing's Crusaders," opens at the Lyric tomorrow night, has announced that no war tax will be added to admissions. The boxes at the initial showing here will be occupied by the members of the Liberty Film Committee, which has charge of the exhibition, and others known in social and military circles.

CANTOR'S FIRST CONCERT.

Joseph Rosenblatt, cantor of the Hungarian congregation Ohab Zedek, and the possessor of a phenomenal tenor voice, faced a great audience in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon at the first of a series of concerts that he is to give over the country at large. He recently refused an offer to sing with the Chicago Opera Company, but he has been heard in New York as a singer of Jewish folksongs and traditional airs of the Jewish faith. These were among his best in yesterday's program, ending with the famous "Elli, Elli," which drew an ovation from the crowded hall and stage.

Cantor Rosenblatt, who still looks a young man under his black cap and dark beard, pleased the audience with an old ballad, "Auf dem Pripichuk," and two arrangements of his own. He sang in English the Russian Gretchaninow's "Lullaby," dropping his voice to a pianissimo of rare carrying power. In his less familiar operatic airs there was more than a suggestion of Caruso in the "Questa o Quella," from Verdi's "Rigoletto," and the "Donna e Mobile," from that work, which he gave as a final encore. Accompanied by Andre Benoist, he also sang in French the "Elegy" of Massenet, and in Russian an air from "La Juive."

DISAPPOINTED BY FREMSTAD

Singer Pleads Illness at Red Cross Benefit in Brooklyn.

Saying she was too ill to sing, Mme. Olive Fremstad disappointed an audience, gathered last night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. She was scheduled to sing a number of selections in connection with a concert by the Garde Republicaine Band, which arrived here several days ago.

The singer appeared at the music hall apparently in good health, and said she was indisposed a short time before she was to sing her first number. Some persons in the audience thought Mme. Fremstad's indisposition might have been aggravated by the small audience, the house being about half filled.

The concert was a benefit for the Brooklyn Chapter of the American Red Cross, and the announcement was made that all who desired might have their money refunded. Only a few visited the box office to receive their admission fees.

Are You Run-Down?

WHEN your system is undermined by worry or overwork—when your vitality is lowered—when you feel "any how"—when your nerves are "on edge"—when the least exertion tires you—you are in a run-down condition.

Your system is like a plant that is drooping for want of water. And just as water revives a drooping plant—so Wincarnis gives new strength and new vitality to a "run-down" constitution.

Because Wincarnis possesses a fourfold power. It is a Tonic, a Restorative, a Blood-maker and a Nerve-builder—all in one. Therefore, Wincarnis promotes new strength, new blood, new nerve force and new vitality.

The benefit begins from the first spoonful. You can feel it doing you good. You can feel your whole system being surcharged with new vitality. That is why so many Doctors have recommended Wincarnis.

The ingredients of Wincarnis have been recommended by the medical profession for years. Its formula is on every bottle. You will find it pleasant to take, and easy to digest.

Wincarnis has been famous in Europe for a third of a century. Thousands have testified that it has restored them to health and strength when they have been Weak, Anemic, Nervous or Run-down.

IF ONLY FOR OUR OWN SAKE.

President WILSON gives a definition of the German peace feelers which ought to put an end to all talk about considering them, so far as such talk is merely honest and stupid and not deliberately treacherous and intentionally German. He has "tested" these German proposals, he tells us, and has "found them insincere." "I now recognize them for what they are;" and what are they? Here is the definition:

> An opportunity to have a free hand, particularly in the East, to carry out the purposes of conquest and exploitation.

That is, they will, or say they will, make certain concessions in France and Belgium if Russia and Rumania are turned over to them to do as they like with. And the President answers, "I intend to stand by Russia as well as by France."

This is not mere altruism, either. We are fighting for mankind, of course, but specifically we are fighting for that part of mankind which is comprised within the borders of the United States. We are fighting to preserve its independence and its institutions. And we know that neither the independence nor the institutions will last long if the great predatory power of modern times is permitted to extend its sway from the Baltic Sea to the Pacific Ocean. That is what will follow, as the night the day, if we are so foolish as to abandon Russia to her mercy.

It makes no difference in this respect whether Russia is brave or cowardly, whether she has abandoned us or stood by us, whether she is ruled by saints or madmen. The present German Empire, comparatively circumscribed in extent and strength, has assailed and sought to overpower the rest of the world. If she is made virtually limitless in extent and strength, as she would be if European and Asiatic Russia were absorbed by her, she will be able in the future to accomplish with ease the overthrow of the rest of the world; and the first blow she will aim in that event will be at the American Continent. It is our own fault if we let her make herself irresistible. If we do, we will be her first victims. And if we let her have her way with Russia, irresistible she will be within ten years.

A SAFE PASSAGE.

Three large ships with cargoes of American wheat for Switzerland have arrived safely at a port on the west coast of France. They were escorted by warships of our navy. Other carriers, protected in the same way, are crossing the Atlantic. Our Government has promised to help the Swiss with supplies of grain. Some weeks ago the Germans sunk a Spanish ship with a load of wheat released here for Switzerland as she was approaching the French Mediterranean port of Cette. In reply to protests, the Berlin Government would give no safety guarantee effective in less than three months for other grain carriers that might follow. Secretary LANSING remarked in a note to the American Minister at Berne that so much time would be required "to "modify existing orders to submarine "commanders under which American "ships carrying wheat for Swiss re-"lief are to be torpedoed." In the same note he said:

> This means that Germany is still maintaining an armed blockade of Switzerland, and that American wheat on American ships heretofore tendered to Switzerland cannot go forward unless these ships are prepared to fight their way through the blockade.
> This challenge the Government of the United States is prepared to meet.

And so the three large freighters whose safe arrival on the other side is now reported left an American port at once, accompanied by warships that could "fight their way through."

Notice had already been given by the Government at Berlin that if a submarine, not having received a restraining order, "should sink one of "these vessels, the responsibility will "fall not upon the German Govern-"ment, but upon the President of the "United States." German newspapers characterized Secretary LANSING's statements as "fables about a German blockade." But they have not spoken of the sinking of the Spanish ship Sardinero in the "safe passage" leading to Cette. She had on board 3,000 tons of foodstuffs for the Swiss, and her papers, showing clearly how she was employed, were thoroughly examined by the submarine commander before she was sent to the bottom.

For ships loaded with the grain granted to Switzerland there is safety only in the protection of escorting gunboats and destroyers. A so-called guarantee of immunity from Germany would not be effective after the proposed delay of three months. The Belgian Relief Commission's record of losses shows how much such guarantees are worth, even when officially signed and accompanied by directions concerning routes to be taken.

LIBERTY LOAN DETAILS.

One star differeth from another in glory, and each banking district has something to plume itself upon in its record on the Liberty Loan. Minneapolis heads the list with an oversubscription of 172 per cent., New York foots the list with 124 per cent. oversubscribed, and the imposing total of $1,114,930,700. That is one-quarter of the loan, and approximates tenfold the generous subscription of Milwaukee. Chicago contributes the second largest sum, $608,878,600. Each of the twelve districts makes an honorable record, and the lower districts often made a greater effort than those that stand higher on the roll.

In no district is there the least sign of slacking in the effort against the enemy of the world. On the contrary, the referendum against Kaiserism gains in significance as it is examined in detail. There is no parallel in the world for the popularity of this loan. Other loans have been taken mainly by high finance. Even in France and England, and conspicuously in Germany, the banks have financed the Government. The British record of one subscriber in each thirteen of population is about the best foreign record. Our record is one in each six. The share of our banks was in assisting their depositors to subscribe rather than in directly subscribing themselves. Thus one bank in this city sold $30,000,000 worth to about 140,000 depositors, another $3,500,000 to 60,000, another $12,000,000 to 20,000, and so through the list. In some of these cases the totals by the banks are less than half the total for the previous loan, and the number of subscribers increased in greater proportion.

There is a double advantage in this sort of subscription. If the banks financed the Government they could not so easily finance trade and industry, and it is of the first importance that ordinary trade should be accommodated as well as the Government. Secondly, the money which comes from depositors is mostly scattered funds which otherwise would go unused or be wasted. By binding themselves to take the bonds out of pocket money or future earnings the depositors have bound themselves to economy, and have imposed habits of thrift which will fortify the nation's finances mightily.

The figures of individual distribution for the third loan will be more striking, when available, than for the second loan, for which the Treasury has furnished details just as it gives out the totals for the third loan. For the second loan there were issued 7,646,460 coupon bonds of $50 each, and 4,444,452 for $100 each. Of registered bonds the largest number issued was 244,935 for the $100 pieces. These are marvelous figures when it is considered that before the war the number of investors in bonds of all sorts was but a few hundred thousand, and in Government bonds hardly any at all outside of the banks. Millions now are clipping coupons for the first time, and showing that they do not understand the process. It is an education of the most beneficial sort, and with political as well as financial significance. A nation with its bonds held by millions is founded on a rock.

While the figures are given for the big banking districts, there are only incomplete returns for the smaller divisions of the country. Perhaps it never will be known which city, town, or county was most generous toward the Government. Hartford claimed the leadership with 251 per cent. of its quota. Our own Yonkers claimed that its 252 plus per cent. was the leader of the nation. But Whitewater, Kan., with a population of 518, contributed fivefold its quota—and there are others, no doubt. If it is a question of individual leadership the palm may be given, until claimed by another, to the Nebraska farmer commended by President WILSON. LINN F. HANSON sold his farm, divided the proceeds between his church and the Red Cross and a Liberty Loan subscription, and enlisted against the boches.

It is an example worthy of imitation, and should be studied by many who do not appreciate that the Nebraska farmer understands the meaning of this war better than they. If we do not win it our property is forfeited and our institutions are wrecked. Germany is fighting for domination or downfall, for commerce by conquest, for annexations to be exploited by feudal treatment of enslaved peoples. We are fighting for freedom, for a fair field and no favor. The meaning of the subscriptions by millions is that they understand it, and mean to conquer or die. That sentiment already is felt by one family in each two, and should be felt by all. No Presidential election ever showed such unanimity of sentiment as our Liberty Loan referendums. The total of Liberty Loan holders is little less than the largest Presidential vote ever cast, but that was divided among several parties. On the question of liberty or death, now and forever, there is no division of sentiment in this happy land, threatened as never before.

THE RED CROSS THE SECOND LINE OF DEFENSE.

The President of the United States testified to his admiration for the work the Red Cross is doing overseas and at home by marching on foot at the head of the most inspiring parade that New York has seen during the war. The thrill of it will never be forgotten by the devoted men and women who took part in it and by those who saw its columns pass, almost 75,000 strong, under the beloved emblem. Mr. WILSON led in the campaign for the War Fund of $25,000,000. The people of New York will follow him and make it a memorable success.

The campaign is so well organized that War Fund Week will be brought to the attention of everybody within the limits of Greater New York all day long and far into the night. There is hardly a shop, hotel, or restaurant that has not announced a contribution of its receipts for one day or more. Canvassers will be like the sands of the seashore, ubiquitous, appealing, persuasive, irresistible. The women of New York are legion in the good cause. Every form of amusement will be enlisted—the concert stage, the theatres, the moving pictures. New York has a record of $24,300,000 in the first Red Cross campaign, and that must be surpassed, by a wide margin there is reason to hope.

It must be borne in mind that there are now 500,000 soldiers in France, and by the end of the year the American Army will be twice or three times as strong. Most of the war fund to be raised will be used in behalf of American soldiers, to seek and nurse the wounded, to entertain and comfort soldiers back of the lines, to look after the welfare of prisoners in Germany. The fund collected last June, of which no more than 25 per cent. remains now, perhaps less, was devoted chiefly to our allies, and a good deal of it was spent among the refugees in France and Italy. It is, of course, not the purpose of the Red Cross to neglect its wards or to aid in building up stricken communities behind the lines, but the American Army will now become its special concern.

In its war activities the Red Cross is as businesslike and responsible as it is efficient. Its books are methodically kept, every dollar being accounted for. But for volunteer service the expenses would be very much heavier. Considering the magnitude of the work, the operating cost is by no means large. No less than 5,000,000 women employed receive nothing, and ask nothing, for their time and labor. The management of the Red Cross could not be otherwise than responsible under the leadership of HENRY P. DAVISON, who is the hardest working and most faithful of officers, whether at the front inspiring the rank and file or back home furnishing strategy for the war fund campaign.

Contributors to the Red Cross War Fund cannot give too much consideration to the fact that the Red Cross at the front is, as Mr. DAVISON says, holding the second line of defense by keeping up the morale and hopes of the people of France and Italy. The war will be won hardly less by the civilian populations than by the soldiers in the trenches. As an emergency force the Red Cross is resolutely holding the second line, and will continue to stand fast until the war is over. Support it with your contributions early and late. Stand just as resolutely behind it.

WOMAN SOLDIERS.

> I notice on the billboards around the city an advertisement of "the first American woman soldier." I have been informed that one MOLLY PITCHER fought at the battle of Monmouth, N. J., in the Revolutionary War, taking the place of her husband, who was killed in that battle.—Letter in Yesterday's TIMES.

Captain MOLLY wasn't the only one. We must not forget NANCY HART of Georgia, gun in hand, driving her ten Tory prisoners into the American camp. But NANCY, prodigious fighter as she was, was not technically a soldier, whereas Captain MOLLY was made a Sergeant on the Monmouth battlefield and subsequently put on the list of half-pay officers for life by act of Congress. She had the right to wear the uniform, and compromised by wearing an artilleryman's coat over her dress and a cocked hat on her red hair. But DEBORAH SAMPSON of Massachusetts was the real woman soldier of the Revolution; she enlisted in the Continental Army, her sex being unsuspected, fought in battle after battle, was wounded, was commended for bravery, and headed military expeditions. She was 21 when she enlisted. Despite her wounds, she managed to escape detection until a serious illness and detention in the hospital revealed her secret, and her comrades were astonished to learn that "Private Robert Shurtleff" was Miss DEBORAH SAMPSON of Uxbridge. General KNOX gave her an honorable discharge; the Massachusetts Legislateure voted her an honorarium, Congress put her on the pension roll, and after her death voted a sum of money to her heirs, declaring that "the "whole history of the American Rev-"olution records no case like this, "and furnished no other similar ex-"ample of female heroism, fidelity, "and courage."

The War of Secession, however, was full of such cases, one of the best known being that of FRANCES HOOK of Illinois, who at the age of 22 enlisted under the name of Frank Miller. Her brother enlisted with her, keeping her secret, and was killed by her side at Shiloh. FRANCES was taken prisoner in the Chattanooga campaign, when the Confederates discovered her sex. They exchanged her for a man. There were many others, FANNY WILSON of New Jersey, MARY OWENS of Pennsylvania (who went with her husband, saw him killed, was wounded in the same fight, and took part in three battles), and Major BELLE REYNOLDS of Illinois, who got her commission for bravery, but she made no effort to conceal her sex. Most famous of all was Major PAULINE CUSHMAN, the Union scout and spy. On the Confederate side the best known was Captain BELLE BOYD, who got her commission at the hands of STONEWALL JACKSON after an exploit which saved his army from destruction. Next in celebrity on the Southern side was Mme. L. J. DE VELAZQUEZ, who disguised herself as a man, entered the army under the name of Harry Buford, and became a Lieutenant through her bravery in action. After it was learned that she was a woman the Confederate Government employed her in secret service work.

Perhaps the advertisement meant "the first American woman soldier in this war." Even then it is open to doubt. One imitator of DEBORAH SAMPSON and FRANCES HOOK got nearly to France before she was discovered, and there may be others. How many enlisted in the War of Secession will never be known, for usually the fact was never revealed until the woman happened to be wounded. In THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 13, 1863, among the local items is the account of the arrest of a woman named MARY SEIZGLE for wearing a soldier's uniform. It turned out that she had a right to wear it, having just returned from the battle of Gettysburg, in which she had taken part with the 41st New York Volunteers. In THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 22, 1863, is a letter from a soldier telling of the surprise of his comrades of the 1st Kansas when they found that a Sergeant, who had just died, and "by the side of whom they "had marched and fought for almost "two years," was a woman. She had fought, he said, in a dozen battles and skirmishes. "She was as brave "as a lion in battle, and never "flinched from any duty or hardship "that fell to her lot." No one, of course, ever learned her real name. Death revealed her. Who knows how many others went unrevealed?

NEW YORK'S POSTAL FACILITIES.

The Post Office Appropriation bill contains several items of specific interest to this city, and which will fasten interest upon the bill until it shall have passed the conference stage in which it now is. Not until the bill shall have been signed can the postal pneumatic tubes be considered safe. There have been a series of department reports condemning the tubes and a series of Congressional reports favoring them. The difference between the two sets of reports is that the Congressional reports are detached in their interest, and, therefore, on the merits.

The department reports reflect the prejudices or policy of the department. When the head of the Post Office service declares that he would not work the tubes if given to the department, and expresses himself to the effect that the owners of the tubes are seeking to unload them upon the Government by methods of doubtful sincerity, he gives a cue to which his subordinates respond when they report to the same effect. When the Postmaster General condemns the tubes as useless he antagonizes reports of civic organizations of all the cities where the tubes are working. No city has praised the economy of the department so far as it depends upon the stoppage of the tube service, and all cities deprecate the loss of the facility to whose utility they testify. Even the Postmaster General uses the tubes to gather and distribute mail for his flying service. It is an interesting innovation, and standing by itself deserves all praise. But it is clear that delivery of the mail in the suburbs loses all the speed of the journey by the delays at the terminals.

No automobile service could deliver the air mail, or the regular mail, with such thoroughness and speed as the tubes. The attempt to do so has brought down on the wheeled service denunciations for recklessness and fatalities. Not long ago the Postmaster General denounced what he called the lobbying methods of those who wanted to save the tubes. Last week he personally was lobbying against the tubes, and thus far in vain. The votes against him have been decisive. He has done enough for his credit in opposing this extravagance. Nobody can reproach him with it. It is time for him to cease his opposition and bow to the repeated decisions against him. Others are responsible for the tube service.

The bill in its present form also provides that letters shall be carried between the boroughs of this city for the local two-cent fare enjoyed by all other cities. Probably there was no intention to discriminate against New York in the requirement that New York alone should have a three-cent rate between its different sections. It seems to have happened because the Government regards the postal districts as outside the territory of each other. Ordinary citizens know nothing about the boundaries of the postal districts. People who mail letters regard New York City as one geographical and political division, and are irritated when they discover that the Government divides the city for rate purposes. The request for an interborough local rate is not a request for a favor or privilege. It is only asking for New York what other cities have. It is not merely a question of postage. It is a question of annoyance in using the facilities of the Post Office, as the underpaid letters are penalized, however inadvertently the postage is underpaid. The city's Congressmen have done well in carrying these proposals so far, and they should not relax their vigilance until there is security against disappointments hitherto experienced at similar advanced stages of this legislation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Great Loss as Well as a Great Grief.

There is nothing, of course, that can change the death of such a man as Captain RESNATI from a deeply deplorable calamity. It is that not alone in what may be called the personal sense—the one felt by the relatives and friends who knew and appreciated him as a man. There is a second and broader sense in which his death is a misfortune and a cause of sorrow literally to millions who knew of him only what the newspapers had recorded of his achievements as an aviator.

For it was in that capacity that from the beginning of the war he had devoted the courage he shared with the good soldiers in all armies and a special and remarkable skill in the management of airplanes, developed in a degree uncommon even in his own class, to the one immediately and supremely important task that confronts the world—that of defeating the German. By his life, therefore, Captain RESNATI served Italy no more than he did the other nations joined in the accomplishment of that task, and Italy's loss from this point of view is no greater than that of the United States, of Great Britain, or of France.

In this extension of both service given and of recognition earned, the aviator is not, indeed, peculiar. All, in and out of uniform, who are doing what they can, and all they can, to bring the war to its one tolerable termination may have the satisfaction that lies in the thought of sacrifices offered in a larger cause than any single flag could symbolize.

There was for us, when the news of Captain RESNATI's death first came, a pang which the peoples of other countries were spared, for the report was that he was flying, when he fell, an airplane of American manufacture, and into most of our minds must have flashed the fear that some traitor here had tampered with his machine. Rumors of such crimes by German agents long have been in circulation as explaining some of the accidents on our flying fields. Fortunately for our peace of mind, the report was not true. The machine was made in Italy, and it seems to have been in perfect order.

So far as known, the Captain fell only because in his ardor he attempted a flight before he had fully recovered from a recent illness and, therefore, before he had regained that full possession of every power which aviation requires. His loss is not the less on that account, but it relieves us of a cruel responsibility that would have been almost unbearable.

He Talks Like a Maniac.

Difficult as it is to understand how the Kaiser dared to say, as he stood by the graves of his soldiers in Aachen, "it was not by my will that the war has come," there is a remote possibility that he spoke the truth or some approach to it. That he did will not be believed outside of Germany, but it may be that he had not complete control of the military class he nominally commands, and he was himself in some measure compelled to give the fatal order that has come so near to wrecking and ruining the whole world.

However that may be—and it strains credulity to admit the possibility—there is no like explanation as to how the Kaiser could twice within a week express the wish that the Germans at home could see what he has seen of devastated France and so be enabled to realize the ills they had been spared and the gratitude they owed to their armies. That is a mystery deserving of what is called "intensive study"—a problem for the psychologists of schools old and new.

This wish, as formulated, involves the assumption that Germany would have suffered what France has suffered had her armies not been thrown so promptly across the frontier. But that assumption could be made only by an insane man—by a man who reasons from premises unrelated to any reality except the illusions created by a disordered brain. It is directly contradicted by the international situation as it existed in 1914. There was nowhere then any thought of declaring war on Germany—nowhere any wish to ravage her fields, bombard her towns, or murder her people. So far was it from there having been aggressive intentions against her that there were no preparations for defensive action in the then unimaginable case that she would do what she did.

And yet the Kaiser, in what really seems to be sincerity, says that if the German civilians could walk the battlefields with him they would know what they have been "spared"! Other men—TAMERLANE, GENGHIS KHAN, ATTILA—have desolated lands not their own with fire and sword, but never, so far as history tells, did they claim that thus their own homes were spared like horrors. They knew what they were doing and they did not deny their motives to others or to themselves.

This Table Needs Interpretation.

When carelessly inspected, the daily "summary of army casualties to date" seems to contradict the claim so often made since this war began that no longer is it true that the soldier's greatest danger is from disease. The false impression comes from comparing with the number set down as "died of disease" only the one that follows the words "killed in action."

The former number is, indeed, twice as large as the latter, but even if that were the whole story, it still would mark an enormous advance in military sanitation and hygiene made since a date as recent as our war with Spain. It is not the whole story, however, nor is the comparison fair.

To realize how much better now is the care taken of the soldier when he is not under fire, there must be added to those "killed in action" those who perish by "accident," those set down as "died of wounds," those "lost at sea" and the victims of "gas and other causes." For none of these is the army surgeon in any way responsible, any more than he is for the "captured" and the "missing," and when they are all added together the item "died of disease" is reduced, relatively, to proportions that fully justify the claims made in the surgeon's behalf.

He ought to be credited, too, with much of the wonderful physical improvement that is shown by such a great majority of the recruits within a few weeks after they enter the service. If civilian doctors could speak with as much authority to their patients and clients as do their colleagues in the army and the navy—if they could work as much for prevention and no less for cure—like marvels could be accomplished at home as in the field.

FARMERS' TRAINING CAMPS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While so much public opinion has lately been focused on speeding up the adequate preparation of our soldiers, with the inspiring Third Liberty Loan posters spelling the glory of their success at every turn, we Americans have been brought as never before to a keen realization of warfare. We in this country feel that we can almost see the torn battlefront of Picardy and even the expression on some of the boys' faces. But we are only beginning to appreciate that great backer of the soldier, the farmer. Of course, we all know by heart the various slogans of "Food Will Win the War, Don't Waste It," &c., but do we, right down at the bottom of our souls, realize that the farmer must, in a sense, go "over the top" and be prepared to do it? Do we realize that America is called upon to furnish young men who are willing to sacrifice themselves in order to produce food? We too often think of the farmers of this country as being "only" the second line of defense. But we do not fully realize that the generals of food production have been ordered to attack first.

I am fully confident that this Summer, when we begin to read the inevitably long casualty lists of our boys in France, millions at home will be filled with an ambition to grow food to feed the soldiers. It will not only be a case of "Every Scout Feed a Soldier," but every available man, woman, and child will try to do a share of the feeding. There will be no lack of patriotism on the fields over here, any more than there is a lack of patriotism on the fields "over there."

But though great and patriotic service will be given on the farms this Summer, are we not in a grave danger of minimizing the wide-reaching effect of agricultural training and thinking that food can be produced by any one? Our prospective food producers must have knowledge or else much food will be produced less economically than necessary, or much will not be produced at all. Last year hundreds of people were exhorted into planting as much as they possibly could, but were not told, nor had they the knowledge, that one man can usually plant as much as six men can cultivate and as much as a dozen men can harvest and market for the ultimate consumer.

In the national army we have recognized the need of officers' training camps, because men of ambition and ability were needed who could, in the shortest possible time, be trained as officers to instruct and lead thousands of others. We need the same advantages for our great food army. Many old-time farmers are not fit to farm, much less to instruct. Our war has caused fertilizer and labor problems undreamed of heretofore. Now, and in the years to come, agricultural problems will present themselves which are capable of solution only by trained minds. It is not labor, and raw labor, alone which will solve our problems. There are many men who could well devote themselves to agricultural problems who have been rejected by our army and navy for a cause which would not interfere with a life of agriculture. But these men must have greater opportunities for obtaining agricultural training. This training must be condensed and given as a war measure at a rate much faster than it is now given in the agricultural colleges. I plead for a recognition of the importance and necessity of O. T. C.'s—for farmers.

THE KNITTERS.

Day in and day out, and in all kinds of weather,
America's women are knitting together;
"We're knitting with joy, and we're knitting with tears,
Each stitch holds our love, and our hopes and our fears—
We're knitting, we're knitting!

"We're making these garments for gallant defenders,
An army of freemen that never surrenders,
For men who are fighting for you and for me,
In the fields and the trenches far over the sea—
We're knitting, we're knitting!

They'll comfort the boys; they will serve to inspire,
We're knitting, we're knitting!

"We're knitting for all that is noble and glorious,
The star-spangled banner, which must be victorious;
While women will toil, and our manhood will dare,
Let the foes of our country take heed and beware—

PESSIMISTS OF 1918.

Historic Parallels for Those Who Are Too Much Impressed by Germany's Temporary Gains.

By Mr. JUSTICE RUSSELL,

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When the late Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote for the Atlantic Monthly his paper on his search for the Captain—said Captain being now Mr. Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court—he quoted the cry of the Roman populace "Panem et circenses" and gave it a modern and a wartime turn. Bread and the newspaper, he said, was what the people were calling for in those anxious and perilous days.

It is so with us today—save that the truth is, or a few days ago the truth certainly was, that some if not many among us hardly dared to open our newspaper lest we should learn of some new coign of vantage that the enemy had gained against us overnight, or of some new and imminent and deadly peril to which our brave boys were about to be exposed. No wonder if in these terrible days men's hearts are failing them for fear that some of the more faint-hearted among us have even begun to doubt whether our armies are indeed invincible and whether, notwithstanding all our labors and our sacrifices of blood and treasure by land and sea, it may not be that the finger of destiny is pointing to the downfall of the British Empire and to the world sovereignty of the all-conquering German.

Amid these fears and misgivings which are not yet wholly dissipated, we shall do well to recall the profound and consolatory saying of Emerson, who tells us that the lesson of life is to believe what the years and the centuries say against the hours. The lesson of history is indeed precisely this, and we read our histories in vain if we do not learn from them to trust the teaching of the years against the ephemeral appearances of the hours, and the teaching of the centuries against what may seem to be the meaning of the dark and troubled years.

The present ruler of Germany is not the first or the only monster to dream of the mastership of the world, and there is a close similarity between some parts of his procedure and that of his predecessor in the early years of the preceding century. To bring out this parallel let us imagine, if we have not seen, the war map designed to illustrate the manner in which the German Kaiser and his Prussian war lords have carried out in the eastern arena of the conflict and at the expense of Russia their benign policy of "no annexations and no indemnities."

At the northeastern corner of the Baltic is the Province of Esthonia, torn from the domains of Russia and about to be erected into a quasi-independent political community. Circling the Gulf of Riga is Livonia, and just below Livonia is Lithuania, to be dealt with on the lines of the same political strategy, Poland and the Ukraine, the former once part of an independent kingdom parceled up and divided among a gang of imperial brigands, the other severed in our own day from the newly established democracy which seemed to our ardent hopes to be entering upon a promising career of freedom and progress. A little further to the east we have the lands of the crushed and despoiled Rumanians, stretching to the shores of the Black Sea.

Thus, from the northeastern corner of the Baltic to the western shore of the Black Sea we have this great range of provinces large and small, all but one of them torn from Russia and her allies by an unjust and aggressive war or a yet more contemptible because a tricky and illusory peace; Esthonia, Livonia, Lithuania, Poland, the Ukraine and Rumania, all to be under the hegemony of Prussia, vassal states of Germany, probably enough, just as a great part of the Continent of Europe in the former century was carved into kingdoms and placed under the nominal sovereignty of the brothers of Napoleon, to be parceled out among the sons and sons-in-law of the German Kaiser, or to be converted into so many Alsace-Lorraines for the glorification of the House of Hohenzollern.

The parallel to all this is found by a writer in the last number of the Fortnightly Review over the nom de plume of "Fabricius" in the so-called Confederation of the Rhine, which was brought into being by Napoleon in the early years of the century preceding this. The writer begins his history with the gathering of the naval and military forces of Napoleon at Boulogne in 1805 for the purpose of invading England, an undertaking which might easily have succeeded had it not been for the splendid seamanship and bravery of Nelson and his invincible navy. The project had to be abandoned in favor of the more promising enterprise of destroying Austria, isolating Prussia, and eventually dominating the Continent of Europe.

In order to execute this program, he instructed his Minister, the famous Talleyrand, to write to the Electors of Bavaria, Württemberg, and Baden, announcing to them his determination that they were no longer to remain neutral between him and his enemies, that they must take sides with him or at once elect to be treated as his foes. Their friendship was to be rewarded with acquisitions at the expense of the minor states and principalities of the German Confederation. In the event of their enmity he would know how to deal with them. As for "that bag of bones," the Austrian Emperor, he was to be informed that Napoleon would be in Vienna in November. Does it not sound like the boast attributed to the German Kaiser that he would eat his Christmas dinner in Paris in 1914? The essential difference between the two cases is precisely the difference between Napolon and his Prussian imitator. Wilhelm did not eat his Christmas dinner in Paris in 1914, nor yet in 1915, nor in 1916 or 1917. If he is destined to eat any dinner in Paris in 1918 we may safely believe that it will be the most indigestible meal that passed the portals of the imperial stomach. Napoleon did get to Vienna in November, if not before. In October, 1805, the great fortress of Ulm was taken and 23,000 prisoners were taken. On Dec. 26 the battle of Austerlitz was fought and Austria lay prostrate at the foot of the Conqueror.

What schoolboy has not read of the anguish of England's patriotic Prime Minister when he heard the news of Austerlitz—how he pointed to the map of Europe hanging on the wall and said, "Roll up that map; it will not be wanted these ten years"? Austerlitz, as Wilberforce wrote in his diary, killed Pitt. The great statesman and patriot died in January, and those who bent over him caught, as his spirit was passing, a faint murmur: "My country! How I leave my country!"

The practical annexation of Bavaria, Württemberg, and Baden, with Saxony, Westphalia, and other States constituting the Confederation of the Rhine, added to Napoleon's dominions an area equal in extent to that of the United Kingdom and increased the subject population by 50 per cent., adding 14,000,000 to the population of France, already numbering 29,000,000. Austria was crushed by the victory of Austerlitz in December, 1805. Prussia's turn came at Jena in 1806. The peace of Tilsit brought Russia to terms in 1807, and the whole of Continental Europe was under the heel of the Corsican brigand.

That surely was the day when the pessimist should have flourished. Could he not well exclaim with the old mediaeval saint amid the horrors and desolations by which he was surrounded, that God and His saints were sleeping, or, "like the hero in Tolstoy's 'War and Peace' when he sees the bright-faced peasant and the pale mechanic shot dead by his side, and the bodies still warm thrown into the trench, might he not be tempted to say with him in rebellion against a world in which such things could be, not in the mood in which the fool crieth, but in the anguish of a tender soul wrung by such stupendous iniquity, 'There is no God?' "

Such might have been the reflections and feelings of the pessimist—nay, not merely the reflections of the pessimist, but the reasonable misgivings of many a sane and not too pessimistic observer contemplating the apparently hopeless conditions of the European world. But such a one would have failed to take proper account of those "imponderables" of which even so materialistic a statesman as Bismarck was not entirely unconscious. He would have neglected to take into his reckoning those moral forces by which in the last analysis the course of human affairs is governed. If one had learned in those dark and trying days the lesson of life from Emerson, to believe what the years and the centuries say against the hours, might he not well have apostrophized the departed spirit of William Pitt in the noble lines of Wordsworth's sonnet to the memory of Toussaint L'Ouverture?

Powers that will work for thee—earth, air, and sky!
That will forget thee. Thou hast great allies.
Thy friends are exultations, agonies,
And love, and man's unconquerable mind.

If it could only have been given to Pitt to pierce the veil of the future, he would have known that before the full expiration of the period for which he wished his map of Europe to be furled, the affairs of his beloved country would again open up a hopeful vista to the eye of humanitarian patriotism. He would have foreseen Wellington's long and arduous but ultimately successful campaigns in Portugal and Spain, he would have followed the steady and progressive steps by which the Iron Duke continued from year to year to drive the Corsican intruder back within the limits of his own kingdom. He would have seen in his apocalyptic vision the disastrous Russian campaign of 1812, the battle of the nations, known as the Völkerschlacht to our German friends of those happier days when Germany was on the side of God and the angels, the better known to us as the battle of Leipsic, in 1813. He would have foreseen the total collapse of the confederation of the Rhine, the assembly of the Allies in Paris, the retreat of the Corsican adventurer to the little island of Elba, the stirring and alarming interlude of "the hundred days," the sanguinary but glorious field of Waterloo, and the perpetual exile of the greatest criminal of the century to the rocky solitudes of St. Helena.

But Pitt died in spiritual pain and sorrow because his eyes were holden and his spirit clouded. No wonder that his foresight could not penetrate the veil of the future or his faith anticipate its coming events. But with these lessons of history to aid and befriend us, our eyes should not be darkened and our faith should rest assured. They, indeed, are darkened if we do not see, if we have not faith to believe that whatever may be the vicissitudes of our military fortune, through whatsoever Gethsemanes of pain and sorrow our people may yet be called to suffer, there can only be one end to the struggle. The world was not made to be the football of Alexanders and Attilas, or the field of lawless ambition for Napoleons and Hohenzollerns.

Our pessimists and prophets of evil, like the poor, will, doubtless, always be with us. Even when there was hardly a cloud upon the national horizon, an author that filled a large space in the mental outlook of the past generation of readers moaned over the evident decline of his country. He had a conviction which haunted him, he said, at times, and almost overwhelmed him with depression, that there was a real and almost imminent danger of England losing immeasurably in all ways and declining into a sort of greater Holland. Doubtless it was under some such distressing conviction as this that Matthew Arnold drew his picture of the Weary Titan, under which form he arraigns his country, in sympathy with the critic over whose grave he bewails her shortcomings. "I chide thee not," he exclaims at the grave of Heine.

Upbraidings often assailed
England, my country—for we,
Heavy and sad for her sons
Long since, deep in our hearts
Echo the blame of her foes.
We, too, sigh that she flags;
We, too, say that she now,
Scarce comprehending the voice
Of her greatest golden-mouthed sons
Of a former age any more,
Stupidly travels her round
Of mechanic business and lets
Slow die out of her life
Glory and genius and joy.

Yes, we arraign her! But she,
The weary Titan with deaf
Ears and labour-dimmed eyes,
Regarding neither to right
Nor left, goes passively by,
Staggering on to her goal;
Bearing on shoulders immense,
Atlantean, the load
Well-nigh not to be borne

What would this refined and scholarly pessimist of a past generation say of his country if he could have lived to see her as she appears among the nations today, bearing on shoulders immense, Atlantean, not only the too vast orb of her own fate, but the burden of the world's salvation from the greatest peril by which it ever yet was menaced; confronting the mighty hosts of a barbarism more dangerous and destructive than that of Attila, by as much as it is more scientifically equipped and more skilfully marshaled. He would have seen his countrymen confronting the enemy of humankind with resources and labors never before equaled in the annals of the nation, and with bravery and devotion and endurance never excelled in the whole history of the human race. Surely he would have repented his pessimism and suppressed his arraignment. That the loss to literature would have been substantial I must frankly acknowledge; for one of the finest passages in the English language would have remained unwritten. But for a sursum corda in these depressing and terrible days I must give my preference to the Tyrtaean strains of Gerald Massey, which I doubt not the critical taste of our amiable pessimists of Fox How would regard with lofty literary scorn:

The old nursing mother's not hoary yet,
There is sap in her Saxon-tree,
Lo! She lifteth a bosom of glory yet
Through her mists to the sun and the sea.
Old England still throbs with the muffled fire
Of a past she can never forget,
And again shall she banner the world up higher,

PRESIDENT DEPARTS; ENDS VACATION HERE

LUNCHEON AT DODGE HOME

President Wilson's vacation, as he yesterday termed his three-day visit in New York, ended at midnight last night when he and Mrs. Wilson, Rear Admiral Cary P. Grayson, his personal physician, and Joseph P. Tumulty, his private secretary, returned to Washington on a Pennsylvania train.

The President's day yesterday, which he had set apart for rest, included attendance at the Brick Presbyterian Church in the morning, luncheon at the home of Cleveland H. Dodge, who presided at the Red Cross meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday night, and an excursion to the Pelham Bay Naval Reserve cantonment, where the President was cheered to the echo by the 4,000 young men training there for service in the navy.

His seventy-two hours' relaxation from affairs in Washington apparently did the President much good, for when he nodded good-bye to the enthusiastic crowds last night, the lines of worry, noticeable when he arrived last Friday, seemed to have disappeared.

President and Mrs. Wilson and Admiral Grayson left the Waldorf a little after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and walked to the Brick Presbyterian Church, at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, where he heard a war sermon preached by a man who had served in the trenches, the Rev. Dr. R. Bruce Taylor, formerly Chaplain of a Canadian Highland regiment. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. W. P. Merrill, was in Princeton for the day.

A small crowd outside of the Waldorf watched the party go, the men raising their hats as the President passed. There was no loud cheering. When the party was seated in church, and the congregation became aware of their presence, there was a flutter of excitement, and a general turning of heads. Dr. Taylor's vigorous sermon, however, soon held the attention of everybody, and none listened more closely than President Wilson. In the course of the sermon, the Canadian clergyman touched upon our attitude toward the war.

Fight as Trustees of Liberty.

"It is difficult for us to appreciate at such a distance from the scene of the conflict that we are at war," he said. "It is a war that represent the crisis of civilization, and by the way in which we realize this fact so shall we be judged. There must be no side-stepping, no sentimentality about it. You are in the fight as trustees of liberty handed down to you by your forefathers, and must be, as we all are, out to win it.

"We in Canada have made a great many mistakes, and they have been paid for in flesh and blood. You, too, I suspect, will also make mistakes, but patience must be exercised with those who have the great burdens of this war on their shoulders."

After the services the congregation stood while the President and Mrs. Wilson left the church with their attendant guard of Secret Service men. Outside in the avenue a great crowd had gathered and was waiting patiently in the hot sun for just a glimpse of the President and perhaps a chance to wish him well.

A cheer went up as he came out, which, although not so noisy as some that the President has heard during his visit here, yet lacked not a bit of goodwill and sincerity. The persons in the crowd also showed their regard for the President by the courteous manner in which they gave him room so that the offices of the detectives were not needed. Mrs. Wilson smiled upon the crowd, and the President stopped a moment and raised his hat.

At the church the President and Mrs. Wilson got into an automobile, and were driven to the home of Colonel Edward M. House, whom he later took on a drive through Central Park. The party, including Colonel House and Mrs. House, then went to Mr. Dodge's home in Riverdale, where they had luncheon.

Word that the President was at the Dodge home brought out a number of neighborhood children who gathered in a wide-eyed, eager group outside. They were invited to come inside, and to their delight had an opportunity to shake hands with President Wilson.

Visits Navy Boys.

After luncheon the President was taken for an automobile ride, and at his own request was driven out to the naval training station at Pelham Bay.

He did not at first intend to go in, but the sight of a trim young sailor on guard at the gate seemed to change the President's mind and, stopping the machine, he asked a Secret Service man to ask the young sailor to come over.

The young man approached, facing the President, whom he at first did not recognize, with his rifle held rigidly at port. As the tall man leaned out of the car to question him as to the road through the cantonments, the sailor suddenly became aware who was talking to him. He did not lose his self-possession and answered the questions concisely and accurately, but the rifle, held at an angle across his heart, trembled a bit.

As the big machine rolled through the gates of the cantonment there were at least a thousand student sailors in Summer white on the grounds and perhaps twice as many visitors. At first they were as ignorant as the guard of the identity of the man in the big black limousine who was watching them so intently. In one corner they were changing guard and so intent upon the instructions from the petty officer that not one glanced up.

It was not long, however, before the word spread that the President was a visitor at the cantonment and the bluejackets began to crowd forward whenever his machine came into sight. The cheers they gave him as he passed were by no means diminished for Sunday observance either, and the President, immensely pleased, bowed again and again to the young men who seemed so glad to see him.

An Ensign who heard of the visitor sent a hurry call to Commander W. B. Franklin in charge of the camp, and the latter came over at once. He reached headquarters just as the President's car drew up and when the President opened the door to shake his hand, he urged President Wilson to review the sailors and make them a speech.

"No, I think not this time," said the President, with a smile. "I am just on a little vacation. I want to congratulate you, however, Commander, on your men. I have enjoyed my visit here very much indeed."

The party returned to the Waldorf for dinner, and word was issued to the Secret Service men to be ready to go to the train with the President at 10 o'clock. During his absence a young man called at the hotel and aroused the suspicions of the detectives there by insisting on seeing the President. He was questioned and said that he only wanted to give the President a fountain pen, which he had with him. He was later sent away as harmless.

Just before dinner at 6:30 the President and Mrs. Wilson came down by themselves in the elevator, and, accompanied by a half dozen guards, went out for a walk. They went down Thirty-third Street to Sixth Avenue, from there to Twenty-third Street, and up Fifth Avenue to the hotel. As they passed, men and women were startled at the sight of the President and saluted him, raising their hats.

By 9:30 another big crowd had collected around the Thirty-third Street entrance of the hotel to see the last of the President. Several people went inside also to wait. One old couple came in at 7 o'clock and, seating themselves in the lobby, announced that they had never seen the President and would not leave until they had had a glimpse of him. They said they had heard he was going back at midnight and were prepared to wait until that time.

The President and Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by Admiral Grayson, left the hotel for the train shortly after 10 o'clock, going directly to the private car which brought them to New York. The crowd burst into shouts when they saw the President, calling out "Good-bye, Mr. President; don't forget to come back again; we're for you."

At the station he was met by Stationmaster Egan and escorted on board the private car, the "Superb."

Before he left the President expressed himself as well pleased with the way the New York police had cared for him. The last man to shake hands with him before he went inside the car was Inspector Faurot, to whom the President said:

"The police arrangements were ideal, Inspector. I want to thank you for them."

WAR FUND FOR BLIND JEWS.

Association to Raise $25,000 to Care for Returned Soldiers.

A patriotic meeting, under the auspices of the Hebrew Association for the Blind, was held yesterday at the University Settlement, 134 Eldridge Street, to raise a fund of $25,000 to carry on its work and be prepared to care for blind Jewish soldiers returning from France. The meeting was the first to be held in America where blind persons, unable to take part in war work, gathered together to express their loyalty to their country.

The association, headed by Benjamin Berinstein, is run largely by blind people. They themselves are undertaking to raise the emergency fund and to obtain employment for Jewish people who have lost their sight, so that they will be less of a burden to the country. The speakers were Benjamin Berinstein, President, Leo Wolfson, Bleecker Marquette, and the Rev. Herbert S. Goldstein.

FETE FOR GRAMERCY PARK.

Benefit for Soldiers of 307th Regiment to be Held May 28.

A garden party for the benefit of the soldiers of the 307th Regiment and their families will be held in Gramercy Park from 3 until 11 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon and evening, May 28. It is being arranged by Mrs. Walston Hill Brown, the originator of the Regimental Family Unit and the National President of the organization, Mrs. Walter Graeme Eliot, the Chairman of the committee, with whom the Gramercy Park idea originated; Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff, and others. E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Edwin Markham, and Robert Underwood Johnson will take part. Colonel Boyce's Tigers will parade and many other attractions are being arranged for. Various articles and refreshments will be on sale.

Among those who will give tables or be in charge of them are: Mrs. Samuel P. Blagden, Mrs. MacNeal Swasey, Mrs. Walter Graeme Eliot, the Baroness Olga Serdoben, Mrs. Theus Munds, Mrs. Dudley Davis, the Misses Eleanor Hewitt Green, Candace and Lucy Hewitt, Claire Van Lennep, Sylvia Brown, Katharine Satterlee, and Elinor Kendall, Mrs. Carlton James, and Mrs. LeRoy Satterlee.

Miss Molly Beecher to Marry.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Molly Beecher of Ossining, N. Y., to Lieutenant A. Rivers Genet, U. S. N. V., of the same place. Miss Beecher is a granddaughter of the late Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller of the Supreme Court of the United States and a sister of Miss Sally Beecher and Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace of Washington, D. C. Lieutenant Genet is a brother of Edmond Genet of the Lafayette Escadrille, who was killed about a year ago in France, and is a great-grandson of Citizen Genet, France's first Minister to the United States. The mariage is to take place in June in Ossining.

Son Born to Judge and Mrs. Dike.

A son was born yesterday to Judge and Mrs. Norman S. Dike at their home at 194 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn. Judge Dike married Evelyn Moore Biddle at Glen Cove, L. I., on June 30, 1917.

WANT BOYS FOR A BAND.

Downtown League Issues a Call to Youthful Musicians.

The Downtown League, at 150 Nassau Street, yesterday issued this invitation to youthful musicians to enroll for band work during the period of the war.

> The shortage of musicians is being felt in army and navy circles, and this has led a number of patriotic citizens to organize a band of 50 to 100 American boys to add their share toward the great cause. In the downtown district the banks, insurance companies, and mercantile houses have signified their willingness to aid in the organization by permitting any employe between 15 and 21 to enroll in the new band and take part in parades for enlistment purposes and other public functions for the welfare of the United States and the Municipal Government. One of the best bandmasters in New York will assist in forming the band and direct it in its early stages. About thirty-five young musicians have enrolled, and it is desired to add double this number within the next four weeks. Any young man who can play a brass or reed instrument and is the son of a citizen of this country may join the new band.

No remuneration will be given to members of the band, but their uniforms and all the instruments necessary will be supplied by contributions from business men. Application for membership should be directed to the American Marine Band, care the Downtown League, 150 Nassau Street.

INFIRMARY ISSUES APPEAL.

Officers of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, 321 East Fifteenth Street, established in 1853, by Drs. Elizabeth and Emily Blackwell, said yesterday that conditions forced them to make a public appeal for $200,000, which was needed for the continuation of the work. The Campaign Committee, in its statement of present financial difficulties, said:

> For the first time in the history of the institution it makes an appeal to the public for financial assistance. The tremendous and constantly increasing cost of food material and hospital supplies, the need for structural repairs, and the greatly lessened income partly due to the constant and insistent demands for contributions to all kinds of war service, account for the financial crisis that now threatens the further existence of the infirmary.
> The medical staff and other friends of the infirmary believe that after sixty-five years of constant, faithful, and efficient service it has become indispensable to the sick women and children in its vicinity.

Subscriptions may be sent to the Treasurer, Dr. Martha Wollstein, 1 West Eighty-first Street.

SAY THEATRES AID IN WAR.

The part played by the theatre in the war was the subject of addresses by about a dozen well-known theatrical people last night at a dinner given by the Twilight Club at the Hotel Biltmore. Among those who spoke were E. H. Sothern and Winthrop Ames, who described the part played by entertainment in the life of American soldiers in France; Rachel Crothers, head of the Stage Women's War Relief, who told of the work of that organization; Julia Marlowe, Louis K. Anspacher, and Francis Wilson. About 400 persons were present.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the new dignity which has come to the theatre as a result of the broader appreciation of its necessity in time of stress, and made a plea for a continuation of the appreciation after the war.

"Certainly something strange has happened," he declared. "With the Government investing $2,000,000 in theatres and theatrical enterprises, with the President indorsing the activities of the theatres, and with the Y. M. C. A. and the theatre awakened to a sense of mutual appreciation, there has been a marked disjointment of former prejudices. The power of the theatre for good, which has long been provokingly underestimated, is now beginning to be appreciated.

"It is a noble thing to give pleasure, and it is an honor to be a member of the theatrical profession. The theatre is an emotional necessity in time of stress, and perhaps when the stress is removed there may come a keener appreciation of the fact that the theatre is a blessing to civilization."

Others who spoke were Joseph A. Grismer, shepherd of the Lambs; Channing Pollock, Walter Irwin, and Henri La Fontaine, President of the University of Brussels. Daniel Frohman presided.

350th Field Artillery Band from Camp Dix Wins Applause.

Under the leadership of J. Tim Brymn, the bandmaster, the 350th Field Artillery Band, from Camp Dix, New Jersey, gave a concert at the Mall, in Central Park, yesterday afternoon. More than 50,000 persons listened to and applauded the band. Applause for Private Russell Smith, who played a cornet solo, was second in volume only to that which greeted the leader.

The band, which is composed of seventy-five pieces, led the Red Cross parade on Saturday and it will play at noon today at St. Paul's Chapel, Broadway and Fulton Street.

Quits Actors' and Authors' Theatre.

Edwin Milton Royle, who has been President of the Actors' and Authors' Theatre since its formation a little more than a month ago, announced yesterday that he had resigned his office. His withdrawal was under entirely amiable circumstances, he declared, and was brought about by a difference of opinion as to policy and methods. The Actors' and Authors' Theatre is a cooperative organization formed to produce plays, the first of which will be offered this week at the Fulton Theatre. The opening, announced for tonight, has been postponed until Thursday because of changes in the company.

Holy Name Societies Parade.

The Allied Italian Branches of the Holy Name Society of New York Archdiocese held a public demonstration yesterday afternoon to mark their alliance, which took place last March. A parade of about one thousand members of the Italian branches of the Holy Name Society marched from the Nativity Church at Second Street and Second Avenue to the Church of Our Lady Help of Christians at Twelfth Street and Avenue A. After the parade speeches were made by Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Mgr. G. Ferrante of the Italian Alliance, and the Rev. Ignatus Smith, Director General of the Holy Name Society in the United States.

O'Leary Trial to Begin Today.

The trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, who is charged with having entered into a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the United States, is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock this morning in the Criminal Branch of the Federal District Court. Luther Bedford is a co-defendant in the case. He has demanded a separate trial. O'Leary will be represented by Thomas B. Felder, while Assistant United States District Attorney Earl B. Barnes will prosecute the case for the Government.

WOMEN URGED TO ENROLL.

Suffrage Party Will Distribute 241,000 Pamphlets in City.

The New York City Woman Suffrage Party has printed 241,000 Enrollment Day pamphlets which will be distributed throughout the city to the women voters in the five boroughs, according to an announcement from the headquarters of the organization yesterday. About 25,000 of these pamphlets will be given to school teachers for distribution among parents. The pamphlets urge the women to enroll and tell them why they should. Also, the fact that a woman does not lose her vote in November by failing to enroll is also made clear.

These pamphlets were issued, it was said, because of the numerous queries the Suffrage Party headquarters has been receiving during the last week or so from women who did not understand exactly what was meant by enrollment. In addition to the pamphlets, the district leaders of the party have arranged for a series of meetings all over the city this week, at which the subject of enrollment will be discussed.

"The Woman Suffrage Party is doing its full duty to get the women out to enroll," said Miss Mary Garrett Hay, President of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, yesterday. Our leaders are setting a good example by enrolling, and I predict that many thousands of women will enroll so that they can vote in the primaries on Sept. 3."

ROB EX-LABOR INVESTIGATOR

John McArdle, former special investigator of the State Labor Department, was held up, beaten with a blackjack, and robbed in Brooklyn early yesterday morning.

McArdle, who is now business agent of Mailers' Union No. 6, was on the way to his home at 1,723 West Twelfth Street, Bath Beach, when he noticed he was being followed by two men. He had just left the King's Highway station of the Fourth Avenue subway, and at Avenue Q and Twelfth Street the men overtook him. One of the men pushed a revolver against his chest and the other hit him over the head with a blackjack. He was hit again and again and was so badly injured that he was still in bed and under a doctor's care last night.

The thugs took two diamond rings, a watch and chain, and $22 in cash. One of the rings was valued at $350 and was presented to him by the Mailers' Union when he gave up his position as business agent of that organization temporarily some years ago to become an investigator for the Labor Department.

AUTO SMASH KILLS SOLDIER

One soldier was the victim in one of the series of automobile accidents which occurred yesterday and late Saturday in and near New York. Through confusion of signals an army motor truck crashed into a motor cycle on which Corporal Walter Soder, a member of an aero squadron stationed at Camp Mills, was riding. He suffered a fracture of the skull and died at the base hospital at Mineola. Corporal Soder came from Sea Cliff, L. I. Two of his brothers are in the service.

In avoiding a small boy, Charles Molenkin of 406 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, drove his machine into a small crowd at Cooper Street and Myrtle Avenue, where solicitors for Red Cross funds were working, and injured four persons. Policeman James G. Power of 118 Central Avenue, Brooklyn, suffered a sprained back and knee, and three children met with bruises and lacerations.

Patrick F. O'Brien of 634 Baltic Street, Brooklyn, sustained a fractured skull yesterday when he was thrown from the machine driven by Charles Coffi of 215 Warren Street, which came into collision at North and Court Streets with a car operated by Joseph B. Hicks of 634 Baltic Street, Brooklyn.

Frank Trotter, 9 years old, of 785 Malbone Street, Brooklyn, was taken to the Kings County Hospital with serious injuries to the head and body after he had been hit at Albany and East New York Avenues by a machine driven by Benjamin Shurack of 1,964 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

FUNERAL OF W. L. ABINGDON.

More Than 400 Friends of Dead Actor Attend Services.

The funeral of William L. Abingdon, the English actor who committed suicide on Friday night after brooding over the outcome of the war, in which two of his sons are actively engaged, was held yesterday at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street. More than 400 of the dead actor's friends in the theatrical profession attended the ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Nathan Seagle, pastor of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church.

"It was Mr. Abingdon's work to interpret human nature to the world," Dr. Seagle said, speaking of the dead actor's career, "and he did it to perfection. During our twelve years of intimate acquaintance I regarded him as one of my warmest friends." George M. Cohan and De Wolf Hopper, who were to have made addresses at the services were unable to attend.

Many members of the Lambs, Players, Actors', and other clubs of which Mr. Abingdon had been a member were present. Mrs. Abingdon, who was Miss Bijou Fernandez, entered the chapel accompanied by her sister and George Nash, a warm friend of the dead actor. The pallbearers were Joseph Grismer, William Courtleigh, Joseph Kilgour, A. O. Brown, John Milturn, Charles Stevenson, and Cyril Harcourt. Burial was in Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn.

CITY BREVITIES.

The annual convention of the Independent Order of Brith Abraham will open on Sunday, May 26, in the New Star Casino, at Lexington Avenue and 110th Street. About 1,400 delegates will attend and Governor Whitman has accepted an invitation to speak.

The Shevuoth festival, with entertainments and exhibits of the work of students, was ended yesterday in the Central Jewish Institute at 125 East Eighty-fifth Street. All the members of the centre were asked to participate.

The General George W. Wingate Athletic League of the public schools in Districts 6 and 7 will have their annual pageant and indoor games in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory next Saturday evening. Pupils from fifteen east side schools will take part.

For New York, the quota is $25,000,000.00.

Some will give thousands, while others will find that it pinches to part with a dollar. But what are the pocket-book-hurts compared to the bodyhurts of men who are giving their lives!

Helping The Day's Work

We fit many of them each season at the DR. A. REED CUSHION SHOE stores. It is interesting to see old customers come back again and again, often choosing the same model shoe each time they buy. They find it good business to be efficient by means of the famous cushion.

BETHLEHEM ELEVEN SHUTS OUT ROVERS

FINAL SCORE 3 GOALS TO 0

Pennsylvanians Play Invulnerable Game in First Half, but Opponents Do Better Near Close.

For the third time since the annual championship of the United States Football Association for the National Challenge Trophy was inaugurated, five years ago, the famous soccer eleven representing the Bethlehem Steel Company of Bethlehem, Penn., fought its way to victory over the Fall River Rovers of Fall River, Mass., in the replay of the final round at the Federal League baseball grounds at Harrison, N. J., yesterday afternoon.

The first clash at Pawtucket between the champions and last year's winners of the cup ended in a 2-2 tie, but yesterday the steelworkers obtained the verdict by the score of 3 goals to 0, after a gruelling contest which taxed the endurance of the twenty-two players engaged to the limit, and which was watched by an excited crowd of 8,000 enthusiasts.

Throughout the first half the Pennsylvania players had it all their own way, establishing a lead of 2 to 0 and forcing seven corners, none of which, however, directly or indirectly, yielded any result. Not until the second half did the New Englanders obtain corners, and then both shots for goal went behind.

The lineup:

Bethlehem, (3.)	Position.	Rovers, (0.)
Duncan	G.	Albion
Fletcher	R. B.	Booth
Ferguson	L. B.	C. Byrnes
Murray	R. H.	F. Byrnes
Campbell	C. H.	Beardsworth
Kirkpatrick	L. H.	Clark
Murphy	O. R.	Smith
Pepper	I. R.	Morgan
Ratican	C.	Sullivan
Forrest	I. L.	Swords
Fleming	O. L.	Chadwick

TAYLOR IN SEMI-FINALS.

Junior Champion Advances in Brooklyn Tennis Tourney.

Two players advanced to the semi-final round of the Brooklyn junior tennis championship at the Terrace Club yesterday afternoon. G. B. Phingst of Philadelphia won his way through in the upper half of the draw when he defeated Percy Kynoston in a hectic three-set match at 6—4, 7—9, 6—2. Below him in the draw Harold Taylor, the Metropolitan junior champion, won an advanced bracket by defeating Frank Anderson at 1—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Phingst and Taylor will therefore meet in the semi-final round. In the boys' tournament Abraham Bassford, 3d, won a semi-final round contest when he defeated W. Aydelotte at 8—6, 6—2.

VETERAN PAIR WINS FINALS.

Steinkampf and Bassford Victors in Harlem Tourney.

Harry J. Steinkampf and Henry Bassford forced their way through to victory in the final round of the Harlem Tennis Club's doubles tournament yesterday afternoon when they defeated Vincent Richards, the national boys' champion, and W. F. Fisher in a sharply waged four-set match at 7—9, 6—2, 6—2, 6—4. It was the perfect coordination of the winners' efforts which more than anything else brought confusion to Richards and Fisher.

MRS. GAVIN LOSES MATCH.

Mrs. William A. Gavin, holder of the women's metropolitan golf championship, was defeated in a handicap Red Cross event at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club yesterday by A. J. Sanderson, the Sleepy Hollow professional, with the score 4 and 3. The women's title holder was hardly at the top of her game, taking an approximate 94 for the course, while Sanderson had an approximate 77. Mrs. Gavin was out in 47, and took a like number of strokes coming in, while Sanderson was out in 39 and back in 38. The extra holes were played out, and it was on the last three that Sanderson did some of his best playing of the day. In each instance he was one under par.

CYCLIST IS BADLY INJURED.

New York Rider in Hospital After Fall at Newark Velodrome.

Arthur Spencer, the national cycling champion, defeated Frank Kramer, the former title holder in two straight heats of a mile match race before the largest crowd of the season at the Velodrome at Newark yesterday. Spencer won the first heat from in front by a little more than a length, and in the second one rode around Kramer, nipping him at the tape and winning by inches.

Louis P. Sattler of 410 East Eighty-second Street, a member of the Century Road Club Association, is in the Newark City Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and a broken nose, which he sustained in a fall on the steep bank in the third heat of the half-mile amateur race. Sattler complained of not feeling well before the race started, and with a lap to go collapsed, sliding down the track on his face. He was taken to the hospital unconscious and is still there.

NAVAL AUXILIARY VICTOR.

Two baseball games between branches of the naval service were played at the Polo Grounds yesterday morning. The games were between the Naval Auxiliary Reserve and the Naval Overseas Transport Service.

The first game was between the enlisted men of the two branches, and was won by the Naval Auxiliary team, 1 to 0. In the second contest, between the officers, victory again went to the Auxiliary Reserves by a score of 7 to 1. The playing of Newman and McGinn was the feature of the officers' game.

Barnes and Hobens Lead on Links.

Jack Hobens, the Englewood Field Club professional, and Jim Barnes of Whitemarsh Valley, earned a victory over two of the amateur golfers, Jerome Travers and Oswald Kirkby, in a thirty-six-hole, four ball best ball match over the Englewood course yesterday, finishing in the lead by 5 and 4.

PITCHING DUEL FOR TYLER.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Chicago won the odd game of the series from Philadelphia today when they shut out the visitors, 3 to 0.

The game was a pitching duel between Tyler and Hogg, with the former having the shade because of the ability of the locals to make their hits count. When the Easterners threatened to score on three occasions, fast double plays frustrated their chances.

GIANTS' PITCHERS MAULED BY REDS

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 19.—The Giants bungled matters terribly in the fourth inning of today's game with the Reds and in that frame Matty's men made enough runs to capture the final game of the series from the league leaders, the final score was 5 to 1.

Jess Barnes, heretofore unbeaten, suffered an ignominious fate today. He was driven from the box in the fourth, though it is true that his troubles were in a large measure due to the damaging errors on the part of his teammates. In all, four Giant pitchers broke into the fray, Jeff Tesreau, Cecil Causey and Al Demaree following in Barnes's footsteps in the order named.

Eller was nicked for ten blows, but had no difficulty in limiting the Giants to one run. The fourth inning began with a muff by Holke of Fletcher's throw of Lee Magee's grounder. Roush dumped a sacrifice bunt in front of the plate, and McCarty, seizing upon the pellet, hurled it over Holke's head, Lee Magee dashing around to third on the error.

Sherwood Magee tripled to right, scoring Lee Magee and Roush, and Griffith singled to right, scoring Sherwood. Neale poked a single to left, and both runners advanced when Barnes threw Blackburne out at first. Wingo was purposely passed, filling the bases. Eller then hit to Zimmerman, who threw to McCarty, forcing Griffith, and McCarty threw to Holke in a futile attempt to double up Eller. Neale, who had rounded third, dashed for the plate, and made it in safety before Holke could get the ball back to McCarty. Barnes couldn't locate the plate for Groh and issued a pass to him, but Lee Magee, up for the second time in that inning, retired the side with a fly to Young.

The Giants had men on the bases in every inning but the first, but they were powerless with the stick on the many occasions when they had a chance to break through and cut down the Reds' lead.

Their lone tally was hung up in the sixth inning. Benny Kauff slugged the ball to the fence in left centre for three bases, and Burns followed with a one-base drive to left that scored Kauff. The game was finished in a pelting rain, which fell from the seventh inning on.

HARD BLOW FOR GIANTS.

Loss of Doyle Serious Handicap on Western Trip.

That Larry Doyle will be lost to the Giants for a much longer time than the club officials care to admit is evident from the fact that Manager McGraw has bought Bert Neihoff to play in Doyle's place at second base. It is stated that while the Giants were playing the Phillies here, just before going West, Manager McGraw realized the seriousness of Doyle's intestinal trouble and immediately started to negotiate with St. Louis for Neihoff's services.

While it is reported that there is much improvement in Doyle's condition since his operation at the New York Post-Graduate Hospital here, the club officials are not counting on Doyle's return to playing form for some time to come. It is feared that it will be many weeks before Doyle will be able to take his regular place at second for the Giants.

The loss of Doyle at a time when he was leading the league with a batting average of .426, and fielding just as well as when he was at his best, is the real reason of the Giants' slump when they invaded the West without Laughing Larry. The sudden loss of such an important factor in the batting order and team play of the club naturally upset it after its wild ride of triumph through the Eastern clubs. The Giants' attack became disarranged and it probably will not get back to its highest point of efficiency again until the new man Niehoff is thoroughly fitted into the club system of play.

In the five games played by the Giants last week they won two and lost three. The falling off in hitting, which was so evident against the Pittsburgh left-handed pitchers, was even more pronounced against Matty's Cincinnati Reds.

The next stand of the Giants is at St. Louis, where McGraw's men should get a chance to recover from their slump. It is certain that the club will have to improve to cope with the Chicago Cubs, a club which is accomplishing much under Manager Mitchell's guidance. Cincinnati went into third place, passing Pittsburgh as a result of their feast on the Giants, but there was no change in the relative positions of the other clubs.

Brooklyn won two games and lost four during the week, and is tied with St. Louis for sixth place in the pennant race. The Dodgers go up against Chicago today, and will have a hard row to hoe. Manager Robinson is badly in need of a reliable pitcher, for none of his present staff has come up to expectations when effective mound work was needed to save a game. Robinson has been trying to buy a pitcher outright, but he has found that none of the other clubs is willing to part with any of their boxmen.

National League officials of the weaker clubs still argue that unless a decided cut is made in the player limit before long that the difference between the strong and weak clubs will be so pronounced that it will hurt interest in the race. If the stronger clubs would turn loose some of their players, which could be brought about by a cut in the player limit, which is now twenty-two, the weaker clubs would get a chance to strengthen with the released players. However, there is so much opposition to this plan from influential clubs like New York and Chicago, that just such a state of affairs is unlikely.

The Yankee pitching continues weak, and all efforts of Manager Huggins to land a new twirler have been in vain. The attitude of American League managers, among the stronger clubs, to aid the weaker clubs by parting with some of their players is no more liberal than in the National League, so the chance of Huggins landing a good experienced pitcher seems slim.

The Yanks won three games and lost two last week, but in their defeat on Saturday showed how really weak their pitching is in a pinch. The Yanks will have their hardest test of the season, beginning today, when they start a series with the world's champion White Sox at the Polo Grounds.

Appel Wins Two Dashes.

Members of the Clark House A. A. competed in the club's handicap members' games yesterday morning at Macomb's Dam Park and furnished a number of interesting performances. H. Appel was the most successful competitor of the meet, scoring two victories. He registered first in the 100-yard dash and also in the 220-yard dash, in both of which events he started from scratch.

LORENZ SHOWS WAY IN BROOKLYN RUN

Brooklyn Athletic Association athletes carried off the lion's share of honors in the open A. A. U. handicap road race of the Kings County A. A., held through the streets of Brooklyn over a course of about four and three-quarter miles yesterday. The large field which finished was led home by J. Lorenz of the Brooklyn A. A., who started with a 3:45 handicap, and crossed the finish line in 25:46.

The time prize was captured by A. Craw, a Brooklyn A. A. representative, who finished in ninth position from the 1:45 mark. His time was 24:17. This was four seconds slower than the time made by Charles Pores of Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, former senior metropolitan cross-country champion, who started from scratch.

Walter Powe of the Alpha P. C. C. romped home an easy winner yesterday in the 440-yard handicap run, one of the chief events at the club's handicap members' games at Macomb's Dam Park. Powe, starting from scratch, quickly cut down his rivals' handicap allowances and with a burst of speed near the finish line drew into a comfortable lead. His time was 54 2-5 seconds.

Six events were decided, providing keen competition. Charles Hill won two events, gaining first in the 100-yard dash, with a two-yard handicap allowance, and winning the 220-yard dash from the five-yard mark. In the running high jump Louis Watson carried off first honors from scratch with a jump of 5 feet 10 inches.

In a one-mile medley relay race the team of the Jersey Harriers A. A. scored a rather easy victory over the Mohawk A. C. Athletes of the Glencoe A. C. finished third in this race, but were disqualified for not properly touching off. The place was therefore awarded to the Pastime A. C. quartet.

MORSE TAKES TWO RACES.

With two victories to his credit in the four-event program, Roy F. Morse, former junior national A. A. U. 100-yard champion, was the greatest point winner in the handicap members' games of the St. Christopher Club at Macomb's Dam Park yesterday. Morse won the 100-yard dash from scratch in 10 seconds and the 220-yard event, also from the honor mark, in 22 2-5 seconds. Scratch athletes also fared favorably in the other two events.

SAILORS WIN TRACK HONORS

Pelham Bay Athletes Take Three Events in Staten Island Meet.

Sailors of Uncle Sam in training at Pelham Bay Naval Training Station played an important rôle yesterday in the track and field meet held at Mount Loretto, Staten Island, for the benefit of the orphan inmates of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin.

The three naval triumphs were scored by P. Starke in the eight-pound shotput; E. Anderson, in the running broad jump, and the Pelham Bay team in the medley relay race. Stark put the shot a distance of 57 feet 2 inches; Anderson, from scratch, accomplished 19 feet 1 inch in the broad jump, and the relay quartet won this event comfortably.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by J. Leavitt, unattached, (3 yards;) M. Voelkl, Morningside A. C., (3 yards,) second; P. K. Walters, Paulist A. C., (scratch,) third. Time—0:10 2-5.

THE COST PER MILE

Put a Bergougnan Tire on your car and compare the mileage it will give you with what the tire on the opposite wheel will give you.

Bergougnan Tires are French tires built in this Country according to a French formula which it has taken us twenty years to perfect. They are made with French care, by hand, slowly, painstakingly....almost lovingly. You get out of them what we put into them. The French War Department uses them in preference to all others. They are regular POILU tires.

GREGORY ISSUES WARNING.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Attorney General Gregory today called attention to the importance of the observance during the Summer season of the waterfront pass system which has been in effect under Presidential proclamation, barring German alien enemies from waterfront properties.

"The fact that during the approaching Summer season the use of the waterfront docks and other waterfront facilities throughout the United States will be greatly increased," says the announcement authorized by the Attorney General today, "makes it proper that the attention of the public and of the owners and operators of waterfront facilities should again be called to Regulation 13 of the President's proclamation of April 6, 1917, and the waterfront pass system inaugurated thereunder by the Department of Justice, which is vested by the President with the authority to enforce the regulation mentioned.

"Regulation 13 applies exclusively to German alien enemies, male and female. It provides that such alien enemies shall not approach or be found within 100 yards of any canal, nor of any wharf, pier, or dock used directly by or by means of lighters by any vessels or vessel of over 500 tons gross, engaged in foreign or domestic trade other than fishing; nor within 100 yards of any terminal, or other terminal, storage or transfer facility adjacent to or operated warehouse, shed, elevator, railroad terminal in connection with any such wharf, pier, or dock; and wherever the distance between any two such wharves, piers, or docks, measured along the shore line connecting them, is less than 880 yards, an alien enemy shall not approach or be found within 100 yards of such shore line.

"The areas prescribed by Regulation 13 are, with the exception of a qualified right of passage direct through such areas in public conveyances or on public streets leading to and from a public ferry or on bridges constituting a public thoroughfare through such a barred zone, absolutely barred to German alien enemies, male and female.

"The object of this regulation is to provide adequate protection of shipping and of the docks, piers, wharves, warehouses, elevators, and similar waterfront facilities engaged in the operation of shipping, particularly the shipping of supplies necessary for the prosecution of the war. The protection of this property obviously cannot be obtained without the full co-operation of those owning or operating these facilities, upon whom the responsibility for affording such protection rests equally with the Government.

"In order effectively to enforce Regulation 13, the Department of Justice has from time to time issued instructions to the owners of docks and other waterfront facilities and has put into operation a waterfront pass system. No passes or permits to enter these restricted areas are issued to German alien enemies, male or female. All other persons who for any reason seek access to these docks or waterfront facilities, except when they are bona fide passengers going to or from a passenger vessel as hereinafter stated, are required to have a waterfront pass under the regulations made by the Department of Justice. In certain particular instances the department has approved of pass systems which have been instituted and put into force by owners or operators of waterfront facilities, but such approved pass systems are usually restricted to the employes of such owners or operators, and all other persons are required to have the form of waterfront pass prescribed by the Department of Justice.

"These passes are to be obtained from the United States Marshals except in certain of the larger cities, such as New York and Baltimore, where they may be obtained from the Collector of Customs, who administers the pass system for the Department of Justice. In the operation of the pass system the department has ruled that bona fide passengers are not required to have and present passes to enable them to embark or disembark from passenger vessels, but this ruling does not mean that alien enemies of any nationality are to be permitted upon passenger boats in violation of any of the other regulations of the President's proclamation relating to such persons.

"The owners and operators of the wharves and of the passenger vessels are urged to see that the process of loading or unloading passengers from the passenger vessels is conducted so as to minimize the danger from hostile persons, and that the passengers are required to move without stopping when passing from the dock or wharf which must be used by them in getting to or from a passenger vessel, and that they are excluded from all parts of the dock or wharf not actually necessary for access to or from such passenger vessel."

Hunter College War Rally.

A patriotic rally representing 16,000 college women will be held at Hunter College next Saturday afternoon in aid of war activities of the Associated Alumnae, who have sent five ambulances to France. Dr. George Samler Davis, President of the college, will introduce George Gordon Battle of the General War Work Committee, and Abram I. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey, who will discuss the war's effect on education of women. There will also be speeches by Mrs. Mary Lease and Miss Grace Parker, Commandant of the National League for Women's Service. The demand for places at the mass meeting has exceeded the capacity of the hall, and no more tickets will be issued.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICES.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of EDWARD H. JEWETT, CHARLES H. JEWETT, GEORGE W. JEWETT, ALPHEUS REHBEIN and JAMES G. MARSHALL, individually and as members of the firm of JEWETT BROS., and the firm of JEWETT BROS., Alleged Bankrupts.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 25,377.

On reading and filing the annexed petition of Allen R. Memhard, Receiver herein, from which, it appears that the above named alleged bankrupts have made an offer of composition to creditors of the firm of Jewett Brothers and that it is necessary for the proper consideration thereof, and the due and proper administration of the estate of said firm that a determination should be had of the nature and amount of claims asserted by all persons against property in the hands of the Receiver, or to which he may be entitled, and that provision be made for a realization in cash upon the membership in the New York Stock Exchange, constituting one of the assets of said firm, and that the amount of the respective claims of creditors be fixed and determined, it is, on motion of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf and Rosenberg & Ball, attorneys for said Receiver.

Ordered, that the meeting of creditors of the firm of Jewett Bros., alleged bankrupts, called to be held in Room 235, Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, at 2 o'clock P. M. on May 21, 1918, pursuant to order of this Court, dated April 26, 1918, be and the same hereby is adjourned and ordered to be held before the undersigned Judge of this Court in Room 235, Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, at 2 o'clock P. M., on June 3, 1918, for the allowance of claims, examinations of the bankrupts and to consider the offer of composition referred to in said order and for all the other purposes referred to in said order and in this order. At the said adjourned hearing or any adjournment thereof this Court will make such order relative to the sale or other disposition of assets of the alleged bankrupts in the hands of the Receiver, or to which he may be entitled, including the membership in the Stock Exchange in the name of Edward H. Jewett, as may be deemed just and proper.

Further ordered, that each and every creditor, customer, claimant or other person claiming any right, title or interest in or to any property in the possession, custody or control of the Receiver herein, or to which he or any trustee in bankruptcy herein may be entitled, or claiming any rights in respect thereof other than those of a general unsecured creditor of the said firm, shall file written and verified claim thereof or to the proceeds thereof, with the said Allen R. Memhard, Receiver, at his office, No. 120 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on or before June 15, 1918; and it is

Further ordered, that each and every customer, creditor, claimant or other person claiming any right, title or interest in and to any property in the hands of the Receiver, or to which he or any trustee in bankruptcy may be entitled, who shall not file such written and verified claim therefor, or to the proceeds thereof, on or before June 15, 1918, shall be forever barred, if said composition is accepted and confirmed, from making claim or asserting any right, title, interest or ownership therein or thereto or to the proceeds thereof; and it is Further ordered, that a copy of this order shall be published in The New York Times once prior to May 21, 1918, and once during the calendar week beginning May 27th, 1918, and also on June 3, and June 10, 1918, and that the Receiver shall cause a copy of this order to be mailed on or before May 20, 1918, to each and every person appearing in the schedules as a customer or creditor of or claimant against the said firm, or as a creditor of the individual alleged bankrupts, or who shall have filed notice of appearance in this proceeding, and that the Receiver shall also cause to be mailed therewith or attached to or endorsed upon each copy of the order so mailed to the customer creditors of said firm, a notice stating the amount at which his claim has been set forth in the schedules filed herein, and such mailing and publication shall constitute due, timely and sufficient notice to each and every person of all of the matters set forth herein and to each customer, claimant and creditor that if the composition is approved his claim will be allowed as a general unsecured claim at the amount appearing in the schedules filed herein.

Dated, New York, May 16th, 1918.

In the Midst of Million-Share Days

Restraints under which the stock market had been held for more than a year were pushed aside by the rising tide of speculative trading following announcement that the Third Liberty Loan had been well oversubscribed, and almost lost sight of last week as the movement spread and gained momentum. For months, with hardly any reactions, prices had sagged until a condition was reached in which it was perfectly plain that it would need but a small stimulus in the shape of a reawakened demand to start prices upward. The closing of the loan campaign supplied psychological conditions favorable to the inauguration of a new buying movement for stocks which were returning abnormal dividend yields, and luck favored the new market with an absence of unfavorable war news, while domestic conditions were most favorable. It is doubtful if even the large speculative traders who believed the time ripe for a demonstration of confidence had any idea that a bull market could be built up in such a short space of time, and they were made uneasy by the rapidity of the advance, which was not halted by periodic reactions until some of the active issues had moved up from 10 to 20 points. They were surprised at the wealth of bullish news which people discovered once their attention was called to rising prices. The loan was oversubscribed by nearly 40 per cent., the May 1 crop report disclosed a record improvement in the condition of the principal cereal, the shipbuilding program began to produce results fully up to the early expectations, the threatened overturn of the British Ministry was averted, and the hope of an unprecedented increase in railroad rates was held out in a semi-official announcement from Washington.

Each full trading day last week saw more than a million shares done, and the average was maintained through the two hours of the closing session. Such a market draws strength from an ever widening circle of traders, until the proportion of professional operations to commission business is down to the minimum. It creates a better field for the investment banker and quickens business, but if allowed to pass reasonable bounds becomes dangerous by absorbing an undue amount of banking funds. At some point prices will pass the values back of them and set the stage for a slump. It looked at the middle of the week as though discretion had been thrown to the winds by the purchasers of industrial issues which had been marked up without regard to fundamental conditions, but the rise was checked by selling encouraged by those who had helped to get the bull market under way, and a healthier tone prevailed at the end of the week. When traders begin to disregard reasons other than the fact that certain stocks are moving upward no story is too improbable to receive a hearing. An issue which was in popular disfavor at 80 becomes for a brief time the speculative leader around par, and the stocks with established earnings records are neglected in the pursuit after new favorites with nothing to commend them other than the prospect that some one else will buy them at still higher levels. When the movement slows down the stocks that have been footballs of speculation slump off as rapidly as they advanced. A market such as was witnessed last week emphasizes the need for caution.

The Red Cross has become such a vital part of the nation's contribution toward winning the war that neither stockholders nor directors are likely to offer objections to the proposal that corporations having a surplus over their requirements for fixed charges should appropriate this week up to 1 per cent. on their capital stock toward the $100,000,000 fund which the leaders must raise. In the first drive for contributions the leading corporations declared from one-quarter of 1 per cent. to 1 per cent. in special dividends for the benefit of the Red Cross, and the total amounts so declared were included in the reports of the progress of the campaign. For one reason or another a considerable part of this good-will offering never reached the organization for which it was intended. In many instances, undoubtedly, the recipients of the dividends had taken them into account in making direct contributions, while in others there were legal obstacles in the way of turning the checks over. Since then the Legislatures of this State, New Jersey, and Massachusetts have enacted laws authorizing corporations under their jurisdiction to make appropriations up to an amount equivalent to 1 per cent. of their share capital for the benefit of the Red Cross. Inasmuch as it would be difficult, if not impossible, to discover a single company of any size which has not from one to some thousand former employes now in war service, the stockholders can feel that in providing for the Red Cross they are making a direct contribution for the welfare of their own men.

Under pre-war conditions the proposed transfer of practically all of the vessels owned by the International Mercantile Marine to British interests would be looked upon as sounding the death knell of the American merchant marine, but with several hundred new freighters ordered and building in United States yards the transfer is not likely to prejudice the position of our foreign commerce after the war, especially as the vessels are already under the British flag. The time is opportune for this country to correct the mistakes that made her foreign trade almost entirely dependent upon foreign bottoms. To give American shipowners a fair field in the world competition it should be determined whether or not vessels can be constructed here as cheaply as abroad; the classification should be made uniform; restrictive laws covering the employment of seamen revised where they impose obvious disadvantages against ships under the flag of the United States, and the Government's War Risk Bureau continued in some form after the war to provide for insurance which cannot be placed with private companies. In the past the British have been able to control the movements of American-owned vessels because they carried at least a part of the insurance, and the power to make rates is the power to route the risks. Shipping authorities hold that in future the operator should be enabled to place with a Government agency any part of his insurance that he cannot obtain through the regular companies, if he is not to be subjected to control of foreign shipping interests.

LAND BANKS OFFER FARM LOAN BONDS

HUGHES INDORSES THEM

Probably $30,000,000 of the Securities Will Be Ready for Delivery on July 15.

The twelve Federal Land Banks are now making loans to farmers at the rate of about $15,000,000 a month, and arrangements have just been made for the sale of Farm Loan bonds through a banking syndicate consisting of Alexander Brown & Sons, Harris, Forbes & Co., Brown Brothers & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., and the National City Company, the group possessing wide distributing powers.

The last issue of Farm Loan bonds was put out at 4½ per cent., but the new offering consists of 5 per cent. securities, the rate having been raised in order to meet present security market prices. The 5 per cent. bonds will be sold to the public at 101 and interest, at which price they will net 4¾ per cent. to the redeemable date (1923) and 5 per cent. thereafter up to redemption or maturity.

The bonds are "instrumentalities" of the United States, and as such are exempt from Federal, State, Municipal, and local taxation, and their tax exemption features are as complete as those of the 3½ per cent. bonds of the First Liberty Loan. The bonds are acceptable by the United States Treasury as security for Government deposits, including Postal Savings funds; and they are eligible for investment by savings banks in twenty-five States.

An indefinite amount of these bonds will be offered, depending upon the operations of the Federal Land Banks, but the understanding is that $30,000,000 will be ready for delivery on or before July 15. The bonds are in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000.

Ex-Justice Charles E. Hughes has prepared an opinion on the constitutionality of the Federal Farm Loan act, and particularly with respect to the validity of the bonds and the provisions exempting them from taxation. Mr. Hughes says:

> My conclusion is that the Farm Loan bonds to be issued by the Federal Land Banks organized and controlled as provided in the Federal Farm Loan Act will be, when duly issued and paid for, valid securities, constituting as declared by Congress instrumentalities of the Government of the United States, and that they and the income derived therefrom will be exempt as provided in the act from Federal, State, municipal, and local taxation; and further that, with respect to bonds duly issued and paid for under this exemption, it will constitute a continuing exemption which cannot be withdrawn by subsequent legislation.

The previous issue of Farm Loan bonds, which consisted of 4½ per cent. securities, was offered at 100½ to yield about 4.40 per cent. There are now outstanding approximately $160,000,000 of Farm Loan bonds, of which the United States Treasury holds about $50,000,000.

KNOWN DEAD BY TNT EXPLOSION NOW 56

FUMES HAMPER THE SEARCH

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 19.—Fifty-six men are known to be dead, ninety-four injured are in hospitals, and thirty-one employes of the Aetna Chemical Company are missing as a result of the nine explosions yesterday that wrecked this company's explosive manufacturing plant at Oakdale, sixteen miles from this city. This report is the result of the day's investigation by State, Federal, county, and city officials, and of the work of scores of men, under direction of Coroner Samuel C. Jamison.

Throughout the night and all day today men were extinguishing small fires in the débris and were bringing out remnants of human bodies. In most cases there was nothing to identify the victim.

While earlier explosions wrecked the plant, the last one, about 6:30, blew the piles of débris clear of the ground and scattered them over more acreage than before, blackening everything beyond recognition.

All day a brown smoke continued to hang over the ruins, considerably impeding the work of the searchers. Its deadly fumes are feared by the resi- [a slight breeze would lift the smoke would searchers be able to get close to the piles of débris.

For a time the work was impeded further by the thousands of sightseers, who flocked to the scene from the surrounding country. Automobiles blocked all roads to and from the place, and another company of the State Constabulary was rushed in automobiles from Greensburg to establish a greater cordon about the scene of the disaster. The crowds were ordered back, and automobiles were turned back when they had reached within five miles of Oakdale. Later a complete cordon encircled the plant a mile and a half, and only those having business were admitted past the guards.

Thousands of persons streamed into the temporary morgue all day to view the bodies, and it took a special detail of police to keep this morbid element in check. There were many there of fright, however, and some identifications were thus made. Pitiful scenes were enacted, and one in particular when Adam Partz, one of the Coroner's workers in the morgue, collapsed. He had found in a bucket a bunch of keys and a penknife which had belonged to his son. The son had been employed in the plant.

The country is desolate for an area of several miles around the plant, where the former green hillsides have been seared and burned by the blasts. The meadows and fields have been seared, and fruit and shade trees have been blasted and denuded of their foliage.

Federal officers, representing the Department of Justice, today ordered the arrest of two men who were photographing the ruins and who were charged by a woman with making seditious remarks.

A special policeman employed by the Aetna Chemical Company arrested two men early today as they were about to hurry away from the plant on a motor cycle. The names and charges upon which these men are held are withheld by officials pending investigation.

Among the identified dead are John K. Lawson, 16 years old, of Brooksville, Fla.; Henry Plenty, negro, of Scottsburg, Va.; Patrick McManus, Fitchburg, Mass.; George Ross, Steubenville, Ohio; Marshall J. A. Todd, Alliance, Ohio; Marshall Anderson, China Grove, N. C.; George Christopher, Reynolds, Ga.; H. E. Brillinger, York, Penn., and J. R. Lane, Meadville, Penn.

Miss Meryl Ascielnan, the graduate nurse from St. John's Hospital, who was caught in one of the explosions while doing rescue work, was reported today to be in a fair way to recovery, despite the loss of one leg that was blown off.

San Francisco	5½	4

In case the sixty-day trade acceptance rate is higher than the fifteen-day discount rate, trade acceptances maturing within fifteen days will be taken at the lower rate. Whenever application is made by member banks for renewal of fifteen-day paper, the Federal Reserve Banks may charge a rate not exceeding that for ninety days' paper of the same class.

TRAIN FACTORY MANAGERS.

Columbia to Have a New Course to Aid Industries.

A course in organization and management, to be open to technical men, employed in managerial posts, is to be given next Fall by Columbia University, according to an announcement by the Department of Extension Teaching. The course will be given by Professor Walter Rautenstraugh, consulting engineer at several industrial plants. It will be essentially a study in manufacturing, but will consider commercial questions as well as technical problems.

Professor Rautenstraugh believes that industry and technical schools should co-operate. He thinks industries have failed to profit by scientific discoveries made in laboratories. "I am anxious," he said, "that Columbia University shall be a leader in a movement to carry to our manufacturers every bit of service possible, that our nation may be strong."

He suggested that manufacturers participating should select for instruction the managers of different departments.

INDORSE AIR MAIL SERVICE.

Aero Club of America Urges Extension to Pittsburgh and Boston.

The Executive Committee of the Aero Club of America has written to Secretary Baker and Assistant Postmaster General Praeger indorsing the plan to extend the aerial mail service and urging the extension of the service from New York and Washington to Pittsburgh and Cleveland and from New York to Boston.

They point out that tests have shown the necessity of giving more extensive cross-country flying training to military aviation students, and that by extending the aerial mail service the students may get extensive experience in that branch of flying.

The letter addressed to Secretary Baker and Assistant Postmaster Praeger is, in part, as follows:

> The first four days of aerial mail carrying between New York, Philadelphia, and Washington have shown how absolutely necessary it is to give extensive cross-country flying to our military aviators, so that they may be fully trained when sent overseas. This training should be continued until the aviators become familiar with the topography of the country.
>
> By extending the aerial mail service to Pittsburgh and Cleveland the character of the aerial mail service will assume much greater importance, both from the standpoint of the extensive cross-country flying which it will afford to the military aviators, as well as from the standpoint of the actual figures in time required for the delivery of mail to the manufacturing centres in the Middle West and West.
>
> The addition of an aerial mail route from Belmont Park to Boston is quite logical. This route will be one of the most efficient, because mail for New York and the North arrives at Belmont Park and the route from New York to Boston can be laid directly from that point. This route will also afford valuable advanced training in cross-country flying for our military aviators.

TO ADJUST WAGES IN WEST.

Taft and Walsh on War Labor Board Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Ex-President Taft and Frank P. Walsh, joint Chairmen of the National War Labor Board, will leave Washington on Tuesday night on a trip to Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland, and Detroit to adjust industrial disputes.

At Kansas City they will conduct an inquiry, on May 24, into the wage controversy between the Pittsburg & Joplin Railway Company and its employes. The workers had been on strike, but returned to work when they were assured that the National War Labor Board would take up the case and that the company would abide by the board's decision.

They will visit St. Louis on May 25 to adjust the differences of the St. Joseph Lead Company and its employes in the smelter at Herculaneum, Mo. The men were on strike, but went back upon an agreement that the War Labor Board would assume jurisdiction and that its decision would be binding. The controversy has been narrowed by voluntary agreements on all other points, so that it is now confined to the question of wages. The men involved produce one-fifth of all the lead mined in the United States.

A wage dispute exists between the Detroit United Railway Company and its employes, which Messrs. Taft and Walsh will seek to adjust when they visit Detroit on May 27. A similar situation obtains between the Cleveland Railway Company and its employes. That city will be visited on May 28.

In their efforts to effect settlements of these controversies Messrs. Taft and Walsh will act as a section of the War Labor Board.

WAR SAVINGS HONOR FLAGS.

Committee Ready to Distribute Trade Division Recognitions.

The New York War Savings Committee announced yesterday that it was ready to distribute the honor flags in the trade divisions where the quotas of War Savings Stamps have been exceeded or filled before the time set for the end of the campaign. The first flag is to go to Lasher & Lathrop, 29 Lafayette Street, the first firm in the Paper Division to exceed the quota. The flag will be raised on their building today with ceremonies to be attended by members of the committee.

The banner committee among the trade divisions is the Hosiery and Knit Goods Division, which reported that 92.3 per cent. of its quota had been subscribed before April 27, with a total of $138,474 out of $150,000. The drive among the trade committees is in charge of a managing committee headed by William Fellowes Morgan, who calls the committee the "Pioneer Division," in honor of the first American expeditionary force sent to France under General Pershing.

PROFIT IN SUGAR WASTE.

An idea of what is being done by large industrial enterprises in utilizing waste materials is furnished by the annual report of the American Beet Sugar Company. This concern several years ago began converting the pulp which it had previously thrown away into a valuable food for cattle. While for the year ending March 31, 1917, the return from the pulp amounted to $198,022, the net receipts for the succeeding year totaled $314,324, and was more than sufficient to pay the dividend on the preferred stock of the company.

"At Oxnard, Cal.," says the report, "after experiments during the last three campaigns, a plant is being erected at an estimated cost of $123,939 to extract from the water which is now run into the ocean, potash, ammonia, &c., the market value of which has advanced so rapidly during the war. This plant, it is expected, will be ready for operation when the factory begins work the coming Summer, and it is estimated that the profit on its production this year will exceed its cost, and that hereafter, even with peace prevailing, the value of its product will insure continued profitable operation."

The Care of Securities for Absent Owners

IF you are considering leaving town for the summer, the care and custody of your securities during your absence may be a matter of concern to you. The Trust Department of this Company will relieve you of all attention to details in the care of your securities, and at the same time hold them always subject to your direct control.

This includes such services as assuming responsibility for the physical care of securities; the collection and credit (or remittance) of income, and principal when due; buying and selling securities upon order; preparing certificates of ownership in connection with Income Tax requirements; and reporting upon the condition of investments, when requested

While attending to the entire routine care of securities, we endeavor to adapt our service to each individual's particular needs. The cost is very moderate.

Send for our booklet, "The Safe Keeping of Securities," which gives full details.

LIMIT ROAD SUPPLIES.

To Conserve Petroleum, Asphalt and Tar Products for War.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Use of oil and coal products in public road work will be limited for the period of the war. Petroleum, asphalt, or tar products wanted for building or repairing roads will be delivered, it was announced today, only after approval of the application by a committee representing the Fuel Administration and the office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture.

Limitation of the use of oil products has been made necessary by the demands of the army, navy, allied, and essential war industries, but it is announced that every effort will be made to furnish sufficient of such products to prevent deterioration of the bituminous macadam roads of the country, which are valued at upward of a billion dollars.

WILL SERVE MILK DINNERS.

The six-day National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition will open to-day at the Grand Central Palace, at which the food value of milk will be exploited on a large scale. Cows from all parts of the State will be on exhibition, including Oxford's Briar Flower, the State's champion milk and butter producer, that has just been sold for the record price of $10,000.

Milk dinners will be a feature of the exposition, and will be served daily under the supervision of the Board of Conservation of the New York State Food Commission, Cornell University, Teacher's College, and the Pratt Institute.

Today will be New York State Day, and there will be present representatives from all the State departments. Governor Whitman will officially open the show. New York State has appropriated $30,000 for its individual exhibit, which will include a number of interesting features by Cornell University. One of these is the exhibit of Professor E. V. McCollum's diet squad of rats, 1,500 in number, from Johns Hopkins University. Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover will address the dairymen on Dairymen's League Day, Thursday, May 23. Dr. Charles E. North is managing director of the show. The cost of the exposition is about $100,000.

Cambric, Muslin and Nainsook
Will purchase for cash at lowest possible price best qualities that can be delivered at once or future in large or small lots. Address by letter only.

FEDERAL EYES ON CONSTRUCTION

NO BLANKET PROHIBITION

In order to cause no embarrassment to Government construction, the tendency at Washington is more and more toward centralizing effort in the direction of essential construction only, with the idea of conserving as much as possible available building material.

This disposition is clearly reflected in the situation governing Portland cement manufacture in the Lehigh and Hudson districts supplying this market. It would not be a question of circumscribing building construction at all if it were assured that there will be enough fuel available to permit building materials to be manufactured in normal quantities, but the Federal authorities are confronted with the problem of supplying an army at least double in size that originally contemplated and the whole estimate of the quantity of building construction the various Government branches will require this Summer and Autumn had been set at a point far below the new necessities.

Recent reports on the supplies of building materials at various distributing points show stocks very little in excess of the total amount the Government authorities thought they would need, with the result that with the enlarged military and naval programs it is not known just how the various building material producers will be able to meet the emergency if ordinary building work is permitted to proceed. It is apparently not the intention of the authorities to issue a blanket order to stop all building construction save that only of Government origination, but until some idea can be obtained as to just how much building material is available those contemplating private non-essential construction work are being requested by letter from the proper authorities to defer their operations for the moment.

Some idea of the pressure that is already being levied upon some materials was evidenced in the trade last week when it became known that it might be necessary for the Government to take over the steel-producing capacity of the country. In the Portland cement districts supplying the New York metropolitan district it was learned that in spite of every effort toward high efficiency the stocks of Portland cement on hand on May 1 were 40 per cent. less than the quantiies on hand on the same date a year ago, and 45 per cent. less than that on hand May 1, 1916. This shows that as fast as Portland cement is manufactured it is being shipped. Shipments out of this zone in April were 25 per cent. greater than they were in March of this year, and March had a shipping record far greater than that of the same month last year, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports. Common brick, another basic building commodity, was advancing over the week-end and was expected to rule around $10 for all grades by today. This change is partly due to the stress of demand and low productivity and the increasing probability of heavy Government requisitions within the near future.

With the hope of helping the situation somewhat the Fuel Administration is doing what it can to get coal to these building material producing plants, but even with full co-operation of all other departments at Washington the coal deliveries at the cement plants in the first two weeks in May showed that fuel deliveries at the Lehigh district were still 40 per cent. behind that of the same two weeks in 1917.

One of the first things that the Government will determine is whether there is sufficient building material on hand to take care of wartime requirements and at the same time permit a reasonable quantity of private construction work to proceed. As far as the Eastern seaboard is concerned the building material supply is in requisition now for quantities far in excess of the amount needed for construction in the entire year 1913 when the metropolitan district of New York had 13,894,000 square feet of construction work planned and going ahead while Government construction on only two Government operations at present call for two structures which combined represent almost 12,000,000 square feet, and this does not include cantonment enlargement and new terminal construction facilities. In 1912 there was almost an over-supply of building materials, whereas today the quantities of building materials in this district are less than 50 per cent. of normal.

There is no hope of increasing this supply unless fuel deliveries can be guaranteed. Happily the outlook for improvement in fuel supply is brightening as the situation is being demonstrated to the authorities at Washington.

WARNS OF TRADE FRAUDS.

Freas Brown Snyder, Chairman of the Investigation Committee of the National Association of Credit Men, in a statement issued last night, said:

"One-fourth of the annual losses caused by bad debts, amounting to $52,000,000 yearly, is due to dishonest business men whose vocation is to obtain goods on credit for which they never intend to pay. If credit men would investigate the antecedents of persons sending in new, unsolicited orders, one half of the fraudulent cases would be eliminated.

"There are enough 'fences,' stores which dispose of goods obtained on credit by men who evade payment, in New York City to fill a good-sized town. In one section 50 per cent. of the stores are 'fences.' Domestic unhappiness is the cause of 10 per cent. of the business failures.

"We at home can help America win the war by dealing only with reputable business houses. When there is a decrease in the number of bad debt accounts the high cost of living will be lowered. Every crooked concern has a list of easy credit men, from whom it is not difficult to obtain merchandise.

"There are three C's in credit—character, capital, and capacity—and the greatest of these is character.

"It is the patriotic duty of every honest credit man to wage war on the crooked business man. We owe it to the public, to the honorable dealers, and to ourselves to make a determined drive to reduce the number of fraudulent cases, which have been increased as a result of the war."

To Report on 305th's Families.

The Women's Auxiliary of the 305th Infantry, composed of the wives and other relatives of the officers of that regiment, invites all interested to attend a mass meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the United Engineering Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. Reports will be made of the auxiliary's activities in caring for the welfare of the families of the soldiers now on active service. An interesting entertainment will follow.

RESTRICTS COAL FOR SWISS.

Germany Imposes Unfair Conditions Affecting French Supply.

PARIS, May 18.—Germany has profited by the generous French offer to supply Switzerland with 85,000 tons of coal monthly by imposing upon Switzerland the condition that it may obtain the customary 200,000 tons from Germany only in case it maintains this ratio of 200,000 tons to 85,000 tons between the two sets of warring powers—that if the German supply falls below the stipulated 200,000 tons, as it always has done, the amount drawn from France must drop correspondingly, according to Le Temps.

The newspaper points out that the German object is obviously to hamper, so far as possible, Swiss ammunition firms, which work in the interest of the Entente countries, from increasing or even maintaining their present output. It refers to the continued failure of Germany to supply Switzerland with anywhere near the agreed minimum of 200,000 tons, which, even without the impetus of the Entente supply, has usually averaged about 160,000 tons.

Le Temps hopes, however, that Switzerland will be able to hold Germany near to the account because it supplies Germany with electricity equivalent to 75,000 tons of coal monthly, and the arrangement between the two countries is something of a give and take when Switzerland's beef and other supplies are taken into consideration.

7 VALUABLE DOGS PERISH.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 19.—Seven Belgian police dogs, including "Filax," valued at $4,000, perished in a fire which destroyed the Meadowbrook kennels, owned by Mrs. Leo Wanner, at Meadowbrook today. The seven dogs and the kennels were valued at over $25,000.

"Filax" had seen service in France and had been wounded. He was sent to this country to aid in the first Red Cross drive and was instrumental in raising over $3,000.

Among the other pedigreed animals which perished in the fire were "Lillie," "Schust," a son of Champion Mack, "Debora," and "Elsa." "Queens Myra" was on exhibition in New Jersey yesterday and won first prize, but on the trip back to Meadowbrook she got a chill, and Mrs. Wanner kept her in the house during the night, thus saving her life.

Mrs. Wanner is Deputy Sheriff of Nassau County and at various times had loaned her police dogs to aid the authorities in the hunt for criminals.

RED CROSS SLOGAN IN WILSON'S SPEECH

Give Freely, the Plea of 100,000 Workers Who Begin $100,000,000 Campaign Today.

APPEAL TO CORPORATIONS

Every Home, Office, and Trade to be Canvassed—1,000 Booths on City Street Corners.

More than 100,000 Red Cross workers will begin today in a city bright with American flags and Red Cross flags to collect for the Second Red Cross War Fund. With an organization even larger in numbers than that which carried on the last Liberty Loan campaign and a program hardly less elaborate, the Red Cross leaders were confident yesterday that they would realize the prediction of Cleveland H. Dodge, who said in his introduction of the President at the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday night that he believed the $100,000,000 minimum would be oversubscribed by 50 or 100 per cent.

Red Cross workers will swarm in all parts of the city. Committees will canvass every office and every workroom in the business sections, while thousands of women will make the house-to-house canvasses in the residential sections. One thousand booths at populous street corners will remind passersby of their duty to subscribe to the "second line of defense" of the Allies. Countless meetings will take place daily in city parks, at churches, in homes and in clubrooms, forums and public meeting places of every kind.

Many penetrating phrases from his speech will be reprinted and circulated by the hundreds of thousands in New York City. The Committee on Corporations of the Red Cross drive has adopted as the basis for its intensive campaign of the business district the following words from his speech:

"My friends, a great day of duty has come, and duty finds a man's soul as no other kind of work can ever find it. May I say this: The duty that faces us all now is to serve one another, and no man can afford to make a fortune out of this war. There are men among us who have forgotten that, if they ever saw it. Some of you are old enough—I am old enough—to remember men who made fortunes out of the civil war, and you know how they were regarded by their fellow citizens. That was a war to save one country—and this is a war to save the world. And your relation to the Red Cross is one of the relations which will relieve you of the stigma. You can't give anything to the Government of the United States; it won't accept it. There is a law of Congress against accepting even services without pay. The only thing that the Government will accept is a loan and duties performed; but it is a great deal better to give than to lend or to pay, and your great channel for giving is the American Red Cross."

The following letter has been sent by William Boyce Thompson, Chairman of the Committee on Corporations, to all corporations in New York City:

> To All Corporations in Greater New York:
>
> The President of the United States has appointed a War Council of the American Red Cross to solicit funds for relief in the war and has designated the week beginning May 20 as the period in which the funds needed shall be raised.
>
> The Committee on Corporations Campaign is, therefore, asking you to consider the question of making a suitable contribution to the war fund and is sending you a pamphlet dealing with the legal right and moral duty of all American corporations to make liberal subscriptions.
>
> The matter is discussed by eminent American lawyers—the Hon. Charles E. Hughes and the Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien. They have both taken the broad ground that the winning of the war is essential to the life of every corporation in the United States; that the American Red Cross is an important agency in winning the war, and that since it is the duty of a corporation to protect its very existence it is its duty to support the American Red Cross.
>
> The States of New York and New Jersey have passed laws by which this right and duty to support the Red Cross is written into statutes. But above and beyond the question of statutory permission arises the obligation imposed by the national welfare. This, broadly stated, is the position taken by the men whose opinions are given in the inclosed pamphlet.
>
> So clearly set forth is this view the committee feels that comment is superfluous, and urges generous support to the appeal which is now being made. It is made to all corporations in Greater New York in confidence that the response will be universal and immediate.
>
>
> President Wilson says: "The American Red Cross * * * is recognized by law and international conventions as a public instrumentality for war relief."
>
> The Hon. Charles E. Hughes says: "The question is not one of permitting the use of corporate moneys for what are or may be called 'worthy objects' outside the corporate enterprise, but for the maintenance of the very foundation of the corporate enterprise itself."
>
> The Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien says: "No earthquake or plague * * * in its disastrous effect, can be compared with our defeat in this war. The enormous expense which a single day's unnecessary duration of the war involves must be distributed among all the various property interests of our country in one way or another. No interest can avoid contributing its share."
>
> Richard V. Lindabury of New Jersey, in writing to a client, says in part: "The corporation is the creature of the State and could not survive its destruction. If the property of the company * * * were attacked it would have a clear right to expend its funds in its defense. Its right to do so at the instance of the State and in connection with the Government is not lessened by the fact that the attack begun on a foreign shore has not yet reached this city." Yours very truly,
>
> WILLIAM BOYCE THOMPSON,
> Chairman Committee on Corporations Campaign.

Atlantic Division's Plans.

"Approximately 500,000 men and women will begin work tomorrow in the second $100,000,000 war fund campaign of the Red Cross in the territory of the Atlantic Division outside Greater New York, it was announced yesterday at division campaign headquarters, 44 East Twenty-third Street.

"These workers will range all the way from Gerhard M Dahl, Chairman of the Second War Fund Committee and Vice President of the Chase National Bank of New York City, to solicitors in the smallest villages in the three States—New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

"Every household will be visited in a house-to-house canvass, every factory and office worker will be asked to subscribe, and every farmer, farmer's wife and child will receive a special appeal. The farmer will be asked to give an amount equivalent to the yield of an acre of land.

"The division outside Greater New York has been asked to raise one-tenth of the entire fund, and, in the opinion of Mr. Dahl, it will go well over its allotment.

"Some noteworthy quotas are: The Oranges, $300,000; Montclair, $275,000; Newark, $750,000; Englewood, $180,000; Jersey City, $200,000; Red Bank, $125,000; Troy, $175,000; Albany, $250,000; Amsterdam, $100,000; Bridgeport, $300,000; Hartford, $400,000; New Britain, $115,000; New Haven, $300,000; Waterbury, $350,000, and Stamford, $115,000.

"The personnel of the Atlantic Division War Fund Committee, of which Mr. Dahl is Chairman, follows:

"George P. Schmidt, Vice Chairman; C. A. Coffin, Forrest F. Dryden, A. B. Leach, Donald McDonald, Isaac M. Ullman, Charles H. Simmons, A. I. Esberg, J. H. Gannon, Executive Secretary; Edward A. Norman, Assistant Secretary; C. C. Michener, Campaign Manager; A. T. Tamblyn, Chairman Speakers' Bureau, and Walter C. McMillan, Chairman Advertising Committee.

"New York State and New Jersey are divided into districts. The former has five districts, the latter four. Donald McDonald is the War Fund Chairman for New York, with headquarters at Albany; A. B. Leach is Chairman for New Jersey, with headquarters at Newark, and Colonel Isaac M. Ullman heads the campaign for Connecticut. His headquarters is in New Haven."

For the Industrial Canvass.

In addition to the canvass for direct contributions from corporations, a large organization has been formed for an industrial canvass of all employes in factories, offices, and business places. C. A. Coffin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the General Electric Company, is Chairman of the Industrial Campaign, with main headquarters on the twentieth floor of the Equitable Building. Gerald M. Curran is the Executive Secretary and the following are Vice Chairman: Mercer P. Moseley, D. W. Cooke, William E. Taylor, Ray Palmer, James Breckenridge, and Theodore H. Spratt. Rally at Liberty Bell.

One of the centres of the drive in New York will be the Liberty Bell in City Hall Park, where Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, will speak at noon, followed by E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, and a number of other speakers and entertainers.

The Red Cross booth of the Stage Women's War Relief in front of the New York Public Library will start its drive tomorrow afternoon, with speakers, singers, and entertainers, including Miss Rachel Crothers, Miss Maggie Teyte, Ruth Draper, and Minnie Dupree, William Kelly, Ada Patterson, Joseph R. Grismer, Elisabeth Marbury, Grace La Rue, Joseph Bickerton, Grant Mitchell, and the Police Glee Club. Officials of this committee are Mrs. Linzee Blagden, Mrs. Joseph R. Grismer, Mrs. Alice Fisher Harcourt, and Mrs. Mitchel Hall. Girls will collect from the crowds at the Library.

Red Cross concerts will be held daily at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at 677 Fifth Avenue. Singers at the first concert this afternoon at 3 o'clock will be Clarence Whitehill, Marcia van Dresser, George Barrere, Paul Kefer, and Carlos Salzedo. Mr. Whitehill will sing "America" at the first concert. A score of other opera stars and well-known singers have volunteered their services for the concerts, which will be held through the week.

The big Red Cross Field Day at the Polo Grounds will be held on Monday a week from today. A number of prizes for fungo hitting, speed in circling the bases, and other baseball feats will be awarded at the game on that day.

George W. Wickersham and George Gordon Battle will speak at noon tomorrow from the steps of St. Paul's Church, at Broadway and Vesey Street. Other noted speakers will talk to crowds there on successive days at noon.

Church bells and factory whistles, sounding in unison, will count up the millions collected at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and at the same hour on succeeding days, while the big Red Crosses stationed at Broadway and Houston Street and at Fifth Avenue and Eighth Street will move uptown one block for each million collected.

The cloak, suit, and skirt industry has organized for a drive to collect from every section of the trade under the leadership of a committee composed of Max Meyer, Ben Erdman, William Dann, Paul Prager, William H. Hoar, Roger W. Allen, John M. O'Connor, and Joseph Hans.

As a Builder of Morale.

"This message is that, despite the huge quantities of machinery and munitions, despite the billions of dollars, despite the millions of tons of ships that are being poured into this terrible venture, the real factor in deciding the war will be something that cannot be manufactured, something that cannot be measured, something that cannot even be seen. More vital than airplanes, more important than machine guns, tanks, submarine chasers, or high explosives is the quality of the spirit of the men in the trenches and on the ocean. When the French and British were retreating to the Marne in the first weeks of the war, when the French were deluged with the terrific rain of steel that accompanied the German drive toward Verdun, when the British and the Canadians underwent the tortures of the first gas attacks at Ypres, the issue was not how many miles of territory would be yielded or held, but whether the courage and confidence of the troops would endure. The real defeat of the Germans lay in their inability to break the spirit of the defenders of France and Belgium.

"Military men call this spirit morale. It has been defined as 'the moral pulse of armies,' and it is said that since before the days of Julius Caesar the skill of every great commander has depended chiefly upon his ability to feel and appreciate this intangible thing. It is morale that enables men to endure hardships, hunger, and pain, to face death again and again, and yet to keep on fighting. It springs from the spirit of the individual soldier and sailor. As long as he continues to be cheerful and to feel confident of himself and his officers, so long does the morale of the army and the navy continue to be strong. Let but one man become discouraged, let but one man worry, and he will become a drain upon the vitality of all those who are fighting near him. That is why the soldier with a buoyancy of spirit is more valuable to a regiment than a squad of sharpshooters. That, moreover, is why the Red Cross is one of the most important factors in the winning of the war, for it is the knowledge that all is well this side the trenches, in the United States, that will encourage a man to fight with the best that is in him."

After describing the aid and comfort furnished by the Red Cross to the wounded men and how it helped to uphold the morale of the soldiers, Signaler Skeybill urged the 500 persons who had gathered to hear him to make the utmost sacrifice for the Red Cross.

"Wear your old clothes," he urged. "The boys in the trenches have got to wear them, and they are as good as you are. Cut out your entertainments and holidays. Live simply and eat simply, and remember that each of you is enlisted in this war and must make sacrifices."

The speaker graphically described the contrast at Gallipoli, where he and so many of his comrades were wounded, and where they had no comforts of the Red Cross with present-day conditions, where Red Cross workers attend to all the wants of the wounded in a comparatively short time.

"In those earlier days we had an excuse for the absence of Red Cross comforts," he declared. "You have no excuse today, for the mistakes of the past must be your lesson for the future."

There was no sale of seats in connection with the President's appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House at the opening of the Red Cross drive on Saturday night. The seats were complimentary and went in the main to active workers, members of the Red Cross and liberal contributors to its work.

SALVATION ARMY AID PLEDGED TO RED CROSS

"The Salvation Army war fund has reached the figure of $275,000 and is still going. We confidently anticipate that the final amount will not be less than $300,000. For this splendid result Miss Evangeline Booth, Commander of the army, asks me to express their hearty thanks and gratitude to the generous people of New York and to the workers whose unselfishness and devoted efforts have made possible this signal achievement.

"Miss Booth begs me to assure the public, and especially the contributors, that every dollar of this money will be carefully and economically expended and that an accurate audit by skilled accountants of all receipts and disbursements will be kept and published. The Salvation Army zealously guards its reputation for making a dollar go as far as any other like organization.

"But although Commander Booth and the other members of the army are profoundly grateful for this aid to their overseas war work for the American soldiers, gratitude is also due from all the friends and relatives of our boys in France to the Salvation Army for the assistance, comfort and cheer which is given to our soldiers there.

"President Wilson, Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels, General Pershing, and many others have testified to the excellence of the work. The men and women of the Salvation Army have greatly helped and will continue to help our troops in the trenches of France and Flanders.

"The people of this country did not know the extent and character of the war work of the Salvation Army until they were informed and educated by this campaign. Now that they have this knowledge they will appreciate the fact and will be ready for the next call. As the number of our soldiers in France increases, the demand upon the Salvation Army and its responsibilities grow greater. We count confidently upon the men and women of America to support this work, to increase their contributions as the need increases, and never to fail in their loyal aid to our own boys at the front.

"The expenditure of the fund already raised will justify the confidence which has been placed in the Salvation Army and will give a basis for subsequent appeals. Commander Booth asks me to urge every friend of the Salvation Army to join, heart and soul, in the Red Cross campaign of this week. Orders have been given that the men and women of the army shall devote their most strenuous effort to the good cause.

"The success of the Salvation Army appeal is a most favorable omen for the Red Cross drive, and the workers of the Salvation Army will spare no effort for the success of the Red Cross campaign."

PRAYERS FOR RED CROSS.

Pleas for Success of $100,000,000 Drive Heard in Many Churches.

Red Cross prayers and sermons were heard in all Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Bronx churches yesterday. In the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and in several Presbyterian churches women members of local Red Cross units were stationed in the vestibules, and the estimate last night of gifts secured in this way ran to thousands of dollars.

In the Second Presbyterian Church, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Robert Watson, had just returned from visits to more than twenty cantonments. He spoke first of the Red Cross and the Saturday parade, and then of what he had seen of boys in the cantonments.

"The striking thing to me about the Saturday parade," said Dr. Watson, "was the great superiority of the women over the men as marchers. I saw hardly a line of men who were more than stragglers, while the women without exception were alert, marched in almost perfect order, and had life which the men lacked.

"Beyond all praise are most of the things I saw at the cantonments. Out of more than a score of cantonments I found only one where the feeling of the men was unsatisfactory. At all of the others the spirit is admirable. It is simply amazing to see the splendid way in which men put up with inconveniences without grumbling, and how universally they are willing to go to the front without a murmur and with the heroism that is supposed to have been the exclusive quality of knights of old. The only complaint I heard was about the delay in getting at the throats of the Huns.

"America would not give too much if we gave half of our possessions to make such boys comfortable. The debt we owe them is simply beyond our ability ever to pay. The Red Cross $100,000,000 is a mere tithe of our debt."

CALLS FOR WOOL AUCTIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Chairman Davison of the American Red Cross today sent telegrams to the Governors of each of the States notifying them that President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson have suggested that the clipping of wool from the White House sheep be divided into portions and one sent to each State to be sold at auction for the benefit of the American Red Cross.

"President and Mrs. Wilson," says the telegram, "have presented to the American Red Cross the shearing from the White House sheep with the request that this wool be auctioned in each State during the Red Cross War Fund campaign week for the benefit of the fund. They have suggested that we ask you as Governor to receive mail and telegraphic bids from your entire State during this week. Each State will receive approximately two pounds of wool, to be known as White House wool. In order to stimulate activity in the bidding you will please arrange for the publication in your State papers each morning of the bids received during the preceding day, with the names of the bidders.

"We are asking the Chairman of the Red Cross chapter in your capital city to place the Red Cross organization at your service in any way you may desire. Wool will be sent special delivery, and we hope will arrive before the close of campaign. The total amount secured from all States will be turned into the War Fund as the President's fund."

This telegram in condensed form has been sent by cable to the Governors of Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines and to the Governor of Alaska. George E. Scott, Assistant General Manager of the Red Cross, has instructed the managers of the fourteen Red Cross divisions to facilitate the auctioning of the wool in every way possible.

ROOSEVELT GIVES LIMIT.

If All Your Money Is in Liberty Bonds, Give Bonds to Red Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., May 19.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, speaking at three meetings in the Red Cross drive in Nassau County, told his audiences today that no citizen should consider that he had done enough for the Red Cross or for the soldiers of the American army if he stopped short of self-denial. When his appeals for the Red Cross were applauded loudly the speaker said jocularly that those who applauded should give once to the Red Cross and that those who did not applaud should give twice.

Introducing Colonel Roosevelt at the meeting in the Garden City Hotel tonight, Bishop Burgess of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Long Island referred smilingly to the controversy with Postmaster General Burleson, and said that if the Colonel's letters failed to get through the mails they might be dropped on the Capitol by an airplane service to be built up by Nassau County citizens with recruits from the flying fields. In beginning his speech Colonel Roosevelt referred to the humorous tone of Bishop Burgess, but he said Postmaster General Burleson was beginning to realize the seriousness of the controversy.

Colonel Roosevelt repeated his assertion that the United States ought to declare war against "all of Germany's vassal states." He said that the country was false to itself and to every pledge unless it saw the war through with Armenia freed from the menace and power of Turkey. He said he had been asked about his assertion that no man was doing his utmost for the war unless he were in the army or navy if he were of fighting age, and particularly what he thought the fighting age ought to be.

"The fighting age is between 16 and 70," he added, "and any man who is able to go ought to leave a decision upon his acceptance or rejection to the military authorities. Everybody has to do something and that something his utmost, to win this war."

At Port Washington Colonel Roosevelt said he knew what the Red Cross was doing for the soldiers, for his own son had been wounded and cared for by them. "And what they have done for him they are doing for thousands of other boys. It is up to you to see that they continue to do it."

The Colonel again dubbed the war an "exclusive affair," and regretted that he had not been allowed to take an army to France. "If I had been allowed to raise a volunteer army," he asserted, "I would have made a special point of recruiting German-born Americans, thereby proving there is only one kind of an American—a loyal American."

W. Bourke Cockran, who preceded Mr. Roosevelt, urged unflagging support of the war, because, he said, it represented the forces of truth arrayed against the unchristian doctrines of the War Lord.

Colonel Roosevelt shared honors with an Armenian General, Mesrop Newton (Khan) Azgapetian, who spoke of the wonderful work of the Red Cross in his country, and expressed the hope that some day Armenia would be able to repay America for the great work of this country.

"It is no excuse for any citizen who is asked to give to the Red Cross to say: 'I haven't anything to give. I put all my money in Liberty Bonds last month.' That excuse is not acceptable. If you haven't anything else to give, give the Liberty bonds. Those bonds would be doing a double duty in the winning of the war!"

Cardinal Asks Americans to Heed Appeal Generously.

BOSTON, May 19.—An appeal in behalf of the American Red Cross and in support of its nation-wide drive for $100,000,000, which begins tomorrow, was issued by Cardinal O'Connell. The Cardinal's statement follows;

"Testimony of the highest order from France and Italy gives us all the fullest assurances of the marvelously efficient work accomplished by the American Red Cross Society. Just as long as this war lasts that great work of mercy will be absolutely indispensable. Without its touching, tender, and helpful assistance our brave boys would be in a sad and sorry plight indeed. We cannot even contemplate such a possibility.

"The Red Cross is such an absolutely necessary concomitant of our army at the front that the same patriotism must stand behind both the army in the fight and the Red Cross in merciful service.

"No true American can possibly fail in the solemn duty of this hour toward our boys who fight so gallantly and the noble forces of mercy which stand ready to aid them by deeds as valorous as they are generous.

"No one with a heart can hear the appeal ringing today throughout the country and refuse to respond to it generously and substantially."

Play Raises $155,000 for Red Cross.

The total amount raised for the Red Cross by the three performances of "Out There" given at the Century Theatre on Friday and Saturday was about $60,000. Of this sum $40,000 was raised by the first performance, $4,500 at the Saturday matinée, and $15,500 on Saturday night. The receipts for the first week of the tour, eight performances, amounted to about $155,000. The company will remain on tour two more weeks.

Liaison means trying to do that, so that one company or battalion will not advance or retire alone, leaving its own or its neighbor's flank open to attack or in danger of being surrounded.

GET AN AMBERG ANALYSIS

It will tell you if your methods of filing fit your methods of organization. Also how to apply the hard and fast laws of filing which give liaison when rightly applied.

MEN today don't want to cut down on the number of cigars they smoke. But they do want milder cigars of good aroma that won't dull their taste or tug at their nerves.

EVERY time "ready-mades" boast they are "hand-tailored," it reminds me of the upstart, who brags he is a "gentleman." Custom Tailoring, like mine, being journeyman hand-tailored in whole, not just in spots, scorns to make capital and compliment of such things.

For $25 to $50, exactly what you pay for stiff-and-stodgy "ready-mades," I give you rich custom-quality woolens, genuine custom hand tailoring; my body-gracing custom fit; my thoroughbred custom style; my personal attention. You deal with the Captain, not a deck-hand.
